Anybody can win mentally, they do it constantly at Monte Carlo and elsewhere, but nobody can win money, except accidentally; never in the long run.

The clammy fact is that a crowd of geese take a certain amount of money to the track; they pay the expenses of racing, pay to get in, and pay to get out. Bookmakers that started with nothing and live well must have their share. Men cannot win when they always put in more than they take out. Such "systems" are not for the ordinary public.

THIS COLUMN referred to "prosperous stockbrokers;" immediately one broker writes that American stockbrokers are removed a distance of several "light years," from the old prosperity. The stock boom has not meant profit for brokers. They cannot "break even" except on 1,500,000 share days, or better. Restrictions and regulations, brokers say, have driven business from the United States to British exchanges. Montreal, Toronto, London, where commission rates are 60 to 100 per cent greater than in New York; the London exchange does from five to six million shares a day. This is good news for those who think it desirable to destroy stock exchanges and stock brokers, not so good for others who believe that a liquid market for securities must be maintained, and that it is a good thing to keep American money, including brokers' commissions, in the United States.

FRIENDS SEPARATE CURLEY, ANTAGONIST

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Governor James M. Curley and Joseph A. Maynard, collector of the port of Boston, were separated by friends tonight after a heated exchange following an address by Curley at a dinner of the Democratic Business Men's league of Massachusetts.

Curley, in his address, had commented on President Roosevelt's tour of Massachusetts earlier in the week which he said "proved beyond doubt that he would carry the state."

Curley also praised Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Democratic state committee, originator of the $100-a-plate dinner in Massachusetts for the Democratic campaign funds.

There was an intermission after Curley's address and in the lobby of the hotel Curley and Maynard came face to face.

"Why don't you give credit where credit is due?" Maynard asked the governor.

There was an excited argument and the two men moved toward each other when Mrs. Mary Donnelly, Governor Curley's daughter, grabbed her father's arm. Police also stepped between the pair.

Prominent Huntington, W. Va., Man Faces Charge Of Murder

DEATH FIRST BELIEVED TO BE WORK OF BURGLAR

Valuable Jewels Habitually Worn By 63-Year-Old Widow Missing

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Detective Lieutenant Leslie J. Swann announced tonight the arrest of Charles Buffington Baldwin, 41-year-old scion of prominent Huntington families on a warrant charging the murder of his mother, Mrs. Juliette Buffington Enslow, who was found beaten and strangled by her bed a week ago.

Swann said the warrant, issued by Magistrate O. M. Phipps, was obtained after "new evidence" was laid before Prosecutor E. E. Winters, Jr. The lieutenant refused comment on the nature of the evidence.

Baldwin was taken into custody in the sitting room of his mother's home.

Swann said Baldwin would not be questioned tonight. The lieutenant would allow no visitors.

Baldwin was a son of Charles Baldwin, Mrs. Enslow's first husband, who died more than 20 years ago.

Mrs. Enslow, daughter of the city's first mayor, was found dead early last Saturday.

At first police announced they believed the wealthy widow had been slain by a burglar who rifled her room. Valuable jewels which the 63-year-old widow habitually wore were missing.

Last Tuesday, Baldwin and members of the widow's household went to police headquarters and were closeted with investigators for several hours. Baldwin was questioned until early the next morning.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN PIONEER GIN

Foreman Accused Of Using Heavy Cold Chisel In Drunken Fight

PIONEER, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Coroner P. N. Pulley of West Carroll parish said Preston Holstead, 23, farmer of near Pioneer, who was found dead Saturday morning in a local cotton gin, died of two skull fractures allegedly received in a drunken fight Friday night in the gin. Clifton Vining, the gin foreman, was arrested by the sheriff's department in connection with the case and released under $1,000 bond.

Witnesses said Holstead was creating a disturbance in the gin Friday night about 8:30 o'clock and that the foreman forcibly ejected him from the building. Later, Holstead went back into the building and Vining struck him on the head, behind the ear, with a heavy cold chisel, the witnesses told investigators.

A physician was called later when Holstead was found lying outside the gin, but the examination made by the medical man did not disclose a serious injury. He was of the opinion Holstead was only intoxicated it was stated.

Holstead was left inside the gin and was covered with some burlap bagging. He was found dead about 5:30 a. m. by Marcus Clay, driver of a truck for the Union Oil mill of West Monroe. The oil mill owns the Pioneer gin, which is known as the Electric gin, and Clay entered the gin building to get a load of cotton seed.

Authorities were notified of the death and the investigation was begun.

The investigators were told that

AUTOMOBILE HITS BAUCOMVILLE GIRL

Struck by an automobile early last night at Bauconville, Miss Alma Browder, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Browder of that community, was taken to St. Francis sanitarium, where it was learned she suffered a head laceration and leg bruises.

The automobile which struck the young woman was reported to have been driven by J. T. Wilhite of Baucomville.

Reports of the accident said Miss Browder was standing at an intersection and that the car struck her as it was rounding a corner.

The driver stopped the car after the accident. No charges had been filed.

EDITOR OF LITERARY DIGEST DECLINES TO BET ON HIS OWN POLL

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Even Wilfred J. Funk, publisher of The Literary Digest, is not sure about the reliability of the Digest poll in the forthcoming election. At any rate, he wouldn't bet on it. The following story appears in Time, the weekly news magazine, in its current issue:

"Polling New York City and state, the New York News fortnight ago reported that 10,771 people approached by News representatives at home and in the street were going to vote for Franklin Roosevelt November 3 as compared with 6,775 who favored Alf Landon for President. Same day the Literary Digest's national Presidential straw vote revealed that in New York state 99,228 voters, telephone-subscribers and club members were for Landon, 34,120 for Roosevelt. When he saw this discrepancy, the News' energetic Publisher Joseph Medill Patterson summoned an editor, had him get the Digest's Publisher Wilfred J. Funk on the telephone, offer to bet him $10,000 against $5,000 that the News' straw vote was more accurate for New York state than the Digest's poll.

"'Why, that sounds like easy money!' said Mr. Funk. 'Let me talk it over with some of the boys in the office.'

"After talking it over, Mr. Funk was less enthusiastic. The Digest figures Captain Patterson had challenged did not include New York City, which was yet to be accounted for in the magazine's poll. Though he still 'didn't know of an easier way to make $10,000,' if the wager were on the final figures of Digest and News, Mr. Funk felt that 'as a matter of policy it would be impossible for the Literary Digest to bet on its own poll. . . . The magazine takes no sides . . . plays no favorites. . . .'"

LECHE GIVES TO DEMOCRATIC FUND

Governor Donates $500; State Quota To Be Considerably Oversubscribed

"Louisiana is making the largest contribution ever subscribed to a national election campaign," said William P. Dillon, co-chairman of the presidential campaign fund for Orleans parish, who was in Monroe for a few hours Saturday calling on friends in this city. "The quota allotted to this state will be considerably oversubscribed. The original quota of $20,000 for Orleans parish was not only fully subscribed but oversubscribed. New Orleans itself is raising over $10,000."

Governor Richard W. Leche on Friday made a personal contribution of $500 to the fund, it was announced, to match a similar contribution by Mayor Robert S. Maestri made a week ago.

A great many industrial executives of the state, Mr. Dillon stated while in Monroe, are subscribing to the Roosevelt fund, in appreciation of

MRS. SIMPSON'S COURT CONVENES

Several Other Cases, However, To Precede Suit For Divorce

(By Associated Press)

IPSWICH, Eng., Oct. 24.—Bewigged Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke today opened the session of court which will hear the divorce suit of Mrs. Ernest "Wallie" Simpson, the admired friend of King Edward.

All indications were, however, that the suit would not come up until Tuesday, as there were a few criminal cases to be cleared up first.

The townspeople were treated today to a preview of what they might expect to see when Mrs. Simpson, the former Baltimore debutante, comes to court to press charges of her husband's misconduct, the only grounds for divorce under British law.

FIND BEATEN WOMAN NEAR STATEHOUSE

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A young woman identified as Mrs. Cody Richardson was found unconscious today on the statehouse grounds, beaten and cut about the head.

Police began an investigation.

REFUSES TO BE A MIDDIE

The unusual honor of being chosen to attend one of the nation's most noted boys' schools—the United States Naval academy—belongs to Miss Frank Ragan King, above, of Huntsville, Ala. Miss King was named for her father the late Commander Frank King, American naval hero in the World war. So when the navy department wished to honor Commander King's memory, it decided on an Annapolis academy appointment for pretty young Frank, supposedly the commander's son. Although she was "excited and thrilled," Frank didn't embarrass navy chiefs by accepting the honor.

JACKSON'S MAYOR RAPS WPA'S MAN

Charges Orleans Engineer Attempting To Block Airport Project

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Scoring the New Orleans regional office of the WPA as "antagonistic to Jackson's airport project," Mayor Walter Scott today in a wire to Senator Pat Harrison said that unless work were started immediately "we will close the municipal airport and convert the property into a park."

The mayor said this drastic step was taken because the New Orleans regional WPA office has made "demands placing restrictions on the project that will make it impossible to complete before the deadline of March 1, 1937."

Removal of the project from jurisdiction of the New Orleans regional office and placing it under direct control of Washington officials was the specific request Mayor Scott made in a batch of telegrams dispatched from city hall to Senator Harrison and a list of high government officials.

"Unless we can get immediate action for work to start with reasonable expectation of completion of airport project," the mayor wired, "we will close airport to some 300 ships per month, discontinue service to post office and department of commerce and commercial lines and convert property into municipal park."

The mayor charged WPA Engineer R. W. Langley with "antagonistically ignoring Washington conference, where it was agreed that all restriction would be lifted in the Jackson airport project," and added he had reasons to believe Langley "will continue to block the Jackson project."

BOARD CAN'T HELP IN L. AND A. STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — (AP) — James W. Carmalt, national mediation board chairman, telegraphed Mayor David W. Thomas of Minden, La., "our board can be of no service" in efforts to settle the Louisiana and Arkansas railway employes strike in view of the company's present attitude.

The "primary obstacle" to settlement, Carmalt wired, is the insistence of President C. P. Couch of the L. and A. "that he meet representatives of each craft separately."

"This is not supported by the railway labor act," Carmalt added.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt denied himself to all save one caller today and buckled down to the job of writing the final speeches of his re-election campaign.

In the Lincoln study of the executive mansion, he started soon after breakfast dictating rough drafts of the major addresses he will deliver in Pennsylvania and New York Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

He also worked on what aides described as "non-political" talks to be made Monday in dedicating a chemistry department at Howard university, negro school here, and in New York harbor Wednesday afternoon at ceremonies celebrating the fiftieth birthday of the Statue of Liberty.

In all, nine speeches will be crowded

A split switch was blamed for the wreck but what caused it had not been ascertained by railroad headquarters here today. No one was injured.

MUSSOLINI SHOWS OLIVE BRANCH IN BAYONET FOREST

Sends Out Message Of 'Work In Peace And Peace In Work'

DESCRIBES INTERVENTION AS PUREST FASCIST IDEAL

(By Associated Press)

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 24.—Premier Benito Mussolini, thundering out a "message of peace" in this city where he narrowly escaped assassination ten years ago, today thrust before the world "an olive branch growing out of an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets."

He told 100,000 Bolognese he desired to "launch a message which should go beyond the mountains and seas."

"It is a message of peace, peace in work and work in peace," he shouted from the gorgeously decorated Central Piazza.

He spoke not far from the spot where almost exactly ten years ago a young fanatic fired at him, cutting in two the sash of the order of St. Lazarus across his breast.

In disdain of that occasion, when the fanatic, Antea Zamboni, was literally torn to pieces and Mussolini said, "I like to live in danger," Il Due today deliberately went through the closely packed crowd to reach the Piazza.

At times he was hidden from view as his automobile crowded through the throng which pressed down upon him.

Local Fascists tried to push the crowd back, but Mussolini only laughed.

From the rostrum he told the cheering thousands he was holding aloft "a great olive branch" at the end of the fourteenth year of Fascism and the beginning of the fifteenth.

This branch, he cried, "grows from an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets, well-sharpened and gripped by young men with intrepid hearts."

Recalling the achievements of Fascism in the ten years since he last visited Bologna, he declared:

"People such as the Italian people, heirs to an ancient and magnificent civilization, have certain rights on the surface of this earth.

"The nations which formerly knew us only in a literary sense now are amazed at our economic and military achievements."

He declared that as the European horizon darkens under a cloud of uncertainty, Italy "offers the world an admirable spectacle of calm and discipline, the Roman civic virtues."

In Corridonia, without direct allusion to the Spanish civil war, Mussolini described "intervention" as representing the "purest ideal of Fascism."

"Corridoni was an interventionist"—meaning he favored intervention against Austria in the World war—"Therefore he represents the purest ideal of Fascism."

In Macerata, Il Duce drew attention to the "great place which the month of October has taken in modern Italian history."

He cited the fact that 18 years ago this month the Italian army began an offensive which ended in victory over Austria; years ago came the march on Rome; and last year, in October, the Italo-Ethiopian war began.

Italy, he declared, "has not merely hope but supreme certainty in her future."

CHILD WITH NAIL IN LUNG FLIES FOR AID

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Four-year-old Joan Oliver arrived at Temple university hospital at 12:30 a. m. today just six and one-half hours after boarding a plane in Chicago for a trip to Philadelphia to have a nail removed from her lung.

Physicians at Temple university hospital said the child was in no immediate danger and declined to say when an operation would be performed. The nail, lodged in her right bronchial tube, is to be extracted by a bronchoscope in the Dr. Chevalier Jackson clinic. The girl swallowed the nail a week ago.

Chicago doctors made several attempts to extract it, then sent her to Philadelphia for an operation at the Jackson clinic which is noted for its success in removing obstructions in the area of the lung.

LANDON FAVORS NEUTRAL RIGHTS

Sees Plan As Best Way To Maintain Peace For America

By William Beale

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon advocated reliance upon neutral rights as "one of the greatest hopes" for keeping America out of foreign war tonight in presenting a dual program designed to avert conflict and bolster world peace.

Simultaneously, the Republican nominee asserted that President Roosevelt "attempted to put the United States in the forefront of the sanctionist powers against Italy," during the Ethiopian conflict and thereby made it probable "that if war had come we would have been involved."

'DEAD' VETERAN SILENT ON PAST

Refuses To Discuss What Has Transpired In Last Eight Years

RENO, Nev., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Jesse Owen Gifford was mum today on the story behind his disappearance from his Tennessee home eight years ago, awaiting further discussion with his brother.

Henry Gifford and the long-missing World war veteran were tearfully reunited yesterday, and swore they never again would be separated.

The brother drove from Chattanooga when he learned Jesse had been identified in Susanville, Calif., after making application for his soldier bonus.

The 41-year-old veteran declined to discuss his actions, but said he "had his own reasons for everything."

Five years ago J. A. Woodall of Stevenson, Ala., was charged with Gifford's murder after recovery of a body from the Tennessee river. Woodall was exonerated.

"That man was my best friend," Gifford said of Woodall.

WOMAN'S LEG FOUND IN TRINIDAD, COLO.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Baffled by the discovery of an amputated feminine leg, authorities saw the thread attached to their one clue broken today.

Sheriff Ray Marty had worked on the possibility the victim was Miss Frances Vigil, 18, a waitress, but her parents received word she was in Denver.

A dog dragged the leg, which had been cleanly severed seven inches above the knee, to the front of a local residence Thursday.

FASCIST PLANES START BOMBING CITY'S SUBURBS

'BLACKBIRDS OF DEATH' FAIL TO FIND AIR ENEMY

Flying Fields Adjacent To Capital Apparently Deserted

(By Associated Press)

ON MADRID BATTLEFRONTS, Oct. 24.—A score of Fascist war planes tonight bombed the suburbs of Madrid.

The exuberant pilots on landing at their bases said the Getafe and Cuatro Vientos airports near Madrid apparently had been abandoned.

No government planes took the air against them, the insurgent airmen said, and from this they deduced that the government aviators had revolted, or that all government planes were being used to convoy fleeing officials out of Madrid.

The besieged and terrified citizens of Madrid prepared to combat death from the air.

Anti-aircraft guns were manned in 24-hour shifts and cellars were cleared as an anxious populace scanned the skies.

The Madrid newspapers issued warnings and the Claridad, in bold type, asserted "an onslaught on Madrid is imminent."

Fascist war planes—the real "blackbirds of death"—might soon attempt to bomb Madrid into submission if surrender offers continued to be spurned by the city's defenders, it was feared.

The insurgents captured Zarzalejo,

M'KEE BECOMES CZAR OF MUSIC

Former Mayor Of New York Chosen To Rule Publishers

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Joseph V. McKee, who confesses he is a stranger to all musical instruments, became the "czar" today of the music-publishing industry.

"Judge McKee becomes in the music industry what Judge Landis is in baseball, the arbiter of all matters pertaining to the fair conduct of business within the industry." Thus did the Music Publishers Protective association announce the appointment of the former acting mayor of New York yesterday.

The 47-year-old McKee headed the city's government for four months in November, 1932, after "Jimmy" Walker resigned. McKee crusaded while in office actively for a cleanup of stage and screen.

The publishers association, describing the industry as "one of the most important" in the world "from the standpoint of its effect upon national life," said music publishing "ought to be commercially the most successfuly industry in the country. This is not the fact. It is far from being a commercially successful industry. There would seem to be some basic reason why this is so.

Part of Judge McKee's work will be to see if a solution of this problem cannot be found.

MAN'S BODY PULLED FROM BOSTON WATER

BOSTON, Oct. 24. — (AP) — Police pulled a man's body from the Fort Point channel today not far from the spot where yesterday they found the head of slain Grayce Asquith, dismembered blonde photographer's model.

Police dragging the waters of the harbor inlet for parts of Mrs. Asquith's body made the discovery.

They could not immediately link the body with the Asquith case, although investigators seeking to solve her death have frequently expressed the belief that John Lyons, missing friend of the blonde widow, had met a fate similar to hers.

Neither was ever seen alive, police assert, since the night of September 19, when Oscar Bartolini, Quincy odd jobs man, says he left them alone in Mrs. Asquith's lonely Weymouth cottage.

Bartolini is under $50,000 bail as a material witness.

Shortly before noon, Police Inspector Joseph Fallon of the homicide squad announced the body was not that of Lyons.

Pulley of West Carroll parish said Preston Holstead, 23, farmer of near Pioneer, who was found dead Saturday morning in a local cotton gin, died of two skull fractures allegedly received in a drunken fight Friday night in the gin. Clifton Vining, the gin foreman, was arrested by the sheriff's department in connection with the case and released under $1,000 bond.

Witnesses said Holstead was creating a disturbance in the gin Friday night about 8:30 o'clock and that the foreman forcibly ejected him from the building. Later, Holstead went back into the building and Vining struck him on the head, behind the ear, with a heavy cold chisel, the witnesses told investigators.

A physician was called later when Holstead was found lying outside the gin, but the examination made by the medical man did not disclose a serious injury. He was of the opinion Holstead was only intoxicated it was stated.

Holstead was left inside the gin and was covered with some burlap bagging. He was found dead about 5:30 a. m. by Marcus Clay, driver of a truck for the Union Oil mill of West Monroe. The oil mill owns the Pioneer gin, which is known as the Electric gin, and Clay entered the gin building to get a load of cotton seed.

Authorities were notified of the death and the investigation was begun.

The investigators were told that

AUTOMOBILE HITS BAUCOMVILLE GIRL

Struck by an automobile early last night at Baucomville, Miss Alma Browder, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Browder of that community, was taken to St. Francis sanitarium, where it was learned she suffered a head laceration and leg bruises.

The automobile which struck the young woman was reported to have been driven by J. T. Wilhite of Baucomville.

Reports of the accident said Miss Browder was standing at an intersection and that the car struck her as it was rounding a corner.

The driver stopped the car after the accident. No charges had been filed.

EDITOR OF LITERARY DIGEST DECLINES TO BET ON HIS OWN POLL

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Even Wilfred J. Funk, publisher of The Literary Digest, is not sure about the reliability of the Digest poll in the forthcoming election. At any rate, he wouldn't bet on it. The following story appears in Time, the weekly news magazine, in its current issue:

"Polling New York City and state, the New York News fortnight ago reported that 10,771 people approached by News representatives at home and in the street were going to vote for Franklin Roosevelt November 3 as compared with 6,775 who favored Alf Landon for President. Same day the Literary Digest's national Presidential straw vote revealed that in New York state 99,228 voters, telephone-subscribers and club members were for Landon, 34,120 for Roosevelt. When he saw this discrepancy, the News' energetic Publisher Joseph Medill Patterson summoned an editor, had him get the Digest's Publisher Wilfred J. Funk on the telephone, offer to bet him $10,000 against $5,000 that the News' straw vote was more accurate for New York state than the Digest's poll.

"'Why, that sounds like easy money!' said Mr. Funk. 'Let me talk it over with some of the boys in the office.'

"After talking it over, Mr. Funk was less enthusiastic. The Digest figures Captain Patterson had challenged did not include New York City, which was yet to be accounted for in the magazine's poll. Though he still 'didn't know of an easier way to make $10,000,' if the wager were on the final figures of Digest and News, Mr. Funk felt that 'as a matter of policy it would be impossible for the Literary Digest to bet on its own poll. . . . The magazine takes no sides . . . plays no favorites. . . .'"

LECHE GIVES TO DEMOCRATIC FUND

Governor Donates $500; State Quota To Be Considerably Oversubscribed

"Louisiana is making the largest contribution ever subscribed to a national election campaign," said William P. Dillon, co-chairman of the presidential campaign fund for Orleans parish, who was in Monroe for a few hours Saturday calling on friends in this city. "The quota allotted to this state will be considerably oversubscribed. The original quota of $20,000 for Orleans parish was not only fully subscribed but oversubscribed. New Orleans itself is raising over $10,000."

Governor Richard W. Leche on Friday made a personal contribution of $500 to the fund, it was announced, to match a similar contribution by Mayor Robert S. Maestri made a week ago.

A great many industrial executives of the state, Mr. Dillon stated while in Monroe, are subscribing to the Roosevelt fund, in appreciation of

MRS. SIMPSON'S COURT CONVENES

Several Other Cases, However, To Precede Suit For Divorce

(By Associated Press)

IPSWICH, Eng., Oct. 24.—Bewigged Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke today opened the session of court which will hear the divorce suit of Mrs. Ernest "Wallie" Simpson, the admired friend of King Edward.

All indications were, however, that the suit would not come up until Tuesday, as there were a few criminal cases to be cleared up first.

The townspeople were treated today to a preview of what they might expect to see when Mrs. Simpson, the former Baltimore debutante, comes to court to press charges of her husband's misconduct, the only grounds for divorce under British law.

FIND BEATEN WOMAN NEAR STATEHOUSE

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A young woman identified as Mrs. Cody Richardson was found unconscious today on the statehouse grounds, beaten and cut about the head.

Police began an investigation.

REFUSES TO BE A MIDDIE

The unusual honor of being chosen to attend one of the nation's most noted boys' schools—the United States Naval academy—belongs to Miss Frank Ragan King, above, of Huntsville, Ala. Miss King was named for her father the late Commander Frank King, American naval hero in the World war. So when the navy department wished to honor Commander King's memory, it decided on an Annapolis academy appointment for pretty young Frank, supposedly the commander's son. Although she was "excited and thrilled," Frank didn't embarrass navy chiefs by accepting the honor.

JACKSON'S MAYOR RAPS WPA'S MAN

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Scoring the New Orleans regional office of the WPA as "antagonistic to Jackson's airport project," Mayor Walter Scott today in a wire to Senator Pat Harrison said that unless work were started immediately "we will close the municipal airport and convert the property into a park."

The mayor said this drastic step was taken because the New Orleans regional WPA office has made "demands placing restrictions on the project that will make it impossible to complete before the deadline of March 1, 1937."

Removal of the project from jurisdiction of the New Orleans regional office and placing it under direct control of Washington officials was the specific request Mayor Scott made in a batch of telegrams dispatched from city hall to Senator Harrison and a list of high government officials.

"Unless we can get immediate action for work to start with reasonable expectation of completion of airport project," the mayor wired, "we will close airport to some 300 ships per month, discontinue service to post office and department of commerce and commercial lines and convert property into municipal park."

The mayor charged WPA Engineer R. W. Langley with "antagonistically ignoring Washington conference, where it was agreed that all restriction would be lifted in the Jackson airport project," and added he had reasons to believe Langley "will continue to block the Jackson project."

BOARD CAN'T HELP IN L. AND A. STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — (AP) — James W. Carmalt, national mediation board chairman, telegraphed Mayor David W. Thomas of Minden, La., "our board can be of no service" in efforts to settle the Louisiana and Arkansas railway employes strike in view of the company's present attitude.

The "primary obstacle" to settlement, Carmalt wired, is the insistence of President C. P. Couch of the L. and A. "that he meet representatives of each craft separately."

"This is not supported by the railway labor act," Carmalt added.

ROOSEVELT BUSY PREPARING TALKS

Starts Dictating Drafts Of Speeches To Be Delivered

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — (AP) — President Roosevelt denied himself to all save one caller today and buckled down to the job of writing the final speeches of his re-election campaign.

In the Lincoln study of the executive mansion, he started soon after breakfast dictating rough drafts of the major addresses he will deliver in Pennsylvania and New York Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

He also worked on what aides described as "non-political" talks to be made Monday in dedicating a chemistry department at Howard university, negro school here, and in New York harbor Wednesday afternoon at ceremonies celebrating the fiftieth birthday of the Statue of Liberty.

In all, nine speeches will be crowded

Government Plans To Settle Baby Derby Dispute In Own Way

By Dale Harrison

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The government of Ontario laid the Millar stork across its knee today and got ready to give it a spanking.

The stork, accustomed to honeyed words, heard himself practically called a racketeer. Before his ears stopped burning from that he heard further that he was taking part in "the most revolting and disgusting exhibition ever put on in a civilized country."

It was Premier Hepburn who declared the mothers' marathon, born to the strange will of Charles Vance Millar, had "become a racket" and

TRAIN DERAILED

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The engine and five freight cars of southbound freight No. 15 of the Louisiana and Arkansas railroad were derailed while switching in the yards at Spring Hill, Webster parish, about two a. m. today. A split switch was blamed for the wreck but what caused it had not been ascertained by railroad headquarters here today. No one was injured.

MUSSOLINI SHOWS OLIVE BRANCH IN BAYONET FOREST

(By Associated Press)

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 24.—Premier Benito Mussolini, thundering out a "message of peace" in this city where he narrowly escaped assassination ten years ago, today thrust before the world "an olive branch growing out of an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets."

He told 100,000 Bolognese he desired to "launch a message which should go beyond the mountains and seas."

"It is a message of peace, peace in work and work in peace," he shouted from the gorgeously decorated Central Piazza.

He spoke not far from the spot where almost exactly ten years ago a young fanatic fired at him, cutting in two the sash of the order of St. Lazarus across his breast.

In disdain of that occasion, when the fanatic, Antea Zamboni, was literally torn to pieces and Mussolini said, "I like to live in danger," Il Duce today deliberately went through the closely packed crowd to reach the Piazza.

At times he was hidden from view as his automobile crowded through the throng which pressed down upon him.

Local Fascists tried to push the crowd back, but Mussolini only laughed.

From the rostrum he told the cheering thousands he was holding aloft "a great olive branch" at the end of the fourteenth year of Fascism and the beginning of the fifteenth.

This branch, he cried, "grows from an immense forest of 8,000,000 bayonets, well-sharpened and gripped by young men with intrepid hearts."

Recalling the achievements of Fascism in the ten years since he last visited Bologna, he declared:

"People such as the Italian people, heirs to an ancient and magnificent civilization, have certain rights on the surface of this earth.

"The nations which formerly knew us only in a literary sense now are amazed at our economic and military achievements."

He declared that as the European horizon darkens under a cloud of uncertainty, Italy "offers the world an admirable spectacle of calm and discipline, the Roman civic virtues."

His "message of peace" was Il Duce's climax in a day of speechmaking.

In Corridonia, without direct allusion to the Spanish civil war, Mussolini described "intervention" as representing the "purest ideal of Fascism."

"Corridoni was an interventionist"—meaning he favored intervention against Austria in the World war—"Therefore he represents the purest ideal of Fascism."

In Macerata, Il Duce drew attention to the "great place which the month of October has taken in modern Italian history."

He cited the fact that 18 years ago this month the Italian army began an offensive which ended in victory over Austria; years ago came the march on Rome; and last year, in October, the Italo-Ethiopian war began.

Italy, he declared, "has not merely hope but supreme certainty in her future."

CHILD WITH NAIL IN LUNG FLIES FOR AID

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Four-year-old Joan Oliver arrived at Temple university hospital at 12:30 a. m. today just six and one-half hours after boarding a plane in Chicago for a trip to Philadelphia to have a nail removed from her lung.

Physicians at Temple university hospital said the child was in no immediate danger and declined to say when an operation would be performed. The nail, lodged in her right bronchial tube, is to be extracted by a bronchoscope in the Dr. Chevalier Jackson clinic. The girl swallowed the nail a week ago.

Chicago doctors made several attempts to extract it, then sent her to Philadelphia for an operation at the Jackson clinic which is noted for its success in removing obstructions in the area of the lung.

LANDON FAVORS NEUTRAL RIGHTS

Sees Plan As Best Way To Maintain Peace For America

By William Beale

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon advocated reliance upon neutral rights as "one of the greatest hopes" for keeping America out of foreign war tonight in presenting a dual program designed to avert conflict and bolster world peace.

Simultaneously, the Republican nominee asserted that President Roosevelt "attempted to put the United States in the forefront of the sanctionist powers against Italy," during the Ethiopian conflict and thereby made it probable "that if war had come we would have been involved."

'DEAD' VETERAN SILENT ON PAST

Refuses To Discuss What Has Transpired In Last Eight Years

RENO, Nev., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Jesse Owen Gifford was mum today on the story behind his disappearance from his Tennessee home eight years ago, awaiting further discussion with his brother.

Henry Gifford and the long-missing World war veteran were tearfully reunited yesterday, and swore they never again would be separated.

The brother drove from Chattanooga when he learned Jesse had been identified in Susanville, Calif., after making application for his soldier bonus.

The 41-year-old veteran declined to discuss his actions, but said he "had his own reasons for everything."

Five years ago J. A. Woodall of Stevenson, Ala., was charged with Gifford's murder after recovery of a body from the Tennessee river. Woodall was exonerated.

"That man was my best friend," Gifford said of Woodall.

In Washington the veterans administration indicated that Gifford would be unable to collect the bonus money already paid his wife. Gifford was legally declared dead five years ago.

WOMAN'S LEG FOUND IN TRINIDAD, COLO.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Baffled by the discovery of an amputated feminine leg, authorities saw the thread attached to their one clue broken today.

Sheriff Ray Marty had worked on the possibility the victim was Miss Frances Vigil, 18, a waitress, but her parents received word she was in Denver.

A dog dragged the leg, which had been cleanly severed seven inches above the knee, to the front of a local residence Thursday.

FASCIST PLANES START BOMBING CITY'S SUBURBS

'BLACKBIRDS OF DEATH' FAIL TO FIND AIR ENEMY

Flying Fields Adjacent To Capital Apparently Deserted

(By Associated Press)

ON MADRID BATTLEFRONTS, Oct. 24.—A score of Fascist war planes tonight bombed the suburbs of Madrid.

The exuberant pilots on landing at their bases said the Getafe and Cuatro Vientos airports near Madrid apparently had been abandoned.

No government planes took the air against them, the insurgent airmen said, and from this they deduced that the government aviators had revolted, or that all government planes were being used to convoy fleeing officials out of Madrid.

The besieged and terrified citizens of Madrid prepared to combat death from the air.

Anti-aircraft guns were manned in 24-hour shifts and cellars were cleared as an anxious populace scanned the skies.

The Madrid newspapers issued warnings and the Claridad, in bold type, asserted "an onslaught on Madrid is imminent."

Fascist war planes—the real "blackbirds of death"—might soon attempt to bomb Madrid into submission if surrender offers continued to be spurned by the city's defenders, it was feared.

The insurgents captured Zarzalejo,

M'KEE BECOMES CZAR OF MUSIC

Former Mayor Of New York Chosen To Rule Publishers

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Joseph V. McKee, who confesses he is a stranger to all musical instruments, became the "czar" today of the music-publishing industry.

"Judge McKee becomes in the music industry what Judge Landis is in baseball, the arbiter of all matters pertaining to the fair conduct of business within the industry." Thus did the Music Publishers Protective association announce the appointment of the former acting mayor of New York yesterday.

The 47-year-old McKee headed the city's government for four months in November, 1932, after "Jimmy" Walker resigned. McKee crusaded while in office actively for a cleanup of stage and screen.

The publishers association, describing the industry as "one of the most important" in the world "from the standpoint of its effect upon national life," said music publishing "ought to be commercially the most successfuly industry in the country. This is not the fact. It is far from being a commercially successful industry. There would seem to be some basic reason why this is so.

Part of Judge McKee's work will be to see if a solution of this problem cannot be found.

MAN'S BODY PULLED FROM BOSTON WATER

BOSTON, Oct. 24. — (AP) — Police pulled a man's body from the Fort Point channel today not far from the spot where yesterday they found the head of slain Grayce Asquith, dismembered blonde photographer's model.

Police dragging the waters of the harbor inlet for parts of Mrs. Asquith's body made the discovery.

They could not immediately link the body with the Asquith case, although investigators seeking to solve her death have frequently expressed the belief that John Lyons, missing friend of the blonde widow, had met a fate similar to hers.

Neither was ever seen alive, police assert, since the night of September 19, when Oscar Bartolini, Quincy odd jobs man, says he left them alone in Mrs. Asquith's lonely Weymouth cottage.

Bartolini is under $50,000 bail as a material witness.

Shortly before noon, Police Inspector Joseph Fallon of the homicide squad announced the body was not that of Lyons.

HOME ECONOMIC MEET SCHEDULED

Will Be Held At Parish High School Here On Monday

Many teachers of home economics will assemble tomorrow at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium for an all-day conference. The opening session will be at 9 a.m. and the close of the day's sessions will be at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Clyde Mobley, Baton Rouge, state supervisor of home economics, and other prominent home economics teachers will attend and take part in the program.

Jack Hayes, parish high school principal, will also address the assemblage.

The purpose of the conference will be to compare notes, devise new plans of teaching and generally to exchange helpful advice.

Home economic teachers from the Ouachita Parish High school who will act as hostesses to the visitors will be Miss Lera Whitten, Miss Kathryn McClain, Mrs. Roy Foster and Mrs. C. C. Schultz. Miss Sara Bres, head of the home economics department of the Neville High school will also assist the hostesses at the conference.

Invents New 6 Volt Electric Arc Welder

An amazing invention of Joseph H. Trindl, a well known Chicago Automotive Engineer, is that of a new ELECTRIC ARC WELDER that works off of any automobile storage battery and can be used on ordinary light socket. It develops about 7000 degrees of heat. Anyone can use it to weld fenders and make many other auto repairs. Milk cans, pans, hog troughs, tanks and even wire fences can be welded as good as new with this invention, and it retails for the small price of $3.75, complete with everything to work with. Mr. Trindl wants selling agents; therefore, a special offer will be made to the first man in each community who will write to Trindl Products, 2225-FG Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Write them Today. (adv.)

Can King Wed Mrs. Simpson? Yes, Says Veteran Reporter

By W. F. Brooks
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Would the former Baltimore, Md., girl be queen of England if the romance does lead to the altar?

These and scores of other queries about l'affaire Simpson fly through breaking monarch of Great Britain, set tongues wagging the world over by instituting divorce proceedings.

So, in order to compile a primer of Simpsonania, I captured DeWitt MacKenzie, chief of the London bureau of the Associated Press for 18 years, sat him down in an easy chair, and began a cross-examination.

The witness takes the stand:

Q. Is there any actual law against the king's marrying whom he pleases?

A. There is only one law governing the marriage of a king. That is the actual settlement of 1701, which provides that a monarch may neither adopt the Catholic faith nor marry a Catholic. Beyond that a king may marry whom he pleases, commoner or otherwise.

Q. Is Mrs. Simpson an American or a citizen of Great Britain because of her marriage to a Briton?

A. Under British law a woman may follow the nationality of her husband or retain her own. The choice would be up to Mrs. Simpson. So far as has ever been indicated, she is a British subject.

Q. Could parliament cut down the king's allowance if displeased by his marriage

A. Yes. Or it could refuse to grant an allowance for his queen.

Q. Might the cabinet resign as an act of displeasure and force a general election in which Mrs. Simpson would be the issue?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any likelihood of these things happening?

A. It is the least likely thing in the world. It is vital to maintain the prestige of the British throne because that is the sole bond which ties together the scattered divisions of the empire.

Parliament would do nothing to reflect on the dignity of the throne, no matter how displeased its members might be with an action of the monarch. This protective attitude towards the throne extends to all classes of the population. That is one reason why the British press as a whole thus far has refrained from any mention of King Edward's friendship for Mrs. Simpson, or from connecting his name with her pending divorce case.

Q. Is there any precedent for the king conferring a title on Mrs. Simpson so he could at least marry a titled person?

A. The king can confer titles on women, although, as has been said, it is not necessary that his bride come from the nobility. The day before Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, was married in Westminister Abbey to his royal highness, the Duke of York, second son of King George, the dignity of "princess" was conferred upon her by the ruler.

Q. Has there been any indication or the least confirmation of a possible marriage between Mrs. Simpson and King Edward?

A. The public has taken the liberty of assuming that his majesty might have matrimonial intentions because of his marked friendship for the beautiful American-born girl. There has been no statement of any sort either from the king or from Mrs. Simpson which would indicate marriage is contemplated. On the contrary most English people still cling to the belief that there is no likelihood of a marriage because of the fact that Mrs. Simpson will have been twice-divorced when her present suit is settled. England objects to a divorcee for a queen.

Q. If there should be a marriage what would be the status of children from that marriage?

A. There is no such thing as a morganatic marriage in England. Mrs. Simpson would be the legal wife of the king and she would also be queen unless he exercised royal prerogative and declined to allow her a coronation. Should the king do such a thing, which is highly improbable, the children presumably would be heirs of the throne, although that is a point only a constitutional lawyer could answer.

Q. Does the king have to have the consent of anyone for a marriage?

A. No. He gives his own consent. The formal procedure is for him to notify his privy council that the king is about to be married. That is the end of the matter.

Q. Has any English king ever married a commoner?

A. I am a newspaper man, not a historian, but to the best of my recollection Henry VIII was the last English king to marry a commoner. The custom has been in recent generations to marry into royalty, mainly for political reasons.

The witness, Mr. MacKenzie, was excused.

CCC CONTINUES FULL PROGRAM

Provision Made For Next Six Months In State Of Louisiana

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The emergency conservation program, which has given hundreds of thousands of young men work and income throughout the country during the past three years and has already cost more than $23,000,000 in Louisiana alone, will continue in full force in the state during the next six months period which has just started.

With the new enrollment just completed, bringing the force back to its regular strength, forty-one camps will be operated in Louisiana during the period which began October 1. This is approximately the same number that have been located in the state during the past two years.

During the past session of congress, an attempt was made by the administration to cut the number of men and camps in the CCC, but so terrific was the uproar created in congress and throughout the nation that no curtailment in the program was made.

Because of the drouth, floods and other soil erosion factors prevalent in Louisiana during the past several years, the largest number of camps have been established for erosion prevention and soil conservation work. Fifteen of these camps will be in operation at various locations in the state during the next six months.

They are located as follows: Minden, the postoffice address, in Webster parish; Haughton, in Bossier parish; Homer, in Claiborne parish; Farmerville, in Union parish; Ruston, in Lincoln parish; Calhoun, in Ouachita parish; Arcadia, in Bienville parish; Jonesboro, in Jackson parish; Mansfield, in DeSoto parish; Pleasant Hill, in Sabine parish; Leesville, in Vernon parish; Mt. Hermon, in Washington parish; Kentwood, in Tangipahoa parish; Greensburg, in St. Helena parish; and Keithville, in Caddo parish.

Eighteen of the camps are located in the timberlands, where the CCC men are engaged in carrying out an extensive program in reforestation and protection both to the timber and to the wild life present. These eighteen camps are made out of three groups, those in the national forests, those in the state forests, and those in the private forests.

There are eight camps located in the national forests' area. They are at: Pollock, in Grant parish; Provencal, in Natchitoches parish; Alexandria, in Rapides parish; Leesville, in Vernon parish; Dry Prong, in Grant parish; Winnfield, in Winn parish; Chestnut, in Natchitoches parish; and another in Pollock, in Grant parish.

One is on a state forest tract, it is located at Woodworth, in Rapides parish.

Nine camps are located on private tracts. They are located at: Bogalusa, in Washington parish; Slidell, in St. Tammany parish; Olla, in LaSalle parish; Elizabeth, in Allen parish; Montgomery, in Grant parish; another in Olla, in LaSalle parish; Danville, in Bienville parish; Chatham, in Jackson parish; and Springville in Livingston parish.

One camp works with the bureau of animal industry, and is located at Jeanerette, in Iberia parish.

Five camps are affiliated with drainage work in various sections of the state. They are located at: Abbeville, in Vermilion; Ville Platte, in Evangeline parish; Lafayette, in Lafayette parish; Thibodeaux, in Lafourche parish; and Iowa, in Calcasieu parish; while one camp is located at Bastrop, in Morehouse parish, which has been connected with the state park, and the last camp on the list is located at Barksdale field, in Bossier parish, where it has been working on the army reservation.

Since the CCC camps were organized, in April, 1933, and until August 31, 1936, there had been a total of 25,524 young men employed in that service. This figure includes enrollees, who totaled 22,812, and the officers and supervisors, who totaled 2,712.

The total amount of money spent in the state was $23,347,000. Of this amount $5,409,000 was sent home to the dependents of the enrollees. From each check, which was $30 per month, the enrollees were to send from $22 to $25 to their dependents.

The work conducted by the CCC camps was of great use in its wide range, not only did the CCC boys work in the timberlands but they also did erosion work control work, and much work in the wildlife reservations. Among the major work projects completed by July 1 of this year were: planting of 70,269,000 trees; spending 95,267 man-days on tree nursery work; building 3,366 miles of fire breaks; reducing fire hazards by 97,867 acres; checked 4,863 dams; and planted 295, 660 square yards of ground with seed, sod and tree plants.

REV. MILEY MODERATOR

JENA, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—At the ninety-third annual convention of the Ouachita Baptist association, held recently at Good-Pine, Rev. B. A. Miley, pastor of the Harrisonburg Baptist church, was elected moderator for the 1936-37 term. Rev. M. T. Doughty, pastor of the Manifest Baptist church, was elected vice-moderator and Rev. E. M. SENTENCED TO PEN

TALLULAH, La., Oc. 24.—(Special)—W. H. Laird, 31, of Crowville, was sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for involuntary homicide for the killing of Kenneth R. Thompson, when he was struck by a truck driven by Laird on highway No. 80 September 6, at a special term of court here. Young Thompson was instantly killed three miles west of Tallulah and the bicycle on which he was riding was completely demolished. Laird did not stop his truck. He was arrested the following day by officers here.

LECTURES HERE

Rev. A. Q. Bridwell, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., will deliver a series of lectures for 12 successive nights at Dean's chapel of the Church of God, four miles from West Monroe on the Arkansas road. The first lecture will be delivered Monday at 7:30 p.m. The Book of Revelations will be the subject of the talks. The two daughters of Rev. Bridwell, known widely as the Bridwell Sisters, will render songs at each service.

BIBLE CLASS TO HOLD SONG SERVICE TODAY

The Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church, meeting in the lobby of Hotel Monroe, will conduct an "Old Folk's Song Service" today at 9:45 a.m., according to Sam Walker, class president.

At this service, the teacher will give a short history of religious hymns, after which old time religious songs will be sung.

The oldest person at the service will be asked to tell an experience in his religious life connected with some religious song. Women as well as men are invited and it is expected that the attendance will reach fully one hundred.

Other features will be a duet which will be rendered by two young women, "List to the Voice" and "Whispering Hope."

S. E. Dodd is teacher of this class.

Gilbert Brown Determined To Become Lawyer Despite Handicaps

DOWNS HANDICAP

GILBERT BROWN

The most unusual and interesting student who has thus far enrolled in the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university in the five years it has been in operation entered the freshman class this fall. He is a tall, slender blond youth named Gilbert Brown, 19 years of age. The unusual feature of his entry is that he is possessed of only a small amount of vision, having lost one eye entirely, and there is but 20 per cent of normal sight in the other one. Yet although he has to pursue his studies under far more than ordinary handicaps, he is determined that he will make coveted "A" grades in all his subjects.

Young Brown entered Northeast Center with definite aims in life. First, he plans to proceed with his studies, qualifying him to engage in the practice of law. Second, he is determined to break down the barrier, as he terms it, that exists between the world of sight—those who have optic vision—and the sightless world—the blind. He believes if he can succeed in making a living as attorney and can shatter barriers that surround the lives of the blind and cause a better, more sympathetic understanding between those who can see and those who cannot, he will have performed a worthwhile life's work.

Brown is the elder of two sons of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Brown of 3312 Polk street. He was born near Mansfield. When less than a year of age, whooping cough resulted in injury to his eyes. The sight of one was entirely lost and that of the other so impaired that he is able only to discern dim outlines of objects before him.

Boyhood Happy One

His boyhood, however, was similar to that of other boys. He could play games that did not require too much eyesight and he grew up not greatly different from other lads. Last June he graduated from the Texas State School for the Blind, where he pursued studies that prepared for admission to a university. He made an excellent record for scholarship, mingled with many other students who were filled with ambition to achieve things in life despite handicaps, and attracted the attention and admiration of his professors.

He played basketball, edited the college newspaper, the "College Meteor," was able to dance well, played the piano by the aid of Braille music, and naturally had become for years adept in this means of reading for the blind. He also became expert in the use of a typewriter, attaining a speed of 75 words a minute.

With this past education and accomplishment as background, Gilbert Brown last June stepped forth with his diploma from the blind school in hand, resolved to see what sort of success he would have making his way in the world as an employe of some firm or business house. He applied in many places for the position of stenographer which he said he could handle with success through the use of dictaphone and his knowledge and speed on the typewriter. But the business world was by no means anxious to receive another "blind man" as an employe. He found quickly that there was no place for him in this line. Then he determined, after careful consideration, to follow a profession and that of law was chosen. He is convinced that a blind man of ambition should follow some profession. That of law appeals to him most and he is determined to make an outstanding success.

He is now pursuing a course in Northeast Center that will serve as a pre-law study. He has a heavy course in languages, political science and mathematics. Two fellow students act as readers at college. They are E. S. Parish and Una Quinn. They read his lessons when such is required and he retains the essence of the subjects with a highly retentive memory. His examinations are oral largely and when he has to hand in written work he does this on his typewriter. At home his mother is a great assistance in his studies, aiding him in many ways that only a mother knows how to do, for she is proud of the high scholastic rating that has always characterized the work of her son, and in his future plans she naturally exerts an influence that should aid in making dreams come true.

When he hears a lecture at college he takes notes, using a stylus and metal perforated arrangement placed over a sheet of paper. On this paper then appear raised letters of the Braille system, the basis of his study later at home.

Young Brown cited the case of six totally blind students now at the University of Texas and making successful scholastic records, all of whom are his friends. Also one of the members of the faculty there is blind, he said. The instructor is H. R. Haynes, professor of Spanish, who holds a doctor's degree from the University of Chicago.

In his pre-college days at the blind school, Brown became a chum of James P. Sanders, Jr., a blind classmate. This association proved inspiring to both. Each pledged that he would endeavor to break down barriers that beset the advancement of the blind. Sanders is now studying for the ministry at Abilene (Tex.) Christian college, while Brown, here at Northeast Center, is laying the foundation for entry into the career of attorney.

Brown is hopeful that he will make only "A's" in all his studies and with this end in view and with the great future lying before him, he goes ahead cheerfully with daily tasks, serving as a substantial object lesson to those possessed of all normal faculties and less well-directed aims and ambitions in life.

HOME ECONOMIC MEET SCHEDULED

Will Be Held At Parish High School Here On Monday

Many teachers of home economics will assemble tomorrow at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium for an all-day conference. The opening session will be at 9 a.m. and the close of the day's sessions will be at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Clyde Mobley, Baton Rouge, state supervisor of home economics, and other prominent home economics teachers will attend and take part in the program.

Jack Hayes, parish high school principal, will also address the assemblage.

The purpose of the conference will be to compare notes, devise new plans of teaching and generally to exchange helpful advice.

Home economic teachers from the Ouachita Parish High school who will act as hostesses to the visitors will be Miss Lera Whitten, Miss Kathryn McClain, Mrs. Roy Foster and Mrs. C. C. Schultz. Miss Sara Bres, head of the home economics department of the Neville High school will also assist the hostesses at the conference.

Invents New 6 Volt Electric Arc Welder

An amazing invention of Joseph H. Trindl, a well known Chicago Automotive Engineer, is that of a new ELECTRIC ARC WELDER that works off of any automobile storage battery and can be used on ordinary light socket. It develops about 7000 degrees of heat. Anyone can use it to weld fenders and make many other auto repairs. Milk cans, pans, hog troughs, tanks and even wire fences can be welded as good as new with this invention, and it retails for the small price of $3.75, complete with everything to work with. Mr. Trindl wants selling agents; therefore, a special offer will be made to the first man in each community who will write to Trindl Products, 2225-FG Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Write them Today. (adv.)

Can King Wed Mrs. Simpson? Yes, Says Veteran Reporter

By W. F. Brooks
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Would the former Baltimore, Md., girl be queen of England if the romance does lead to the altar?

These and scores of other queries about l'affaire Simpson fly through breaking monarch of Great Britain, set tongues wagging the world over by instituting divorce proceedings.

So, in order to compile a primer of Simpsonania, I captured DeWitt MacKenzie, chief of the London bureau of the Associated Press for 18 years, sat him down in an easy chair, and began a cross-examination.

The witness takes the stand:

Q. Is there any actual law against the king's marrying whom he pleases?

A. There is only one law governing the marriage of a king. That is the actual settlement of 1701, which provides that a monarch may neither adopt the Catholic faith nor marry a Catholic. Beyond that a king may marry whom he pleases, commoner or otherwise.

Q. Is Mrs. Simpson an American or a citizen of Great Britain because of her marriage to a Briton?

A. Under British law a woman may follow the nationality of her husband or retain her own. The choice would be up to Mrs. Simpson. So far as has ever been indicated, she is a British subject.

Q. Could parliament cut down the king's allowance if displeased by his marriage

A. Yes. Or it could refuse to grant an allowance for his queen.

Q. Might the cabinet resign as an act of displeasure and force a general election in which Mrs. Simpson would be the issue?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any likelihood of these things happening?

A. It is the least likely thing in the world. It is vital to maintain the prestige of the British throne because that is the sole bond which ties together the scattered divisions of the empire.

Parliament would do nothing to reflect on the dignity of the throne, no matter how displeased its members might be with an action of the monarch. This protective attitude towards the throne extends to all classes of the population. That is one reason why the British press as a whole thus far has refrained from any mention of King Edward's friendship for Mrs. Simpson, or from connecting his name with her pending divorce case.

Q. Is there any precedent for the king conferring a title on Mrs. Simpson so he could at least marry a titled person?

A. The king can confer titles on women, although, as has been said, it is not necessary that his bride come from the nobility. The day before Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, was married in Westminister Abbey to his royal highness, the Duke of York, second son of King George, the dignity of "princess" was conferred upon her by the ruler.

Q. Has there been any indication or the least confirmation of a possible marriage between Mrs. Simpson and King Edward?

A. The public has taken the liberty of assuming that his majesty might have matrimonial intentions because of his marked friendship for the beautiful American-born girl. There has been no statement of any sort either from the king or from Mrs. Simpson which would indicate marriage is contemplated. On the contrary most English people still cling to the belief that there is no likelihood of a marriage because of the fact that Mrs. Simpson will have been twice-divorced when her present suit is settled. England objects to a divorcee for a queen.

Q. If there should be a marriage what would be the status of children from that marriage?

A. There is no such thing as a morganatic marriage in England. Mrs. Simpson would be the legal wife of the king and she would also be queen unless he exercised royal prerogative and declined to allow her a coronation. Should the king do such a thing, which is highly improbable, the children presumably would be heirs of the throne, although that is a point only a constitutional lawyer could answer.

Q. Does the king have to have the consent of anyone for a marriage?

A. No. He gives his own consent. The formal procedure is for him to notify his privy council that the king is about to be married. That is the end of the matter.

Q. Has any English king ever married a commoner?

A. I am a newspaper man, not a historian, but to the best of my recollection Henry VIII was the last English king to marry a commoner. The custom has been in recent generations to marry into royalty, mainly for political reasons.

The witness, Mr. MacKenzie, was excused.

Provision Made For Next Six Months In State Of Louisiana

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The emergency conservation program, which has given hundreds of thousands of young men work and income throughout the country during the past three years and has already cost more than $23,000,000 in Louisiana alone, will continue in full force in the state during the next six months period which has just started.

With the new enrollment just completed, bringing the force back to its regular strength, forty-one camps will be operated in Louisiana during the period which began October 1. This is approximately the same number that have been located in the state during the past two years.

During the past session of congress, an attempt was made by the administration to cut the number of men and camps in the CCC, but so terrific was the uproar created in congress and throughout the nation that no curtailment in the program was made.

Because of the drouth, floods and other soil erosion factors prevalent in Louisiana during the past several years, the largest number of camps have been established for erosion prevention and soil conservation work. Fifteen of these camps will be in operation at various locations in the state during the next six months.

They are located as follows: Minden, the postoffice address, in Webster parish; Haughton, in Bossier parish; Homer, in Claiborne parish; Farmerville, in Union parish; Ruston, in Lincoln parish; Calhoun, in Ouachita parish; Arcadia, in Bienville parish; Jonesboro, in Jackson parish; Mansfield, in DeSoto parish; Pleasant Hill, in Sabine parish; Leesville, in Vernon parish; Mt. Hermon, in Washington parish; Kentwood, in Tangipahoa parish; Greensburg, in St. Helena parish; and Keithville, in Caddo parish.

Eighteen of the camps are located in the timberlands, where the CCC men are engaged in carrying out an extensive program in reforestation and protection both to the timber and to the wild life present. These eighteen camps are made out of three groups, those in the national forests, those in the state forests, and those in the private forests.

There are eight camps located in the national forests' area. They are at: Pollock, in Grant parish; Provencal, in Natchitoches parish; Alexandria, in Rapides parish; Leesville, in Vernon parish; Dry Prong, in Grant parish; Winnfield, in Winn parish; Chestnut, in Natchitoches parish; and another in Pollock, in Grant parish.

One is on a state forest tract, it is located at Woodworth, in Rapides parish.

Nine camps are located on private tracts. They are located at: Bogalusa, in Washington parish; Slidell, in St. Tammany parish; Olla, in LaSalle parish; Elizabeth, in Allen parish; Montgomery, in Grant parish; another in Olla, in LaSalle parish; Danville, in Bienville parish; Chatham, in Jackson parish; and Springville in Livingston parish.

One camp works with the bureau of animal industry, and is located at Jeanerette, in Iberia parish.

Five camps are affiliated with drainage work in various sections of the state. They are located at: Abbeville, in Vermilion; Ville Platte, in Evangeline parish; Lafayette, in Lafayette parish; Thibodeaux, in Lafourche parish; and Iowa, in Calcasieu parish; while one camp is located at Bastrop, in Morehouse parish, which has been connected with the state park, and the last camp on the list is located at Barksdale field, in Bossier parish, where it has been working on the army reservation.

Since the CCC camps were organized, in April, 1933, and until August 31, 1936, there had been a total of 25,524 young men employed in that service. This figure includes enrollees, who totaled 22,812, and the officers and supervisors, who totaled 2,712.

The total amount of money spent in the state was $23,347,000. Of this amount $5,409,000 was sent home to the dependents of the enrollees. From each check, which was $30 per month, the enrollees were to send from $22 to $25 to their dependents.

The work conducted by the CCC camps was of great use in its wide range, not only did the CCC boys work in the timberlands but they also did erosion work control work, and much work in the wildlife reservations. Among the major work projects completed by July 1 of this year were: planting of 70,269,000 trees; spending 95,267 man-days on tree nursery work; building 3,366 miles of fire breaks; reducing fire hazards by 97,867 acres; checked 4,863 dams; and planted 295, 660 square yards of ground with seed, sod and tree plants.

REV. MILEY MODERATOR

JENA, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—At the ninety-third annual convention of the Ouachita Baptist association, held recently at Good-Pine, Rev. B. A. Miley, pastor of the Harrisonburg Baptist church, was elected moderator for the 1936-37 term. Rev. M. T. Doughty, pastor of the Manifest Baptist church, was elected vice-moderator and Rev. E. M. Daffin, pastor of the Olla Baptist church, was elected clerk-treasurer. The next meeting will be held in Jena at the First Baptist church next October.

SENTENCED TO PEN

TALLULAH, La., Oc. 24.—(Special)—W. H. Laird, 31, of Crowville, was sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for involuntary homicide for the killing of Kenneth R. Thompson, when he was struck by a truck driven by Laird on highway No. 80 September 6, at a special term of court here. Young Thompson was instantly killed three miles west of Tallulah and the bicycle on which he was riding was completely demolished. Laird did not stop his truck. He was arrested the following day by officers here.

LECTURES HERE

Rev. A. Q. Bridwell, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., will deliver a series of lectures for 12 successive nights at Dean's chapel of the Church of God, four miles from West Monroe on the Arkansas road. The first lecture will be delivered Monday at 7:30 p.m. The Book of Revelations will be the subject of the talks. The two daughters of Rev. Bridwell, known widely as the Bridwell Sisters, will render songs at each service.

BIBLE CLASS TO HOLD SONG SERVICE TODAY

The Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church, meeting in the lobby of Hotel Monroe, will conduct an "Old Folk's Song Service" today at 9:45 a.m., according to Sam Walker, class president.

At this service, the teacher will give a short history of religious hymns, after which old time religious songs will be sung.

The oldest person at the service will be asked to tell an experience in his religious life connected with some religious song. Women as well as men are invited and it is expected that the attendance will reach fully one hundred.

Other features will be a duet which will be rendered by two young women, "List to the Voice" and "Whispering Hope."

S. E. Dodd is teacher of this class.

Gilbert Brown Determined To Become Lawyer Despite Handicaps

DOWNS HANDICAP

PLANS MADE FOR SINGING MEETING

President Of Louisiana Association Announces General Program

The general program of the Louisiana state singing convention, to be held at Neville High school next Saturday and Sunday, was announced yesterday by A. C. Banks of Columbia, president of the Louisiana Singing association.

The convention, which is expected to have an attendance of 5,000 singers from Louisia Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, and other states, will open at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the high school auditorium. Morning, afternoon and night sessions will be held. On Sunday two sessions, at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., will be held.

The principal feature Saturday will be the "Jubilee Program," beginning at 7:30 p.m., which will include classical, spiritual and comedy numbers given by the various quartettes, besides solos, duets and choruses.

The Sunday program, Mr. Banks announced, would be devoted entirely to "gospel singing," in which famous quartettes from various southern states would participate. There will also be special numbers by well-known soloists and duo groups, besides choral singing.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning Mayor Arnold Bernstein will deliver the official welcome to the convention from the city of Monroe. The response will be made by Professor Virgil O. Stamps, president of the Stamps-Baxter Music company of Dallas, Tex., who is also head of the famous Stamps quar' tte.

A number of prominent radio artists will appear at the sessions Sunday. No admission is charged to the gatherings, and the public at large is invited to attend, Mr. Banks stated.

THREE MEN ON LOG FACE LIQUOR CHARGE

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Three men on a log, paddling across Pearl river late yesterday, aroused the suspicions of three agents of the federal tax unit, who trailed them to a 75-gallon alcohol still in the Pearl river swamp in St. Tammany parish, and arrested them.

Today the three men were held under bonds of $1,000 each after they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Reginald H. Carter, Jr. The accused were booked as Rufus J. McQueen, his son, Prentiss McQueen and Kirk Coffman, all of Nicholson, Miss.

MASONIC GRAND MASTER WILL BE GUEST AT MEET

Robert F. Kennon of Minden, grand master of the Masonic organization in Louisiana, will be the guest of honor at a meeting of lodges of Ouachita and Morehouse parishes Tuesday night at Sterlington.

An interesting program has been arranged for the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

All master masons are invited to attend.

SINGING CONVENTION ARTISTS

Above—The Vaughan Quartette of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., which will appear at the Louisiana Singing association convention Saturday and Sunday next in Neville High school auditorium. Left to right: Palmer Wheeler, first tenor; G. K. Vaughan, second tenor; John Cook, baritone; Jim Waits, bass; James D. Walbert, accompanist.

Right—A. C. Banks, of Columbia, president of the Louisiana State Singing association. Mr. Banks has been president of the state association for six years and has served as president of the Caldwell parish singers for 20 years.

HOCKADAY FREED AFTER SIX DAYS

Feather Thrower Released To Custody Of Wife In Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Woody Hockaday, the self-styled Wichita, Kas., pacifist, who believes feathers to be more effective than bullets, went free today after six days' detention resulting from an episode in which he showered feathers on Father Charles E. Coughlin.

Hockaday was released from an observation ward and placed in the custody of his wife, Mrs. Agnes Hockaday, who came to Detroit from Buffalo after her husband was arrested here. She planned to take him to Wichita, hospital attaches said.

Dressed in a red shirt and wearing an Indian headdress, Hockaday caused a flurry of excitement last Saturday when he suddenly appeared on the platform where Father Coughlin was addressing a political gathering.

Before police could halt him, the feather thrower had showered the priest. Father Coughlin pinned Hockaday to the floor until police took him into custody.

L. S. U. TEACHER MOVES TO CITY

Dr. J. M. Nason To Conduct Extension Courses For State Instructors

Dr. J. M. Nason has just located his home in Monroe, residing at 401 Alexandria avenue, and will at once initiate instruction in north Louisiana in connection with an extension course of Louisiana State university, the faculty of which he joined a month ago. The topic of his course will be that of school curriculum which is to be the study pursued by all teachers of the state of Louisiana.

Dr. Nason holds master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Chicago and for some years was associated with the faculty of the University of California.

While making his home in Monroe Dr. Nason will conduct study courses in extension at the following places for the benefit of teachers:

Oak Grove, in West Carroll parish; Rayville, in Richland parish; Columbia, in Caldwell parish; Winnsboro, in Franklin parish; Winnfield, in Winn parish; Minden, in Webster parish; Homer, in Clairborne parish; Colfax, in Grant parish; Harrisonburg, in Catahoula parish; Good Pine, in La Salle parish. He also will have classes in Monroe for teachers of Ouachita parish.

Classes will be held once every two weeks at the various places, the first one for Monroe teachers having been held at the Central Grammar school auditorium yesterday morning.

Virginia, Mississippi and other states have initiated similar programs of extension work in curriculum, Dr. Nason said. Many other northern states have become well advanced with the study, which in Louisiana will require the carrying out of a four or five years' program for completion.

The purpose will be to modify curriculum now existing, to evaluate past efforts and to bring studies down to date, adapting to conditions as they now exist in the public schools, the doctor said.

Dr. Nasoh has two children who are now entered in Louisiana State university.

RUSSIA'S PICKER TESTS PLEASING

Mack Rust Receives Report Machines Found Satisfactory

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Mack Rust, co-inventor of a mechanical cotton picker, announced today he had received word that Soviet Russia's tests of the machine had "proved satisfactory."

Rust said the news was conveyed in a cable from Moscow. His brother, John Rust, with whom he invented the picker, is conducting the tests for the Russians at Tashkent, in Turkestan.

"Notify brother of inventor Rust that is now in Russia, that trials of machine satisfactory," said the cable.

Mack Rust said that his brother still is in Tashkent with two of the machines. Russia, according to the Rusts, is planning to produce 2,000,000 bales of cotton this season.

Meanwhile, machines operated under Mack Rust's supervision are in the fields in Mississippi. Rust said he received a report from Clover Hill, Miss., this week, that some machine-picked cotton samples graded the same as hand-picked.

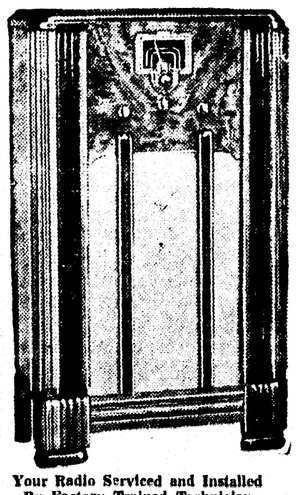

Government tests are being conducted at Stoneville, Miss., but results have not been announced.

PLANS MADE FOR SINGING MEETING

President Of Louisiana Association Announces General Program

The general program of the Louisiana state singing convention, to be held at Neville High school next Saturday and Sunday, was announced yesterday by A. C. Banks of Columbia, president of the Louisiana Singing association.

The convention, which is expected to have an attendance of 5,000 singers from Louisia Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, and other states, will open at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the high school auditorium. Morning, afternoon and night sessions will be held. On Sunday two sessions, at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., will be held.

The principal feature Saturday will be the "Jubilee Program," beginning at 7:30 p.m., which will include classical, spiritual and comedy numbers given by the various quartettes, besides solos, duets and choruses.

The Sunday program, Mr. Banks announced, would be devoted entirely to "gospel singing," in which famous quartettes from various southern states would participate. There will also be special numbers by well-known soloists and duo groups, besides choral singing.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning Mayor Arnold Bernstein will deliver the official welcome to the convention from the city of Monroe. The response will be made by Professor Virgil O. Stamps, president of the Stamps-Baxter Music company of Dallas, Tex., who is also head of the famous Stamps quar' tte.

A number of prominent radio artists will appear at the sessions Sunday. No admission is charged to the gatherings, and the public at large is invited to attend, Mr. Banks stated.

SINGING CONVENTION ARTISTS

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—A daughter was born October 19 to Mr. and Mrs. Charley Wiley. She has been named Beverly Kaye Wiley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Randall recently became the parents of a daughter, whom they have named Miriam Kate Randall. Mrs. Randall, before her marriage, was Miss Evelyn Duke of Jonesville.

A daughter was born at the St. Francis sanitarium Saturday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Day of Lamkin.

NEGRO HELD FOR THEFT

James Melton, negro, was arrested by Police Officer E. N. LeVasseur downtown yesterday afternoon on a charge of stealing three cartons of cigarettes from a truck of the Ouachita Cigar and Tobacco company, 121 North Grand street. The cigarettes were taken from a truck in front of the tobacco company, but the thief dropped them when a negro employe saw him and unsuccessfully attempted to detain him. Officer LeVasseur was notified of the case and later made the arrest.

RUSSIA'S PICKER TESTS PLEASING

Mack Rust Receives Report Machines Found Satisfactory

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Mack Rust, co-inventor of a mechanical cotton picker, announced today he had received word that Soviet Russia's tests of the machine had "proved satisfactory."

Rust said the news was conveyed in a cable from Moscow. His brother, John Rust, with whom he invented the picker, is conducting the tests for the Russians at Tashkent, in Turkestan.

"Notify brother of inventor Rust that is now in Russia, that trials of machine satisfactory," said the cable.

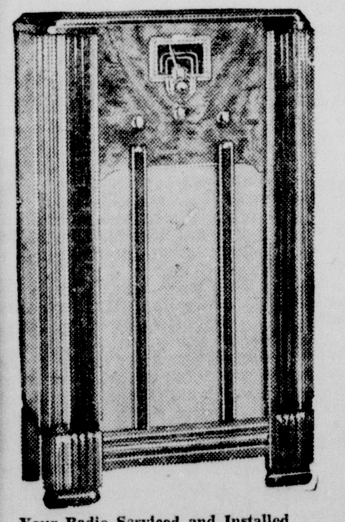

Mack Rust said that his brother still is in Tashkent with two of the machines. Russia, according to the Rusts, is planning to produce 2,000,000 bales of cotton this season.

Meanwhile, machines operated under Mack Rust's supervision are in the fields in Mississippi. Rust said he received a report from Clover Hill, Miss., this week, that some machine-picked cotton samples graded the same as hand-picked.

Government tests are being conducted at Stoneville, Miss., but results have not been announced.

Troubles

Why "pack up your troubles in an old kit bag?" Do you wish to preserve them? Do you desire to carry them around with you? Why not sing, "Chuck all your troubles in the old ash can?"

One should not take his troubles too much to heart nor should he carelessly cast them aside.

We are born to trouble as the sparks fly upward—in other words, trouble is for us part of the scheme of human existence.

Another name for troubles is problems. Without problems to meet and solve, we would be a soft, half-baked lot.

Our problems develop us; they develop us better if we meet them as we should; but they tend to develop us no matter how we meet them. If we regard them too deeply as troubles, they may embitter us. If we worry too much about them, they may extinguish us.

A person with an obligation which he considers a huge bother may grow resentful and ugly. Should he take the responsibility too seriously, it may tear him down.

It is easy to say, "Accept cheerfully any problem that seems to be yours." But that may be hard to do. It is easy to say, "Don't worry over any problem that falls to you." But that is still harder to do.

Yet, unquestionably, an important part of the spiritual growth that comes to us through our troubles—our problems—is the acquiring of the faculty of facing our difficulties and obligations with courage, determination, cheerfulness.

We did not make the world. We are not going to be in it very long. In a few years, at most, our complications here will have ended. Why not take them for what they are—whether we are to blame for them or whether they came to us through no fault of ours? Undoubtedly they are good for our souls.

This is an important sphere we are in. It can mean much to us if we cooperate with it, and leave it knowing when we came into it, with a larger vision, stronger characters.

Our problems themselves do not matter so much. It is the way we receive them and deal with them that matters.

RETURN OF THE PIANO

Impending for some time, the return of the piano as nucleus of family life has definitely come. And how welcome it is. The size of the instrument may have undergone a condensation co-equal with the tendency to smaller homes, but the right direction of the movement is unquestioned. There has been too much "canned" music in family life.

Years ago the piano and the hearthstone alike were symbols of domesticity. Around the piano gathered the family, whether the individual exponent of the art was a master or not. The old square type lent itself commodiously to centralization. Some of the prosperous could boast of a grand, but such possessors were a bit grand themselves. The old square in the parlor was the basis of cooperation and its successor was the upright, later supplanted by the baby grand. The new piano is a marvel of concentration, but no less an incitement to musical effort.

One piano maker hit the nail on the head when he said the piano was "what the public wanted." It has wanted it, and now it has it again. Of course the radio has its place, too, but even a Hofmann or a Pederewski, canned with most delicate flavor, is after all not the daughter of the family, even though she make occasional mistakes in her confident accompaniments. At any rate the family is not too particular. There is a sense of well-being in the air. The "crowd" is coming round again. Around the piano.

UNAMERICAN PROJECT

Once again we read of some misguided American trying to raise a private army in this country after the manner of German and Italian Fascists.

This time it was a New Yorker. He was out to enroll some 800,000 men who would be uniformed, drilled, and equipped with rifles, and who, it was reported, would stand by to combat "the growing influence of Jews and Reds."

The mere idea of a high-pressure, irresponsible, strong-arm outfit such as this would make cold shivers run down one's back if it were not for the obvious fact that nobody can put such a thing over in this country.

The American people know what Americanism means; no one ever can persuade them that it means anything like this pipe-dream. It is worth mentioning only to emphasize once more how utterly and everlastingly un-American such projects are.

Lipstick is a menace to health, according to a New York medico. And, as used by some feminine daubers, it's an impediment to beauty.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

(For Martha Kelly)

We reverence the mellowness of years
That fall so beautifully on a soul
That is too valiant to give way to tears,
And forges ever onward to its goal.
Your eighty years rest lightly on your brow,
Since you have lived them ever in God's sight,
And we who love you bring you homage now
Before your birthday candles' happy light.

You are our neighbor and our cherished friend.
We wear our sorrows with a better grace
Because you come to us at the day's end,
And bless us with the sunshine of your face.
Your wisdom heartens us, your friendship sows
Its blossoms in our lives, and we can see
In your long life of Christian charity.

Juggernaut Of War

By BRUCE CATTON

To read of Belgium's recent proclamation of neutrality is to be reminded once more of the desperate plight of people who have to live in the middle of a great highway for armies.

The people of Belgium might be the greatest pacifists, the most pronounced lovers of peace, in all the world; nevertheless they would have to live under the constant shadow of war. For their little country lies between two great nations which have a tradition of mutual enmity dating back for many generations, and the handiest way for these two nations to get at each other is to cross the Flanders plain.

Belgium is one of those supremely unfortunate countries which may, at any minute, be forced into a war with which they had nothing whatever to do.

In the late spring of 1914 the people of Belgium should have been as well able to look forward to continued peace as any people on earth. They had no territorial designs, no plans for expansion at someone else's expense; they did not own anything in particular that anyone else wanted. They were on good terms with everyone and they would have been glad to stay that way.

All this, as you can remember, did them no good. They simply stood in the way of the juggernaut, and the war was unloaded on their doorstep. The world's armies needed room to fight and the rich Belgian fields were the handiest place.

What has happened now is just another valiant attempt on the part of the Belgians to keep that sort of thing from occurring again. How far it may succeed is an open question.

By renouncing the alliance with France, they may disengage themselves from the conflicting rivalries of Europe; yet, if Germany and France go to war again, and the Germans display a canny reluctance to butt their heads against the iron line of French forts, it is all too likely that Belgium once more will find herself a corridor for the passage of armies.

It is a tragic situation; and, in a sense, it is a symbol of the situation in which all the people of Europe find themselves these days.

The thing they dread the most—war, with all that it means in the way of suffering and pain and loss—hangs over their heads, put there by forces which, as individual citizens, they are almost powerless to change.

It may come and it may not come—from day to day they cannot tell—but there is very little they can do to prevent it, for they live on a continent in which an infinitely tangled web of rivalries, hatred, fears, wrongs and suspicions certainly must produce war sooner or later.

The Belgians live in the path of the juggernaut. Can any American look at their plight without breathing a devout prayer of thanksgiving for the supreme good fortune which puts him in a land able to decide for itself whether it is to have continued peace?

A BOOK REVIEW

'DOG-MINDED' DEAN AMUSING CHARACTER

Dean Spanley was an elderly and dignified clergyman of the Church of England, devout and saintly in his every act. But in a former incarnation he had been a dog, and once in a great while his memory would slip a cog or two and he would start remembering it. When he did, his conversation was apt to be rather astounding.

The dean, it seems, had a friend who discovered his odd secret. The friend also discovered that if the dean could be got just slightly jingled, he would reach a point at which he recalled his dog days wtih nostalgic longing; recalling them, he would discuss them freely.

So the friend made a habit of inviting the dean to dinner. Dinner ended, he would ply him with rare old port wine. After 3 1-2 glasses, the dean would get good. The book records his disclosures.

Rabbits, said the dean, are great enemies of man. They plot and connive against him and must be chased at every opportunity.

The moon is a great menace since it is the only created thing which lacks smell; if not threatened by loud barking, it would work untold harm.

Bones must always be buried; even if you lose them, you know that you have them buried and it is a comfort.

And so it goes—one of the smoothest and most quietly amusing books of the fall. You must read it for yourself to learn how the dean's greatest disclosure of a dog's life was lost because his hearer, matching the dean drink for drink, got too fuddled to remember it afterward.

KICKING OFF FOR OLD SIWASH!

There is going to be a crying demand shortly for a director of good taste in the world of radio. One of the great irritations is the flood of nauseating symptoms broadcast around the dinner hour. They curdle many appetites. So much so the radio remains dead at that hour in thousands of homes.

No one wants to hear the intimate details of super-acidity just as the soup is arriving. Too, there are too many doubtful sounding nostrums being ballyhooed, patented stuff whose ads would be barred in better magazines and newspapers.

There is a deep danger in such laxity. Unfair to the vast radio audiences who have an idea every sponsored product has the backing and guarantee of the broadcasting company. Radio is the most intimate of all forms of entertainment.

It invades the sanctity of our firesides, and there should be nothing about it that could not be heard by every child. But there have been some broad exaggerations lately—exaggerations better suited to the snack bars and theater lobbies. Some of our highest-salaried comedians—and comediennes, too—have been fragrantly guilty. So fragrant the aroma is not nice for the parlor.

It is the same type of vulgarity that put the skids under the legitimate theater and killed off hundreds of playhouses in the outland and left only a slim handful in New York. In one evening recently I heard two double entendre songs fit only for the naughty Parisian music halls.

What will eventuate is a rigid censorship that will cramp the spontaneity of all programs. The movies have been cramped artistically because of the same early vulgarities that they might well have avoided. The radio is following the ancient gesture of "taking a chance."

It cannot get very far before being drawn up short by public indignation. Some may say they do not want their radio fare so goody-goody, but that must be the dish, by the very nature of its intimacy, if it is to balk a censorship.

The fact is that the high class and clean radio programs get along all right without ribaldry. Major Bowes is a conspicuous example. So are the skits put on by Rudy Vallee, Kate Smith and a few others. The radio's great stronghold is in the field of instructive lectures, symphonic concerts and such. It may be funny at times if it must—but it must be clean. The Good Will Court shows how welcome is the fresh idea.

Gay Nineties Touch: Two sidewalk card-writers now sit at their tables in the Radio City neighborhood these nights to dash off calling cards for customers.

There are always, I am told, a half dozen better seats held until the last moment for any possible celebrity exigency in the theaters. Say Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Producers like to dress their premieres in the manner of ringside tables at night clubs. It not only inspires players but may spear lines in the society chit chat columns. Also the news photographers may snap them arriving and thus inch a pinch of space in rotogravures.

I was talking to a group of painters at their lunch hour the other day. Theirs is a hazardous calling, it seems. Two had been out of commission for a year at a time on account of painter's colic. One told of being unable to taste or smell after ten days of steady working until he spent a couple of days in fresh air. Another said he had never known a house painter to live past the age of 60. Yet somehow none of them seemed to want to pursue any other calling.

The best of the hill-billy cracks is Judy Canova's order to her sister to: "Go back under the house!" Every traveler through the Ozarks recalls the youngsters peering out from under the house when a stranger stops.

Success story: She is a college graduate from Toledo, O., and came to New York on a venture in careering. Things were not so good, but she was not too proud to go into domestic service. So willing, obedient and loyal that at the end of two years her employer, knowing her ability, financed her in a tea room in East 58th. In six months she paid back the investment and a year later is the sole owner with money in the bank and a seaside cottage at Bay Shore, three dogs and a Persian cat. Nice going!

I've often wondered why many girls with knowledge of domestic science do not go into private homes instead of shops, stores and secretarial posts. In a well regulated home a domestic becomes one of the family and is able to save something on her own hook for a bigger chance. She hasn't the wear and tear on clothes of an outside job and it's honorable.

It occurs I have never seen a lightning bug in New York, although I lived in a hotel bordering Central park for many years. No one else I've asked ever saw one in the metropolitan area either. I wonder if they find the glare of the great white way too much competition?

It's been so hot around Indio, Calif., so L. M. R. post-cards, that the sun burned the wings off the gnats and made ants of them.

Family Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Many centuries ago, the wife, daughter, and two sons of the Greek poet Euripides died after eating poisonous mushrooms. Since that time many people throughout the world have died because of their curiosity and appetite.

There are no simple tests by which an uninformed person can distinguish the poisonous from the harmless mushrooms. Some people think that peeling off the top of the mushroom reveals the difference; others believe that cooking the mushrooms with a silver spoon will indicate which are poisonous.

When you are out playing golf, it is much safer to stick to the game than to interrupt it by picking mushrooms that happen to grow along the course. You cannot be sure about them when there are 40,000 varieties, and even experts may have trouble in telling the more common types apart.

Recently a group of four people went out picnicking and gathered a large quantity of mushrooms. They put a silver quarter in the pan in which they cooked the mushrooms, believing that the quarter would become tarnished if they were poisonous.

The quarter did not tarnish, but the next morning all four were seriously ill and later two of them died. When their bodies were examined, liver and kidneys, and even the nervous system and brain, showed severe damage.

This shows that it is much better to buy mushrooms from an experienced dealer. If you do happen to feel any symptoms of mushroom poisoning, get a doctor immediately, as this may mean the difference between life and death.

There are more than 80 species of poisonous mushrooms in the United States. The most common type is the amanita phalloides, which is responsible for more than 90 per cent of the deaths from mushroom poisoning.

The four most common classes of mushrooms are: first, the gillbearing mushrooms; second, those that have small vertical tubes on the under side of the cap; third, those with teeth-like spines which hang from the under sides of the caps; and, fourth, those that have their spores scattered over the entire surface and are coral-like in appearance.

Colors of the spores vary from white to pink, brown, purple, and black. Although some edible mushrooms have pure white spores, the poisonous amanita family are always white. Poisonous mushrooms grow chiefly in the woods or stumpy areas, while many edible mushrooms grow in open fields.

Any mushroom that deposits white spores and a wart-covered cup or cup at the base should be rejected as dangerous. The mushroom causes death because of a colorless and tasteless poison which it contains and which kills human beings by destroying the blood cells.

The most common mushroom sold for food purposes has a broad, convex cap one to five inches wide and rather thick, with firm, white flesh. Its gills are connected by veins and are not attached to the stem.

It varies in color from pink to brownish-black and the spores are purplish-black, not white, as are the spores of the poisonous amanita. The stem may be as long as three inches.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—In Missouri's capital, Jefferson City, is a big building which newspapermen, lobbyists, and some legislators call "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The fact that this building is the state capitol will give you some idea how important is Tom Pendergast's Kansas City political machine in Missouri politics and in any state-wide election.

The Pendergast machine and fraudulent elections are the chief issues in the campaign. The machine, with its ability to deliver a huge vote, is one of the chief props for the commonly held theory that Missouri is in the bag for Roosevelt.

At the same time, revelation of huge registration frauds in St. Louis and Kansas City may prove to be F. D. R.'s outstanding campaign liability.

Democrats are predicting that Roosevelt will carry the state by from 100,000 to 250,000. More neutral observers are inclined to shade the former figure considerably.

The Republican attitude can best be described as hopeful. In 1932, the Roosevelt plurality over Hoover was 460,000.

Registration Sets Record

Paradoxically, both St. Louis whose voting lists have just been scrubbed clean after exposure of the worst election fraud in Missouri in history, and Kansas City, whose critics say the registration lists are padded with 60,000 "ghosts," have had record-breaking registrations this year. Although the Pendergast machine is given almost full credit in Kansas City, argument rages as to the proper interpretation of this phenomenon in St. Louis.

"The employers are against Roosevelt, the employes are for him, and the farmers are split," says one old-time Democratic leader in St. Louis.

"The workingman and the farmer, along with the businessman, have come to realize that only Landon's election can save them from a disastrous future," says a Republican.

At any rate, the Democrats, controlling the governorship, the two senatorial seats, the whole congressional delegation the municipal setups in St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities, along with most other offices, have a much superior organization for campaign and electoral purposes.

Barrett Given Chance

Business is good and throughout the state are many who have been sweetened by federal spending.

Jesse W. Barrett, Republican candidate for governor, seems to have a much better chance of defeating Major Lloyd Stark, Democratic and Pendergast candidate, than Landon has to beat Roosevelt.

Stark extols the New Deal. Barrett says nothing about national issues and makes his slogan, in effect, "Clean up Kansas City." State-wide resentment against machine domination may elect him.

St. Louis expects to have the most honest election any large American city ever had. A bitter primary fight between Democratic factions led by Mayor Bernard Dickerman and ex-Congressman William L. Igoe, developed a scandal in the Mound City which revealed a "ghost vote" of something like 45,000.

The St. Louis Star-Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch began to investigate before the primaries and continued to apply terrific heat. A grand jury has indicted 24 persons for election frauds and probably will have 200 persons—mostly Democrats—under indictment before long. Election judges and clerks are scared stiff.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

WORLD'S FIRST COMMEMORATIVE STAMP

ONE hundred years, and the United States had passed the test of a bitter civil war. The population was growing fast, new states were being added, railroads were spreading farms and homes beyond the Mississippi.

The year 1876 was the occasion to celebrate the 100th anniversary of American independence.

On May 10, that year, the great centennial exposition was opened in Philadelphia. President Grant entered the grounds with a military escort of 4000. People were present from all parts of the world.

That same year, commemorating the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the United States printed a new kind of stamp on some of its envelopes—a three-cent value in both red and green. It was the first commemorative stamp ever issued. It pictures a mail train and a post boy.

The old square in the parlor was the basis of cooperation and its successor was the upright, later supplanted by the baby grand. The new piano is a marvel of concentration, but no less an incitement to musical effort.

One piano maker hit the nail on the head when he said the piano was "what the public wanted." It has wanted it, and now it has it again. Of course the radio has its place, too, but even a Hofmann or a Pederewski, canned with most delicate flavor, is after all not the daughter of the family, even though she make occasional mistakes in her confident accompaniments. At any rate the family is not too particular. There is a sense of well-being in the air. The "crowd" is coming round again. Around the piano.

UNAMERICAN PROJECT

Once again we read of some misguided American trying to raise a private army in this country after the manner of German and Italian Fascists.

This time it was a New Yorker. He was out to enroll some 800,000 men who would be uniformed, drilled, and equipped with rifles, and who, it was reported, would stand by to combat "the growing influence of Jews and Reds."

The mere idea of a high-pressure, irresponsible, strong-arm outfit such as this would make cold shivers run down one's back if it were not for the obvious fact that nobody can put such a thing over in this country.

The American people know what Americanism means; no one ever can persuade them that it means anything like this pipe-dream. It is worth mentioning only to emphasize once more how utterly and everlastingly un-American such projects are.

Lipstick is a menace to health, according to a New York medico. And, as used by some feminine daubers, it's an impediment to beauty.

Dixie is the region where kids choose Christmas instead of the Fourth of July to blow their fingers off.

Rhyme And Reason

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY
(For Martha Kelly)

We reverence the mellowness of years
That fall so beautifully on a soul
That is too valiant to give way to tears,
And forges ever onward to its goal.
Your eighty years rest lightly on your brow,
Since you have lived them ever in God's sight,
And we who love you bring you homage now
Before your birthday candles' happy light.

You are our neighbor and our cherished friend.
We wear our sorrows with a better grace
Because you come to us at the day's end,
And bless us with the sunshine of your face.
Your wisdom heartens us, your friendship sows
Its blossoms in our lives, and we can see
In your long life of Christian charity.

Juggernaut Of War

By BRUCE CATTON

To read of Belgium's recent proclamation of neutrality is to be reminded once more of the desperate plight of people who have to live in the middle of a great highway for armies.

The people of Belgium might be the greatest pacifists, the most pronounced lovers of peace, in all the world; nevertheless they would have to live under the constant shadow of war. For their little country lies between two great nations which have a tradition of mutual enmity dating back for many generations, and the handiest way for these two nations to get at each other is to cross the Flanders plain.

Belgium is one of those supremely unfortunate countries which may, at any minute, be forced into a war with which they had nothing whatever to do.

In the late spring of 1914 the people of Belgium should have been as well able to look forward to continued peace as any people on earth. They had no territorial designs, no plans for expansion at someone else's expense; they did not own anything in particular that anyone else wanted. They were on good terms with everyone and they would have been glad to stay that way.

All this, as you can remember, did them no good. They simply stood in the way of the juggernaut, and the war was unloaded on their doorstep. The world's armies needed room to fight and the rich Belgian fields were the handiest place.

What has happened now is just another valiant attempt on the part of the Belgians to keep that sort of thing from occurring again. How far it may succeed is an open question.

By renouncing the alliance with France, they may disengage themselves from the conflicting rivalries of Europe; yet, if Germany and France go to war again, and the Germans display a canny reluctance to butt their heads against the iron line of French forts, it is all too likely that Belgium once more will find herself a corridor for the passage of armies.

It is a tragic situation; and, in a sense, it is a symbol of the situation in which all the people of Europe find themselves these days.

The thing they dread the most—war, with all that it means in the way of suffering and pain and loss—hangs over their heads, put there by forces which, as individual citizens, they are almost powerless to change.

It may come and it may not come—from day to day they cannot tell—but there is very little they can do to prevent it, for they live on a continent in which an infinitely tangled web of rivalries, hatred, fears, wrongs and suspicions certainly must produce war sooner or later.

The Belgians live in the path of the juggernaut. Can any American look at their plight without breathing a devout prayer of thanksgiving for the supreme good fortune which puts him in a land able to decide for itself whether it is to have continued peace?

A BOOK REVIEW

'DOG-MINDED' DEAN AMUSING CHARACTER

Dean Spanley was an elderly and dignified clergyman of the Church of England, devout and saintly in his every act. But in a former incarnation he had been a dog, and once in a great while his memory would slip a cog or two and he would start remembering it. When he did, his conversation was apt to be rather astounding.

The dean, it seems, had a friend who discovered his odd secret. The friend also discovered that if the dean could be got just slightly jingled, he would reach a point at which he recalled his dog days wtih nostalgic longing; recalling them, he would discuss them freely.

So the friend made a habit of inviting the dean to dinner. Dinner ended, he would ply him with rare old port wine. After 3 1-2 glasses, the dean would get good. The book records his disclosures.

Rabbits, said the dean, are great enemies of man. They plot and connive against him and must be chased at every opportunity.

The moon is a great menace since it is the only created thing which lacks smell; if not threatened by loud barking, it would work untold harm.

Bones must always be buried; even if you lose them, you know that you have them buried and it is a comfort.

And so it goes—one of the smoothest and most quietly amusing books of the fall. You must read it for yourself to learn how the dean's greatest disclosure of a dog's life was lost because his hearer, matching the dean drink for drink, got too fuddled to remember it afterward.

KICKING OFF FOR OLD SIWASH!

There is going to be a crying demand shortly for a director of good taste in the world of radio. One of the great irritations is the flood of nauseating symptoms broadcast around the dinner hour. They curdle many appetites. So much so the radio remains dead at that hour in thousands of homes.

No one wants to hear the intimate details of super-acidity just as the soup is arriving. Too, there are too many doubtful sounding nostrums being ballyhooed, patented stuff whose ads would be barred in better magazines and newspapers.

There is a deep danger in such laxity. Unfair to the vast radio audiences who have an idea every sponsored product has the backing and guarantee of the broadcasting company. Radio is the most intimate of all forms of entertainment.

It invades the sanctity of our firesides, and there should be nothing about it that could not be heard by every child. But there have been some broad exaggerations lately—exaggerations better suited to the snack bars and theater lobbies. Some of our highest-salaried comedians—and comediennes, too—have been fragrantly guilty. So fragrant the aroma is not nice for the parlor.

It is the same type of vulgarity that put the skids under the legitimate theater and killed off hundreds of playhouses in the outland and left only a slim handful in New York. In one evening recently I heard two double entendre songs fit only for the naughty Parisian music halls.

What will eventuate is a rigid censorship that will cramp the spontaneity of all programs. The movies have been cramped artistically because of the same early vulgarities that they might well have avoided. The radio is following the ancient gesture of "taking a chance."

It cannot get very far before being drawn up short by public indignation. Some may say they do not want their radio fare so goody-goody, but that must be the dish, by the very nature of its intimacy, if it is to balk a censorship.

The fact is that the high class and clean radio programs get along all right without ribaldry. Major Bowes is a conspicuous example. So are the skits put on by Rudy Vallee, Kate Smith and a few others. The radio's great stronghold is in the field of instructive lectures, symphonic concerts and such. It may be funny at times if it must—but it must be clean. The Good Will Court shows how welcome is the fresh idea.

Gay Nineties Touch: Two sidewalk card-writers now sit at their tables in the Radio City neighborhood these nights to dash off calling cards for customers.

There are always, I am told, a half dozen better seats held until the last moment for any possible celebrity exigency in the theaters, Say Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Producers like to dress their premieres in the manner of ringside tables at night clubs. It not only inspires players but may spear lines in the society chit chat columns. Also the news photographers may snap them arriving and thus inch a pinch of space in rotogravures.

I was talking to a group of painters at their lunch hour the other day. Theirs is a hazardous calling, it seems. Two had been out of commission for a year at a time on account of painter's colic. One told of being unable to taste or smell after ten days of steady working until he spent a couple of days in fresh air. Another said he had never known a house painter to live past the age of 60. Yet somehow none of them seemed to want to pursue any other calling.

The best of the hill-billy cracks is Judy Canova's order to her sister to: "Go back under the house!" Every traveler through the Ozarks recalls the youngsters peering out from under the house when a stranger stops.

Success story: She is a college graduate from Toledo, O., and came to New York on a venture in careering. Things were not so good, but she was not too proud to go into domestic service. So willing, obedient and loyal that at the end of two years her employer, knowing her ability, financed her in a tea room in East 58th. In six months she paid back the investment and a year later is the sole owner with money in the bank and a seaside cottage at Bay Shore, three dogs and a Persian cat. Nice going!

I've often wondered why many girls with knowledge of domestic science do not go into private homes instead of shops, stores and secretarial posts. In a well regulated home a domestic becomes one of the family and is able to save something on her own hook for a bigger chance. She hasn't the wear and tear on clothes of an outside job and it's honorable.

It occurs I have never seen a lightning bug in New York, although I lived in a hotel bordering Central park for many years. No one else I've asked ever saw one in the metropolitan area either. I wonder if they find the glare of the great white way too much competition?

It's been so hot around Indio-Calif., so L. M. R. post-cards, that the sun burned the wings off the gnats and made ants of them.

Family Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Many centuries ago, the wife, daughter, and two sons of the Greek poet Euripides died after eating poisonous mushrooms. Since that time many people throughout the world have died because of their curiosity and appetite.

There are no simple tests by which an uninformed person can distinguish the poisonous from the harmless mushrooms. Some people think that peeling off the top of the mushroom reveals the difference; others believe that cooking the mushrooms with a silver spoon will indicate which are poisonous.

When you are out playing golf, it is much safer to stick to the game than to interrupt it by picking mushrooms that happen to grow along the course. You cannot be sure about them when there are 40,000 varieties, and even experts may have trouble in telling the more common types apart.

Recently a group of four people went out picnicking and gathered a large quantity of mushrooms. They put a silver quarter in the pan in which they cooked the mushrooms, believing that the quarter would become tarnished if they were poisonous.

The quarter did not tarnish, but the next morning all four were seriously ill and later two of them died. When their bodies were examined, liver and kidneys, and even the nervous system and brain, showed severe damage.

This shows that it is much better to buy mushrooms from an experienced dealer. If you do happen to feel any symptoms of mushroom poisoning, get a doctor immediately, as this may mean the difference between life and death.

There are more than 80 species of poisonous mushrooms in the United States. The most common type is the amanita phalloides, which is responsible for more than 90 per cent of the deaths from mushroom poisoning.

The four most common classes of mushrooms are: first, the gillbearing mushrooms; second, those that have small vertical tubes on the under side of the cap; third, those with teeth-like spines which hang from the under sides of the caps; and, fourth, those that have their spores scattered over the entire surface and are coral-like in appearance.

Colors of the spores vary from white to pink, brown, purple, and black. Although some edible mushrooms have pure white spores, the poisonous amanita family are always white. Poisonous mushrooms grow chiefly in the woods or stumpy areas, while many edible mushrooms grow in open fields.

Any mushroom that deposits white spores and a wart-covered cap or cup at the base should be rejected as dangerous. The mushroom causes death because of a colorless and tasteless poison which it contains and which kills human beings by destroying the blood cells.

The most common mushroom sold for food purposes has a broad, convex cap one to five inches wide and rather thick, with firm, white flesh. Its gills are connected by veins and are not attached to the stem.

It varies in color from pink to brownish-black and the spores are purplish-black, not white, as are the spores of the poisonous amanita. The stem may be as long as three inches.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—In Missouri's capital, Jefferson City, is a big building which newspapermen, lobbyists, and some legislators call "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The fact that this building is the state capitol will give you some idea how important is Tom Pendergast's Kansas City political machine in Missouri politics and in any state-wide election.

The Pendergast machine and fraudulent elections are the chief issues in the campaign. The machine, with its ability to deliver a huge vote, is one of the chief props for the commonly held theory that Missouri is in the bag for Roosevelt.

At the same time, revelation of huge registration frauds in St. Louis and Kansas City may prove to be F. D. R.'s outstanding campaign liability.

Democrats are predicting that Roosevelt will carry the state by from 100,000 to 250,000. More neutral observers are inclined to shade the former figure considerably.

The Republican attitude can best be described as hopeful. In 1932, the Roosevelt plurality over Hoover was 460,000.

Registration Sets Record

Paradoxically, both St. Louis whose voting lists have just been scrubbed clean after exposure of the worst election fraud in Missouri in history, and Kansas City, whose critics say the registration lists are padded with 60,000 "ghosts," have had record-breaking registrations this year. Although the Pendergast machine is given almost full credit in Kansas City, argument rages as to the proper interpretation of this phenomenon in St. Louis.

"The employers are against Roosevelt, the employes are for him, and the farmers are split," says one old-time Democratic leader in St. Louis.

"The workingman and the farmer, along with the businessman, have come to realize that only Landon's election can save them from a disastrous future," says a Republican.

At any rate, the Democrats, controlling the governorship, the two senatorial seats, the whole congressional delegation the municipal setups in St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities, along with most other offices, have a much superior organization for campaign and electoral purposes.

Barrett Given Chance

Business is good and throughout the state are many who have been sweetened by federal spending.

Jesse W. Barrett, Republican candidate for governor, seems to have a much better chance of defeating Major Lloyd Stark, Democratic and Pendergast candidate, than Landon has to beat Roosevelt.

Stark extols the New Deal. Barrett says nothing about national issues and makes his slogan, in effect, "Clean up Kansas City." State-wide resentment against machine domination may elect him.

St. Louis expects to have the most honest election any large American city ever had. A bitter primary fight between Democratic factions led by Mayor Bernard Dickerman and ex-Congressman William L. Igoe, developed a scandal in the Mound City which revealed a "ghost vote" of something like 45,000.

The St. Louis Star-Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch began to investigate before the primaries and continued to apply terrific heat. A grand jury has indicted 24 persons for election frauds and probably will have 200 persons—mostly Democrats—under indictment before long. Election judges and clerks are scared stiff.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

WORLD'S FIRST COMMEMORATIVE STAMP

ONE hundred years, and the United States had passed the test of a bitter civil war. The population was growing fast, new states were being added, railroads were spreading farms and homes beyond the Mississippi.

The year 1876 was the occasion to celebrate the 100th anniversary of American independence.

On May 10, that year, the great centennial exposition was opened in Philadelphia. President Grant entered the grounds with a military escort of 4000. People were present from all parts of the world.

That same year, commemorating the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the United States printed a new kind of stamp on some of its envelopes—a three-cent value in both red and green. It was the first commemorative stamp ever issued. It pictures a mail train and a post boy.

EXPENDITURES OF DEMOCRATS GIVEN

Disbursements For Month Placed At $1,408,947, Total $2,490,715

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Democratic national committee today reported campaign expenditures of $1,324,416 between September 1 and October 21, bringing its total disbursements since June 1 to $2,333,256.

Campaign contributions since September 1 were set at $1,408,947. Earlier donations raised the total to $2,490,715.

The committee's statement, filed with the clerk of the house, showed a balance of $84,531.

The Republican national committee's report filed yesterday listed expenditures of $3,161,617 between September 1 and October 18 or a total of $4,949,428 since June 1. Republican receipts since June 1 totaled $5,038,419, including $2,987,765 since September 1.

The largest contribution to the Democratic fund was $100,000, given by the United Mine Workers of America.

Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh, donated $40,000, the largest individual contribution.

Individual contributions included: Curtis Bok, Philadelphia, $25,000; Emil Schwartzhaupt, New York City, $10,000; Bert Fish, Deland, Fla., $10,000; John J. Turtletaub, New York City, $10,000; Arthur Mullen, Omaha, Neb., $10,000; Lucious B. Manning, Chicago, $25,000; James W. Gerard, New York City, $15,000; Nicholas M. Schenck, New York City, $10,000; Clifton H. Scott, Little Rock, Ark., $18,000; The National and State Democratic finance committees of Tennessee, $24,000.

and sloping oval gallery of the big flag-draped coliseum. Radio spread his voice throughout the country and loud speakers into a nearby building where those unable to find places in the 15,000 seat coliseum filled 10,000 more out of sight of Landon.

Casting aside the League of Nations collective security system because "we cannot use war to end war," and the world court because it was a "political court," Landon rejected isolation as a means of keeping out of European war.

The Kansan's program "to avert war throughout the world:"

Promotion of mediation first, and then arbitration.

Restoration of "international confidence in the good faith of the American government," which he said had been "shattered by the contradictions of the present administration."

Cooperation, in the reduction of armaments.

Assistance to "lowering world-wide trade barriers and re-establishing healthy economic conditions."

Developing a neutrality policy which, while not "an absolute guarantee of peace," is "one of the great hopes," since isolation "is unfair to our own people and impossible."

Enactment of legislation for "taking the profits out of war."

"In these high resolves, God helping us," the Republican candidate said, "we shall protect America against war. And we shall do our full part to maintain the healing of peace throughout the world."

An automobile raced to the court building, and two hefty constables leaped off, swinging their truncheons.

Deftly they went through the pantomime of helping someone from the car and making way for him or her through the crowd.

Such, it was indicated, would be the police courtesy extended Mrs. Simpson.

First, however, Justice Hawke must hear several cases involving alleged breaking and entering, and poaching of rabbits.

Then, according to court custom, the divorce suits would be heard. Mrs. Simpson's heads a schedule of six.

First came two trumpeters, wearing the scarlet jackets and bear-skin busbies of the Coldstream guards.

Next, escorted by the red-robed lord mayor of Ipswich, came Mr. Justice Hawke, wearing the black, cocked hat and heavy gold chain of his office.

5,000 CATHOLICS TO BATTLE COMMUNISM

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 24.—(AP)—More than 5,000 Catholics, including school children and adults, will parade here tomorrow in a feast of Christ the King procession dedicated against Communism.

Services in historic Bienville square will end a day of demonstration. The procession will be led by Rev. T. J. Toolen, bishop of the Mobile diocese, which includes Alabama and west Florida.

The celebration is held annually but tomorrow will be the first time it has been specifically dedicated against Communism.

FOUR MEN INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Four men were injured, none seriously, early last night when an automobile in which they were riding was in a collision with a car occupied by Mrs. Milton Cov. dale, wife of the Ouachita parish sheriff, and her two sons. The accident took place on the Ruston road about five miles from West Monroe, according to reports of the mishap.

The injured men were Shelton and Grady Averett of Calhoun, brothers, a cousin of the brothers, Herman Averett suffered cuts and bruises which required that he remain overnight at Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. The other three men were released from the clinic after receiving treatment for lesser injuries.

Mrs. Coverdale suffered shock. Her two sons, Milton, Jr., and Harold, were not injured.

Reports of the accident said the two cars were traveling in opposite directions and collided when the car occupied by the four men was passing another vehicle.

Milton Coverdale, Jr., was the driver of the Coverdale car. The driver of the other car was the fifth man in that vehicle. His name was not learned.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT

A negro who gave his name as Tommie Anderson, 33, was arrested last night by Police Officers H. E. Webb and H. E. Tolbert for allegedly stealing two suits of men's clothing from Abraham Brothers' store, 502 DeSiard street. The negro had the clothing in his possession when arrested by the officers near Five Points, it was reported.

LOVE BYRD RETURNS

Love Byrd, young West Monroe man who has been in Detroit, Mich., and Chicago, Ill., for the past year and a half, has returned home on a visit to relatives. He had some experience as a radio singer and entertainer before leaving Monroe, and in the north continued his radio work as a part-time pursuit.

FASCIST PLANES

just three miles from their objective, El Escorial, 30 miles west of Madrid.

A dispatch from Lisbon today reported that an insurgent aviator, speaking for his comrades, had said:

"I hope that we shall not be forced to bomb Madrid, but if surrender is refused after an ultimatum which will be sent when El Escorial is captured, we will be compelled to blow the beautiful city to bits."

The three-pronged insurgent advance on Madrid tonight was pushed forward appreciably.

One column was nearing Mostoles, 10 miles southwest of Madrid; another was at Illescas, 13 miles south of the capital, while the third was driving on El Escorial.

With El Escorial taken, the insurgent high command said, the attack could be webbed together by cavalry units, and the final assault on Madrid's gates begun.

There was no confirmation of radio reports that the insurgents already had occupied Mostoles, virtually a suburb of the capital.

The government ordered mobilization of all Republican party members between the ages of 20 and 35.

Laborers, organized into platoons, attempted to raise the spirits of the people by parading with picks and shovels.

"All stand together — we choose death before slavery!" they cried.

The Fascist attempt to strike fear into the city's residents through air raids and leaflet "ultimatums" apparently was bearing fruit.

PORTUGAL RELATIONS WITH MADRID END

(By Associated Press)

Fascist Portugal today broke off diplomatic relations with Socialist Madrid.

The Madrid government replied with charges Portuguese forces killed 40 Spanish sailors in a naval battle off the African coast and alleged that 15 German submarines came to the aid of Spanish Fascists; also that "German youths arrived at Seville in an open boat with 12 anti-aircraft guns" October 8.

Russia renewed her demand that the Spanish non-intervention committee authorize a blockade of Portuguese ports to halt alleged Fascist aid to the Spanish insurgents.

Moscow observers predicted Russia would offer technical aid to the Spanish Socialists as the first development of her declaration to follow whatever course she chooses in the civil war. Later, it was believed, Moscow might consider direct military aid to the beleaguered Madrid defenders.

Italy and Germany became more closely allied than ever with announcement of agreement to consult each other on any contemplated action to deal with European problems.

The agreement was the result of conversations between Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Mussolini, and Chancellor Hitler at the latter's mountain estate near Munich.

German recognition of the new Roman empire and conquest of Ethiopia, announced formally in Berlin and Rome, was regarded as an important part of the agreement.

And in Belgium there were rumblings of Fascist troubles. War veterans were to parade today (Sunday) in commemoration of the battle of Yser and Leon DeGrelle, sometimes called the "Belgian Hitler," summoned his followers to a mass meeting "to sweep out Premier Van Zeeland."

Belgian troops were held in barracks, ready to suppress any disorders. Officials hoped DeGrelle might call off his demonstration rather than defy openly the government.

Fascist war pilots reported bombardment of the suburbs of Madrid and said the Getafe and Cuatro Vientos airports near the Spanish capital apparently had been abandoned.

No government planes appeared to combat the Fascist armada and from this the insurgent aviators concluded that the Madrid pilots had revolted or that Madrid's planes were being used to convey officials from the city.

Terrified citizens of Madrid cleared cellars for hiding and scanned the skies with fear. Anti-aircraft guns were manned in 24-hour shifts.

Frightened women ran through the streets.

CANADA LIKELY

that the government was going to take a hand in it.

The Hepburn government is no tyro in dealing with baby situations. When Mrs. Dionne had her quintuplets, the government stepped in and, in the name of the king, adopted the babies as its own.

Today the government got ready to step into the mothers' marathon to prevent "endless litigation that would leave these poor mothers with nothing to show for what they have been through."

As evidence that the stork derby has developed into a "racket," the premier noted the bureau of vital statistics has been swamped "by women trying to get births registered that happened years ago," so as to qualify for the $500,000 fortune awaiting Toronto's most prolific mother.

"It is the duty of the government," the premier added, "to stop this fiasco. We certainly won't let it go to the courts."

The government sought to put a stop to the mothers' marathon three years ago. A bill was drafted to escheat the will and shunt the bequest to educational purposes. There was a loud cry, and the plan was dropped.

The lawyer died ten years ago, leaving the bulk of his estate to Toronto's most prolific mother. Decision day is next Saturday. If the government takes some action to prevent litigation, the winner may be determined promptly.

With only a week remaining, new claimants are appearing daily but nine babies is the most any of these so far has been able to muster.

The contest enters its last week with the mothers claiming the following positions:

Mrs. Matthew Kenny, 12.

Mrs. Pauline Clarke, Mrs. John Nagle and Mrs. Alice Timleck, 10 each.

MAN FOUND DEAD

about 8:30 o'clock Friday night, Holstead, Vining and several negroes employed by the gin were there and that each had been drinking. Vining denied that he had been drinking.

Young Holstead engaged in a fight with one of the negroes, Lenmo Tony, and Vining stepped in and forced Holstead from the building, striking him in the mouth with his fist.

Holstead later again entered the building and the foreman, after remonstrating with him, struck him behind the left ear with the heavy chisel, the witnesses said.

After a while the night watchman, Everett "Red" Brakefield, found Holstead lying near the gin entrance. Brakefield and two negroes picked Holstead up and carried him into the gin and placed him on the floor.

After the physician had examined Holstead, the nightwatchman returned to Holstead about midnight and felt of his pulse. Holstead apparently was sleeping soundly.

The next development was the discovery by Clay at 5:30 a. m. that Holstead was dead.

J. M. Holstead, father of the dead youth, swore out a warrant for Vining's arrest.

Young Holstead's funeral will be held Sunday.

He is survived by his parents, with whom he resided on their farm, and several brothers and sisters.

the "prosperity brought about primarily by reason of the policies adopted by the Democratic party."

Mr. Dillon said that about $5,000,000 a month is now being spent in Louisiana out of allocated federal funds and that a survey has shown an increase of more than four per cent in industrial employment throughout the state in September as compared with last July.

Besides this, he said, cotton farmers of the state anticipate a greater profit on their crop since 1929 because during the last few 30 days the price of cotton has steadily increased.

"For the first time since 1929," Mr. Dillon said, "conditions have actually been reported as booming in various sections of Louisiana. Practically all parts of the state are rapidly progressing in trade, employment and general prosperity."

Mayor Arnold Bernstein and Mayor C. C. Bell are co-chairmen of the Roosevelt campaign fund in Ouachita parish, and are now engaged in obtaining subscriptions to complete the $1,900 quota assigned to this parish. Over half of the amount has already been subscribed.

A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer, is the general chairman of the campaign for Louisiana.

DEMAND MADE FOR HIGHER WPA PAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Demands for increased WPA pay were presented to the White House and the relief administration today by the Workers Alliance of America after three of its leaders had been arrested in demonstrations near the executive mansion.

The arrests were made as 400 members of the alliance demonstrated in front of WPA headquarters after parading back and forth outside the White House in a vain attempt to present their proposals to President Roosevelt.

Released on bond, the demonstration leaders later succeeded in presenting their demands to Marvin McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, and Aubrey Williams, deputy works progress administrator.

McIntyre received their proposals for a 20 per cent increase in WPA wages and a minimum of $40 a month, but refused to let the demonstrators see President Roosevelt.

Those arrested were David Lasser, president of the alliance, Herbert Benjamin, organization secretary, and John Kelly, organizer for Lackawanna county, Pa. Lasser and Benjamin were charged with parading without a permit and Kelly with resisting arrest.

into the last seven week days before the balloting.

Despite a fine day, Mr. Roosevelt decided to remain at work in the seclusion of the White House instead of taking this afternoon off. He gave up plans for a week-end boat ride on the Potomac.

The president interrupted his dictating around noon to receive S. Davis Wilson, Republican mayor of Philadelphia, for a conference on a wide range of subjects, including what Wilson said were proposals for additional federal projects for that city.

Wilson, who headed the Pennsylvania Independent committee for Roosevelt in 1932, issued a formal statement in which he expressed gratitude for the president's unemployment policies. He added, however, that as mayor of Philadelphia he was "out of active politics."

Mr. Roosevelt will attend church services tomorrow. Tuesday night he will leave for Bayonne, N. J., to board a federal vessel for Bedloe's island in New York harbor, where the Statue of Liberty ceremonies will be held Wednesday afternoon.

CLARKS MAN SUCCUMBS; RITES SCHEDULED TODAY

Georg F. Bolton of Clarks died Saturday at 12:25 p. m.

Mr. Bolton had lived in Clarks for a number of years, where he was employed in the Louisiana Central Lumber company machine shop.

The funeral will be held at the home, Sunday afternoon with Rev. Paul Jones officiating. Burial will be at the Old Bethel cemetery.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Gunter of Clarks, Mrs. Frank Brickie, Jr., of Monroe; three sons, Knight, David, and Arthur Bolton all of Clarks; three brothers, Alford and Eric Bolton of California, and Harold Bolton of Mountain View, Mo.; one sister, Mrs. Sylvia Fashe of Des Moines, Ia., and seven grandchildren.

day like a dog," her mother said, and added that she could not blame her daughter, when in search of excitement, she went out with a friend, turned in a false fire alarm, and started a small fire. Many Cinderellas never find their prince or wear the glass slippers; turning in false fire alarms is a poor substitute.

IN CANADA, a thoughtless man died, leaving $750,000 all to go to the Toronto woman having the greatest number of children in a certain number of years. Nothing was said about quality, about the children's health, or the physical welfare of the mothers; only numbers were to count.

THE APPEAL was strongest for the poorest women, least able to care for large families. One mother, who hopes to win, said she would take only one-tenth of the $750,000, enough for any family. She would be surprised to learn how quickly $75,000 or $750,000 becomes too little.

One mother is planning a fine masoleum in memory of Charles Vance Millar; who gave the money.

That will, tempting women to bring into the world children that should not be here, might well have been set aside on grounds of public policy.

AMERICANS, permitted to inspect Germany's air preparations were amazed to find airplane factories scattered all over Germany, with two bigger in floor space and number of workers than all American factories put together.

ENGLAND SEEMS to have known about this, for, in addition to building 1,500 more fighting planes for herself, she is ordering planes from the United States, where large airplane factories are closed. Uncle Sam, if wise, would open them and keep them busy.

NEGRO PASTOR TO GIVE ANNUAL SERMON TODAY

Rev. G. C. Hayward, pastor of the St. James Negro Methodist church, corner of Cotton and Adams street, will preach his annual sermon this morning at the 11 o'clock service at the church.

Rev. Hayward is well known to both white and negro races here. His sermon this morning will close his conference year. Monday night he will leave for the annual negro Methodist conference at Lake Charles.

His congregation is reported to be expectantly hoping that the conference will appoint him to another year's pastorate of the Monroe church. Many letters were said to have been sent to the presiding bishop, Dr. A. P. Shaw, negro, of New Orleans, asking that he be reappointed to the Monroe charge.

Why BLACK-DRAUGHT is such a GOOD laxative

Give some thought to the laxative you take. Just as surely as you need a laxative, you need a good one. Constipation is not to be trifled with.

So many things about Black-Draught make it stand out as a "good laxative."

It is purely vegetable, composed of clean, dried, finely ground leaves and roots of medicinal plants which are widely used and scientifically approved for their good laxative qualities. Nothing else is added . . . no other substance to hold the mixture together . . . no artificial flavoring or coloring matter — nothing whatsoever is added.

Black-Draught does not upset the stomach, but benefits the lower part of the digestive system, stimulating the lower bowel and tending to revive its natural wave-like action.

This agreeable feature about Black-Draught is noteworthy. For instance, many persons have found that in long-standing cases of constipation it was not necessary for them to increase the size or frequency of the dose of Black-Draught in order to secure full evacuation. And many have found that by a slight change in the diet and an increase in the consumption of liquids, the dose of Black-Draught may be reduced until it is no longer necessary except for temporary upsets.

Black-Draught has been tried and tested in the severest test of all — time. Since it was established in 1840, many other laxatives have come and gone, but increasing numbers of people have found out for themselves the good things about Black-Draught, and they prefer it, keep it on hand and use it when needed. Millions of packages are required to fill the demand.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Democratic national committee today reported campaign expenditures of $1,324,416 between September 1 and October 21, bringing its total disbursements since June 1 to $2,333,256.

Campaign contributions since September 1 were set at $1,408,947. Earlier donations raised the total to $2,490,715.

The committee's statement, filed with the clerk of the house, showed a balance of $84,531.

The Republican national committee's report filed yesterday listed expenditures of $3,161,617 between September 1 and October 18 or a total of $4,049,428 since June 1. Republican receipts since June 1 totaled $5,038,419, including $2,987,765 since September 1.

The largest contribution to the Democratic fund was $100,000, given by the United Mine Workers of America.

Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh, donated $40,000, the largest individual contribution.

Individual contributions included: Curtis Bok, Philadelphia, $25,000; Emil Schwartzhaupt, New York City, $10,000; Bert Fish, Deland, Fla., $10,000; John J. Turtletaub, New York City, $10,000; Arthur Mullen, Omaha, Neb., $10,000; Lucious B. Manning, Chicago, $25,000; James W. Gerard, New York City, $15,000; Nicholas M. and sloping oval gallery of the big flag-draped coliseum. Radio spread his voice throughout the country and loud speakers into a nearby building where those unable to find places in the 15,000 seat coliseum filled 10,000 more out of sight of Landon.

Casting aside the League of Nations collective security system because "we cannot use war to end war," and the world court because it was a "political court," Landon rejected isolation as a means of keeping out of European war.

The Kansan's program "to avert war throughout the world:"

Promotion of mediation first, and then arbitration.

Restoration of "international confidence in the good faith of the American government," which he said had been "shattered by the contradictions of the present administration."

Cooperation, in the reduction of armaments.

Assistance to "lowering world-wide trade barriers and re-establishing healthy economic conditions."

Developing a neutrality policy which, while not "an absolute guarantee of peace," is "one of the great hopes," since isolation "is unfair to our own people and impossible."

Enactment of legislation for "taking the profits out of war."

"In these high resolves, God helping us," the Republican candidate said, "we shall protect America against war. And we shall do our full part to maintain the healing of peace throughout the world."

An automobile raced to the court building, and two hefty constables leaped off, swinging their truncheons.

First, however, Justice Hawke must hear several cases involving alleged breaking and entering, and poaching of rabbits.

Then, according to court custom, the divorce suits would be heard. Mrs. Simpson's heads a schedule of six.

First came two trumpeters, wearing the scarlet jackets and bear-skin bushies of the Coldstream guards.

Next, escorted by the red-robed lord mayor of Ipswich, came Mr. Justice Hawke, wearing the black, cocked hat and heavy gold chain of his office.

5,000 CATHOLICS TO BATTLE COMMUNISM

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 24.—(AP)—More than 5,000 Catholics, including school children and adults, will parade here tomorrow in a feast of Christ the King procession dedicated against Communism.

Services in historic Bienville square will end a day of demonstration. The procession will be led by Rev. T. J. Toolen, bishop of the Mobile diocese, which includes Alabama and west Florida.

The celebration is held annually but tomorrow will be the first time it has been specifically dedicated against Communism.

FOUR MEN INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Four men were injured, none seriously, early last night when an automobile in which they were riding was in a collision with a car occupied by Mrs. Milton Coverdale, wife of the Ouachita parish sheriff, and her two sons. The accident took place on the Ruston road about five miles from West Monroe, according to reports of the mishap.

The injured men were Shelton and Grady Averett of Calhoun, brothers, a cousin of the brothers, Herman Averett suffered cuts and bruises which required that he remain overnight at Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. The other three men were released from the clinic after receiving treatment for lesser injuries.

Mrs. Coverdale suffered shock. Her two sons, Milton, Jr., and Harold, were not injured.

Reports of the accident said the two cars were traveling in opposite directions and collided when the car occupied by the four men was passing another vehicle.

Milton Coverdale, Jr., was the driver of the Coverdale car. The driver of the other car was the fifth man in that vehicle. His name was not learned.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT

A negro who gave his name as Tommie Anderson, 33, was arrested last night by Police Officers H. E. Webb and H. E. Tolbert for allegedly stealing two suits of men's clothing from Abraham Brothers' store, 502 DeSiard street. The negro had the clothing in his possession when arrested by the officers near Five Points, was reported.

LOVE BYRD RETURNS

Love Byrd, young West Monroe man who has been in Detroit, Mich., and Chicago, Ill., for the past year and a half, has returned home on a visit to relatives. He had some experience as a radio singer and entertainer before leaving Monroe, and in the north continued his radio work as a part-time pursuit.

FASCIST PLANES

A dispatch from Lisbon today reported that an insurgent aviator, speaking for his comrades, had said:

"I hope that we shall not be forced to bomb Madrid, but if surrender is refused after an ultimatum which will be sent when El Escorial is captured, we will be compelled to blow the beautiful city to bits."

The three-pronged insurgent advance on Madrid tonight was pushed forward appreciably.

One column was nearing Mostoles, 10 miles southwest of Madrid; another was at Illescas, 13 miles south of the capital, while the third was driving on El Escorial.

With El Escorial taken, the insurgent high command said, the attack could be webbed together by cavalry units, and the final assault on Madrid's gates begun.

There was no confirmation of radio reports that the insurgents already had occupied Mostoles, virtually a suburb of the capital.

The government ordered mobilazation of all Republican party members between the ages of 20 and 35.

Laborers, organized into platoons, attempted to raise the spirits of the people by parading with picks and shovels.

"All stand together — we choose death before slavery!" they cried.

The Fascist attempt to strike fear into the city's residents through air raids and leaflet "ultimatums" apparently was bearing fruit.

PORTUGAL RELATIONS WITH MADRID END

(By Associated Press)

The Madrid government replied with charges Portuguese forces killed 40 Spanish sailors in a naval battle off the African coast and alleged that 15 German submarines came to the aid of Spanish Fascists; also that "German youths arrived at Seville in an open boat with 12 anti-aircraft guns" October 8.

Russia renewed her demand that the Spanish non-intervention committee authorize a blockade of Portuguese ports to halt alleged Fascist aid to the Spanish insurgents.

Moscow observers predicted Russia would offer technical aid to the Spanish Socialists as the first development of her declaration to follow whatever course she chooses in the civil war. Later, it was believed, Moscow might consider direct military aid to the beleaguered Madrid defenders.

Italy and Germany became more closely allied than ever with announcement of agreement to consult each other on any contemplated action to deal with European problems.

The agreement was the result of conversations between Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Mussolini, and Chancellor Hitler at the latter's mountain estate near Munich.

German recognition of the new Roman empire and conquest of Ethiopia, announced formally in Berlin and Rome, was regarded as an important part of the agreement.

And in Belgium there were rumblings of Fascist troubles. War veterans were to parade today (Sunday) in commemoration of the battle of Yser and Leon DeGrelle, sometimes called the "Belgian Hitler," summoned his followers to a mass meeting "to sweep out Premier Van Zeeland."

Belgian troops were held in barracks, ready to suppress any disorders. Officials hoped DeGrelle might call off his demonstration rather than defy openly the government.

Fascist war pilots reported bombardment of the suburbs of Madrid and said the Getafe and Cuatro Vientos airports near the Spanish capital apparently had been abandoned.

No government planes appeared to combat the Fascist armada and from this the insurgent aviators concluded that the Madrid pilots had revolted or that Madrid's planes were being used to convey officials from the city.

Terrified citizens of Madrid cleared cellars for hiding and scanned the skies with fear. Anti-aircraft guns were manned in 24-hour shifts.

Frightened women ran through the streets.

CANADA LIKELY

that the government was going to take a hand in it.

The Hepburn government is no tyro in dealing with baby situations. When Mrs. Dionne had her quintuplets, the government stepped in and, in the name of the king, adopted the babies as its own.

Today the government got ready to step into the mothers' marathon to prevent "endless litigation that would leave these poor mothers with nothing to show for what they have been through."

As evidence that the stork derby has developed into a "racket," the premier noted the bureau of vital statistics has been swamped "by women trying to get births registered that happened years ago," so as to qualify for the $500,000 fortune awaiting Toronto's most prolific mother.

"It is the duty of the government," the premier added, "to stop this fiasco. We certainly won't let it go to the courts."

The government sought to put a stop to the mothers' marathon three years ago. A bill was drafted to escheat the will and shunt the bequest to educational purposes. There was a loud cry, and the plan was dropped.

The lawyer died ten years ago, leaving the bulk of his estate to Toronto's most prolific mother. Decision day is next Saturday. If the government takes some action to prevent litigation, the winner may be determined promptly.

With only a week remaining, new claimants are appearing daily but nine babies is the most any of these so far has been able to muster.

The contest enters its last week with the mothers claiming the following positions:

Mrs. Matthew Kenny, 12.

Mrs. Pauline Clarke, Mrs. John Nagle and Mrs. Alice Timleck, 10 each.

about 8:30 o'clock Friday night, Holstead, Vining and several negroes employed by the gin were there and that each had been drinking. Vining denied that he had been drinking.

Young Holstead engaged in a fight with one of the negroes, Lenmo Tony, and Vining stepped in and forced Holstead from the building, striking him in the mouth with his fist.

Holstead later again entered the building and the foreman, after remonstrating with him, struck him behind the left ear with the heavy chisel, the witnesses said.

After a while the night watchman, Everett "Red" Brakefield, found Holstead lying near the gin entrance. Brakefield and two negroes picked Holstead up and carried him into the gin and placed him on the floor.

After the physician had examined Holstead, the nightwatchman returned to Holstead about midnight and felt of his pulse. Holstead apparently was sleeping soundly.

The next development was the discovery by Clay at 5:30 a. m. that Holstead was dead.

J. M. Holstead, father of the dead youth, swore out a warrant for Vining's arrest.

Young Holstead's funeral will be held Sunday.

He is survived by his parents, with whom he resided on their farm, and several brothers and sisters.

CRIME PRODUCES TOO MUCH LOOT

Boys, Oppressed By Wealth, Throw Part Of It Away

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—It's a strange story they're telling at the 104th street police station today, all about a fishing expedition in a sewer and a crime that yielded too much loot.

As Detectives Leo Hayes and Charles Kleber relate it, the crime was the theft of a purse by two boys who fled through Central park. The purse, said its owner Miss Marjory Rosenfeld, contained $105 in cash, an antique coral necklace and two diamond bracelets which she valued at more than $3,500.

Hayes and Kleber caught up with a pair of suspects, one 15 and the other 16, last night, and announced the officers, the two confessed, stressing particularly their astonishment and consternation when they beheld the purse's contents.

It was too much, they apparently decided, so the necklace went into the bushes, the bracelets into the sewer. They divided the cash.

An emergency squad, with hip boots and buckets, recovered the bracelets. The necklace wasn't found but the boys helped out with the money.

Each had bought a watch and an air rifle, one of them had purchased a bicycle, the other, oppressed by the worries of wealth, said he had tossed $20 through a window.

There remained a sizable gap.

"Well," he said, "we ate good."

CHURCH WILL LAY CORNERSTONE SOON

An interesting program has been arranged for Sunday, November 1, when the cornerstone of the city's newest church, that of Trinity Lutheran, will be laid in the Sherrouse addition.

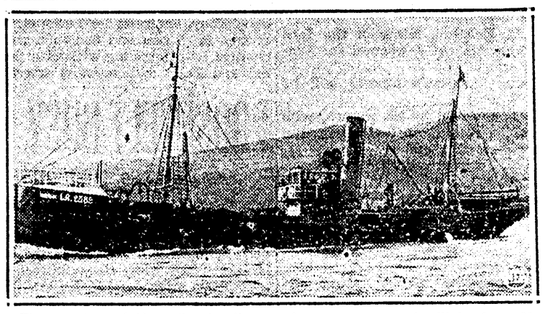

The edifice is being constructed to give a place of worship in a part of the city that now possesses no church edifice and also it will give improved facilities to the church, which is now using the Woodmen of the World hall, Jackson and Harrison streets.

The cornerstone laying will be held in the afternoon at an hour to be announced later. There will be musical selections and short talks made, a particularly good program being prepared.

Rev. Vernon C. Grosse is pastor of this church, which has had a good growth in membership since it was organized about six or seven years ago.

Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Probation After Death" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, October 25, 1936. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." (Ps. 23). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Universal salvation rests on progression and probation, and is unattainable without them." (p. 291).

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Holloway, Pastor

October is coming to a close. The month has been dedicated to congregational enlistment. Have you responded to the suggestions of the assembly and the folk charged with the local advancement? With your aid, this Lord's day can be made one we shall not soon forget. For His glory, even the Lord Jesus, shall we arise to our spiritual privileges and worship Him, both in the study of His word and the divine services? If you will attend the goals will be reached. Does God commune with His people? Can sinful humanity approach His throne? Is the heavenly door ajar, giving us the right to ask of Him favors, direction and strength? These are questions in which man is interested. The topic of our Sabbath morning meditation is "God Hears His People." Godliness is profitable, having promise of the world that now is, and the world that is to come. Godlikeness is a conscious and unconscious benediction. Spiritual integrity is always contributory to the glory of God. Joseph exemplifies these facts. Will you come with us Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, that his life may be further considered? You are always welcome at any of our congregational gatherings. Our aim is to strengthen, to encourage and to stimulate our worshipers in their search after reality. Will you worship with us this Sabbath?

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
George H. Dierlamm, Minister

DREW CHURCH—Church school at 10:30 a.m. Hiram Stansel, superintendent. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. The minister will use for his sermon topic "The Father's Business." The Christian Life conference will meet for a brief session after the morning worship.

UNION CHURCH—Church school at 10:15 a.m., L. D. Willis, superintendent. The Christian Life conference will meet at 6:30 p.m. Miss Juanita Wallace will address the conference on "Young People's Adventure with God." Evening worship at 7:30. Sermon topic, "Sharing with God."

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Apple
J. P. Lowrey, Minister

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of Jehovah." Bible school at 9:45 a.m. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Evening worship at 7 p.m. Note change in evening schedule. All services begin on time and end on time. "In diligence not slothful; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord."

ASSEMBLY OF GOD
Cypress and Crosley Streets
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

Rev. Charles C. Robinson, who is doing the preaching at the revival, will speak at both morning and evening services Sunday. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Evening worship at 7:30 o'clock. The revival services are gaining in interest daily and are announced to continue through the next two weeks. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. D. O. McDaniel, superintendent. Christ Ambassador class at 6:45 p.m., S. W. Hamilton, director.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Sunday is the twentieth Sunday after Trinity. Services are as follows: The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m. Church school will meet at 9:30 a.m., preceded by shortened matins. The 11 o'clock service will be given over to missionary topics, and will consist of sung Venite, Te Deum and Benedictus, hymns and sermon by the rector. Wednesday, the twenty-eighth, is the Feast of St. Simon and St. Jude. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 9 a.m. Friday is the day for the weekly requiem. The requiem Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 a.m. The Eucharistic Scriptures for St. Simon and St. Jude are of very great value and inspiration. The unity of the church is the subject presented in the Collect, as founded in the Apostolic doctrine and fellowship. The Epistle sets forth the sin of schism and the duty of "contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints." In the Holy Gospel, our Savior promises the spirit of truth to the church, and identifies the testimony of the apostles with the testimony of the Spirit; while He foretells that it shall be hated and opposed, and that its friends must suffer for the truth's sake. As we pray for unity, let us cultivate the spirit of unity, and drive out by the grace of God the narrow and secterian spirit which makes impossible an answer to our prayers. The church is opened daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest and pray.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina Lee Akin, Pastors

The Sunday school will convene at 9:45 a.m., with S. P. Quigley, superintendent, in charge. Rev. C. E. Bordelon, evangelist of Baton Rouge, will speak at both services. He will use for his morning subject "The Pure in Heart." "Crossing the Dead Line" will be the theme for the evening sermon. His special singing is an inspiration to all. The Junior N. Y. P. S. will meet at 5:30 p.m. with Mrs. H. M. Akin and Mrs. Wallas Joiner in charge. The Senior N. Y. P. S. will meet at 6:30 p.m. with Mr. E. L. Hoskins, president, in charge. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH
S. S. Holladay, Pastor.

Church school at 9:45 a.m., E. K. Reeves, general superintendent. Classes for all ages. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Young people's services at 6:45 p.m. Night preaching service at 7:30 o'clock. Prayer meeting and choir practice Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. It is only six more weeks until conference. All are urged to be present at these last six Sundays of the conference year.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Grammont and St. John Streets

The revival services at the First Baptist church are in full swing, with increasing interest and attendance. Dr. Daniel is certainly bringing some great Gospel messages. We are expecting Sunday to be one of the greatest days we have had in many a month. The Sunday school attendance should be a record one. The teachers and officers are working to that end. What a delight it was to see the enlarged adult assembly room filled last Sunday, and all the classes were well attended. The Men's Bible class were well pleased with their new quarters, as evidenced by an increased attendance. They can take care of a hundred men. Dr. Daniel announces as his subject for Sunday: "The Eyes of the Heart" and "Confessing Christ." The music under the direction of Mr. D. C. Black is a feature of the meeting. Mrs. Cornett presides at the piano and the orchestra is lending its assistance. The services go on all next week—9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. All are invited to attend the services.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Stone Avenue and South Third Street
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. There will be no service at 11 o'clock, due to the absence of the pastor, who is in attendance at the annual conference at Chatham. Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m. Evening service, as usual, at 7:30.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Woodman Building
Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church service at 10:45 a.m. The Gospel lesson for the twentieth Sunday after Trinity is Matt. 22, 1-14. These verses contain a parable spoken by our Savior, and are concluded by Him with these words: "Many are called, but few are chosen." The text for the sermon will be taken from the Epistle to the Ephesians 4, 8-16. All are cordially invited to worship with us.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
D. D. Cantrell, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 6:30 p.m. These organizations are in a contest to obtain more members in all classes and groups. Come, be on time and help boost the work. Rev. John Walters, missionary in this state more than 20 years, will preach at both services on the Lord's day and we hope to keep him throughout the week preaching from 7 to 8 each evening. Pass the word around and let us have a great day.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
St. John and Oak Streets
Crayton S. Brooks, Minister

Each Sunday recently has registered an increase in attendance. Let us all work for a still larger school Sunday. Classes for all grades and ages 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. The morning worship begins at 10:50 and closes at noon. Sermon, "Going Away From Christ." Special music. Communion service. Senior and intermediate Christian Endeavor will meet at 6:30 p.m. and close at 7:20 p.m. Senior group sponsored by Mrs. S. W. Raby; intermediate, by Hodge Mason. Evening worship at 7:30. Sermon, "The Transfiguration." Music led by the young people of the two Christian Endeavor groups.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe, La.
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor
O. J. Thompson, Educational Director

"The Three-Fold Word" is the subject announced by Rev. E. E. Huntsberry for the morning hour, 10:50. Message for the evening hour will be "The Power of the Gospel, the World Up Side Down." Visitors in the Twin Cities will receive a cordial greeting in The First Baptist church of West Monroe. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 6:30 p.m. Evening worship at 7:30 p.m. Prayer and praise service Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Choir rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
Jackson At Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

"A Great Purpose" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon on Sunday at 11 a.m. The evening services will begin at 7:15 during the coming months. You are cordially invited to worship with us at all services.

DAILY PLAY SCHOOL GAINS IN POPULARITY

The daily play school that is being conducted mornings from 9 to 11:15 o'clock, at the little building at the north of the First Presbyterian church, is gaining in popularity, stated the director, Miss Courtlan Johnston. The school is maintained by the municipal recreation department and there is no charge.

Children of ages four and five years are admitted and games, songs and other entertainment are provided. The first session was last Tuesday and the attendance is gaining but there can be still more children accommodated.

A puppet show and party were presented on Friday and made a hit with the children.

Miss Johnston is assisted by Miss Rose Bruno.

Although the University of Texas finished at the bottom of the Southwest conference football heap in 1935, advance ticket sales at start of this year's season were 40 per cent higher than a year ago.

HELEN KELLER'S TEACHER DIES

Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy, the woman who taught Helen Keller to speak and read, is dead—victim of a heart attack in her home at New York. Half a century ago she started her teachings that helped to make Miss Keller the world's most famous blind and deaf mute. They are shown together in their latest picture. Mrs. Macy sits on the right. FORD ACQUITTED IN SLAYING CASE

Union Parish Jury Returns Verdict At Farmerville Late Friday Night

FARMERVILLE, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—B. F. Ford, young Union parish resident, today was a free man following his acquittal late last night of a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal stabbing of Marshall Scarborough, 23-year-old former CCC enrollee.

A Union parish district court jury acquitted Ford after deliberating an hour and ten minutes last night.

The slaying occurred on the night of last August 1 at a dance four miles north of Farmerville. Scarborough died in a Monroe hospital. Ford claimed self defense.

Both men were members of well known Union parish families.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—It's a strange story they're telling at the 104th street police station today, all about a fishing expedition in a sewer and a crime that yielded too much loot.

As Detectives Leo Hayes and Charles Kleber relate it, the crime was the theft of a purse by two boys who fled through Central park. The purse, said its owner, Miss Marjory Rosenfeld, contained $105 in cash, an antique coral necklace and two diamond bracelets which she valued at more than $3,500.

Hayes and Kleber caught up with a pair of suspects, one 15 and the other 16, last night, and announced the officers, the two confessed, stressing particularly their astonishment and consternation when they beheld the purse's contents.

It was too much, they apparently decided, so the necklace went into the bushes, the bracelets into the sewer. They divided the cash.

An emergency squad, with hip boots and buckets, recovered the bracelets. The necklace wasn't found but the boys helped out with the money.

Each had bought a watch and an air rifle, one of them had purchased a bicycle, the other, oppressed by the worries of wealth, said he had tossed $20 through a window.

There remained a sizable gap.

The boys scratched their heads in thought. The 15-year-old one had an idea.

"Well," he said, "we ate good."

CHURCH WILL LAY CORNERSTONE SOON

An interesting program has been arranged for Sunday, November 1, when the cornerstone of the city's newest church, that of Trinity Lutheran, will be laid in the Sherrouse addition.

The edifice is being constructed to give a place of worship in a part of the city that now possesses no church edifice and also it will give improved facilities to the church, which is now using the Woodmen of the World hall, Jackson and Harrison streets.

The cornerstone laying will be held in the afternoon at an hour to be announced later. There will be musical selections and short talks made, a particularly good program being prepared.

Rev. Vernon C. Grosse is pastor of this church, which has had a good growth in membership since it was organized about six or seven years ago.

BOAT AND HORSE-CART HELP

The attempt of Kurt Bjorkvall to make a non-stop solo flight from New York to Sweden ended in his providential rescue 60 miles off the Irish coast where he was forced to land alongside the storm tossed trawler Imbrim after an epic battle with an Atlantic snow storm and threat of engine failure due to exhaustion of the oil supply. Bjorkvall (left above) is seen riding on a jaunting cart after being landed at Valencia, Ireland, by the Imbrim (below).

WAR DECLARED

Season on football coaches has been declared open earlier than usual this year.

Successive defeats by Pittsburgh and Northwestern were a little too much for Ohio State's Monday morning quarterbacks, and Francis Schmidt is getting his first taste of what Sam Willaman and Dr. John Wilce endured before him.

Vic Hanson has weathered many a storm at Syracuse, but is right now experiencing the roughest weather since he assumed command six years ago.

Although his initial campaign at Boston college barely has started, the veteran Gilmour Dobie's ears must be burning as they did during the fagend of his reign at Cornell.

More than a few North Carolina State supporters have given up on the idea of Hunk Anderson leading the Wolfpack to the leadership of the tough tobacco triangle.

The situation at St. Louis university, where Cecil Muellerleile holds forth, already has reached the petition stage.

Additional precincts no doubt will be heard from weekly.

It required the most protracted streak of disaster in Michigan's history to bring out dissenters, but, now that they have taken the floor, their indictments are bitterest of all.

They see considerable talent at Ann Arbor, where the current varsity was bolstered by what the coaches themselves called the second classiest batch of sophomores that ever wore the Maize and Blue. But save for a few moments this season, the Wolverines have been handcuffed on defense, the attack practically is non-existent, and the general football sense faulty.

Many successful Michigan teams had no running attack worthy of the name. But those clubs had something in forward passing.

They had punting and stern defensive qualities, and were intelligently quarterbacked. Of these fundamental Michigan characteristics, the only one to put in an appearance thus far this fall is punting. The 1936 edition has attempted preposterous plays.

Michigan is outcharged, and that is fatal. The line is strong, but is not resourceful. Any direct running attack will be stopped, but a complex, shifting, tricky attack baffles the forwards.

Michigan lacks coherence. Michigan players work alone, and the only reason they occasionally do well is because many of them are naturally good players. It goes without saying that Michigan will not again have a good team until the coaching has made 11 men into a co-ordinate machine.

Schmidt's critics trace his losses to two of the best teams in the nation to his failure to pick out a first string lineup and stick to it to some extent. In the Buckeyes' thriller with Notre Dame last autumn, and against Pitt this trip, they were beaten by blunders of second stringers while vastly more dependable athletes warmed the bench.

California, under Allison, bowed only to Stanford last fall. Allison, who finished out Navy Bill Ingram's term the year before, is hurt chiefly because the Bears were expected to race Washington and U. C. L. A. right down to the wire this season.

Hanson was optimistic at Syracuse, too, but Orangemen shudder to think of what is going to happen to their team, which still has to tackle Indiana, Columbia and Colgate. Little Baldwin-Wallace furnished the first tipoff on the vulnerability of what was reputed to be a strong Syracuse array, and then the Cornell sophomores came along to win the Big Red's first major engagement in three years.

Boston college, with a sophomore-packed lineup, repelled Michigan State in 1935, and an exuberant alumni felt that the great days of Major Frank Cavanaugh were to be revived overnight.

To date, North Carolina State has been repulsed by Davidson, Wake Forest and Manhattan, with "the Notre Dame system has been outmoded" as Andersen's only explanation.

Anderson admits that he hasn't the worst material in the land, and the Notre Dame system is doing quite well at Duquesne and other places.

St. Louis university material hardly rates in the championship class, but Billiken adherents yearn for the more glorious days of Chile Walsh.

Coaching is indeed a precarious profession.

SPORTS FODDER

Despite Penn's great upset victory over Princeton, metropolitan sportswriters humor that Lou Little of Columbia will succeed Coach Harvey Harman of the Quakers.

While it's early to predict, wise ones say Joe DiMaggio, the champion Yankees' rookie prize of 1936, will be the first of the spring holdouts.

A ruling by the P. G. A. that no sanctioned open golf tournament can offer a purse of less than $3,000 will increase the pot of gold for the professionals' winter tour, topped by the world's richest $10,000 Miami Biltmore Open.

With business bad since his defeat by Joe Louis, the reloaded Bomber, Jack Sharkey, is ready to throw in the sponge on his Boston bar.

In an effort to speed up the game, pro basketball rules will be changed to put the ball back in play by the opposing team under its own goal after successful foul tries instead of at a center jump.

When Bill Booth, Ohio State sophomore back, fumbled on his own four-yard line in the Northwestern game, Coach Francis Schmidt, mindful of the alumni, is said to have muttered: "There goes $12,000!"

A plan to continue the ice hockey rivalry between the United States and England, which started with the Olympics, is gaining headway.

The first golf course in Florida was built in 1908 at the Miami Country club and now the state has more than 150, all with grass greens.

Charles Atlas, noted physical culturist, in an effort to improve health conditions on New York's famous east side, is sponsoring gymnastic and wrestling classes for 5 to 7 year old youngsters.

Don Budge, generally conceded to be the No. 1 amateur tennis player of the United States, may for the first time compete in the deep south's major tournaments this winter.

Felix Caracciolo, Yale guard, was born in Italy and came to America at the age of 8.

Following the precedent set by Harvard and Yale, Princeton will compete for the first time next Easter in Bermuda's rugby week.

Babe Ruth, who once told Jake Ruppert "It's McCarthy or me," is friendly with his former employer again. And while it's been denied on all sides the report persists that the Bambino will get the Brooklyn managerial job.

Navy's new Bill Ingram, cartooned and described as the son of the former coach, instead is a nephew namesake, although his right father, Jonas Ingram, was once a Middie grid star, too.

Glenn Morris, Olympic decathlon winner, is taking a position with a radio chain.

Louisiana State and Washington State have added dextrose (corn sugar) to their training diet to offset tired muscles and fatigue.

The sale of golf equipment during the winter months has increased 80 per cent in the past five years.

The Chicago Cubs have fired Mascot Gilly Hasbrook, with the team for four years because the players figured he hoodooed them out of the National league championship.

WISNER BULLDOGS WHIP CLARKS ELEVEN, 27 TO 0

RIVERSIDE RAIDERS WANT TO SCHEDULE GRID GAMES

The Riverside Raiders, a football team composed of boys under 13 years of age, want a league formed of boys' teams of the city, but if that isn't possible, they'd like some opposition to keep them busy on Saturday mornings.

Ben Marshall is manager of the team and any squad which cares to play the Riverside Raiders should contact Ben at 414 North Third street, or by telephone at No. 2701. Allen Jones is captain of the team.

The Riverside Raiders have won all but one of their games so far this season. They play at the Georgia Tucker school grounds.

BUZZING TO A TOUCHDOWN

Marquette university's best bet for All-America honors this year is Captain Ray (Buzz) Bulvid, a triple-threat back who is one of the nation's greatest passers. Here is the elusive Buivid swinging his slippery hips in action. The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's will find this fellow a tough one to stop when they tangle with Marquette's Golden Avalanche in Chicago, Friday, October 30.

TENNESSEE'S VICTORY OVER DUKE FEATURES SOUTHERN FOOTBALL

(By Associated Press)

Mighty Duke's proud hopes of an undefeated season and a possible Rose Bowl bid crashed to earth Saturday before the unexpected might of Tennessee's underdog Volunteers in the feature engagement of the south's surprise-laden gridiron card.

The scrapping charges of Coach Bob Neyland removed the Blue Devils from the nation's select football company, 15 to 13, with a last minute stand to keep intact their record of no defeats at the hands of Wallace Wade's Southern conference crew on Tennessee soil.

Another Southeastern conference underdog, Vanderbilt, came up with dynamite in both fists to hold Georgia Tech's vaunted razzle dazzle in check in a thriller that ended in a scoreless tie.

Georgia's Bulldogs, cuffed about early in the game by the Auburn Plainsmen, generated surprising power in the last half to make it interesting for the Meagher-men who managed to hold their lead and win 20 to 13.

Tulane pounded North Carolina 21 to 7 in the second of the day's intersectional contests between foes of the Southern and Southeastern.

In another strictly family fracas, Kentucky nosed out Florida, 7 to 0, while Mississippi State, also a Southeastern conference entry, was battled to a scoreless tie by a Southwest conference foe, Texas Christian university.

Mississippi whipped Catholic university 14 to 0 in an intersectional battle.

Continuing their powerhouse offense, Louisiana State's eleven won from Arkansas 19 to 7.

Sewanee, seeking to break into the win column, had a good chance when the team rolled up 18 first downs to five for Tennessee Polytechnic, but the game ended in a 0-0 tie.

Alabama found a tough opponent in Loyola of New Orleans in a Friday matinee, the Crimson nosing out a 13 to 6 victory.

NEVILLE GOLFERS DEFEAT NATCHEZ

Tigers Hold 8-Point Advantage Over Mississippians In First Match

Neville High school's golf team got off to an excellent start yesterday when the Tiger divot diggers walloped the Blue Boys of Natchez, Miss., 11 1-2 to 3 1-2, in a match at Natchez.

Bobby Oliver, No. 1 player on the Neville team, was off form and dropped three points to Stanton Patterson, Natchez ace. The only other point won by the Blue Boys was copped by Clifford Tillman, who managed to save a half point in his match with Horace Reno, the Neville No. 4 man winning, 2 1-2 to 1-2.

In the other matches, Ben Downing, Jr., Neville No. 2, defeated Buddy Trimble of Natchez, 3 to 0, and G. C. Kelley, No. 3 for Neville, trimmed Marion Simon, 3 to 0.

In the only foursome match played, Oliver and Downing had a low-ball score of par 72 to win three more points for Neville.

Miss Harriet Boyle, sponsor of the Neville team, said last night that a return match will be played here with the Natchez team in the near future. The Tigers, who lost but one match last year, have several tourneys scheduled for the winter and spring months and prospects for another winning team are excellent.

Panthers Hop Back Into Limelight; Duke's Defeat Big Surprise

By Herbert W. Barker

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Pitt's infuriated Panthers handed Notre Dame its worst defeat in 22 years today as six other major teams were wiped off the undefeated list and Minnesota's Gophers, turning loose power for the first time this year, rolled up their 21st consecutive victory.

Upset by Duquesne in shocking fashion a week ago, Pitt gained double consolation this week. First Duquesne, unbeaten, untied and unscored upon, was knocked off by West Virginia Wesleyan last night. Then the Panthers routed Notre Dame 26-0, before a crowd of 70,000 to put themselves right back in the running for a possible Rose Bowl nomination.

Meanwhile, 50,000 watched Minnesota roll over Purdue, previously unbeaten, with a tricky lateral-passing offensive, 33 to 0. The Boilermakers put up a great fight for the first half but bowed to Minnesota's superior reserve strength in the end.

Joining Notre Dame and Purdue in the beaten list for the first time were St. Mary's of California, Michigan State, Duke, North Carolina and Catholic university.

St. Mary's lost a 7-6 decision to Fordham's Rams, who will take a perfect record into the battle with Pitt next Saturday. Michigan State bowed to Marquette's unbeaten array, 13-7, and Catholic was bowled over by Mississippi, 14-0.

Duke, which had looked like one of the country's finest, bowed to Tennessee's fighting Volunteers in a spectacular engagement at Knoxville, 15-13, while North Carolina was no match for Tulane's undefeated Green Wave and lost 21-7.

While Pitt and Fordham were upholding eastern intersectional prestige, Manhattan and Syracuse dropped decisions to foes from other sections. Manhattan was beaten by Detroit and Syracuse by Maryland, both by 20-0 counts.

Holy Cross, Villanova, Army, Yale and Georgetown remained in the undefeated class although the last named was tied by New York university 7-7. Holy Cross rallied in the final period to stop Carnegie Tech 7-0. Army rolled over Springfield, 33-0; Villanova stopped Boston university 25-7, and Yale trounced Rutgers, 28-0.

The eastern program otherwise was marked by Princeton's 7-0 conquest of Navy before 51,000; Dartmouth's 26-7 rout of Harvard; Penn's impressive 48-6 parade through Brown; a 41-0 victory for Colgate over Lafayette, and Cornell's 13-7 defeat of Penn State.

In the mid-west, Northwestern, which tackles Minnesota next week, kept its undefeated record intact by trampling Illinois, 13-2, as Michigan upset a favored Columbia eleven, 13-0, and Ohio State knocked over Indiana, 7-0. Nebraska took a strangle hold on Big Six honors by shipping Oklahoma, 14-0, as Missouri earned its first conference victory since 1932 in trimming Iowa State, 19-0, and Kansas State romped over Kansas, 26-6.

The Southwest conference race found Texas A. and M. still on top although held to a scoreless draw by Baylor. Rice unexpectedly upset Texas, 7-0, as Texas Christian and Mississippi State of the Southeastern conference battled to another scoreless tie.

In the south the defeat of Duke and North Carolina overshadowed the rest of the program but Vanderbilt surprised by holding Georgia Tech to a scoreless tie and Florida gave Ken-

COLGATE SHOWS POWER TO TROUNCE LAFAYETTE

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Hammering at the line with a powerful running attack and completing many passes, Colgate's Red Raiders re-bounded from the defeat of last week by trouncing Lafayette here this afternoon, 41-0, before a crowd of 4,000.

From the moment in the first quarter when Red Chesbro, tackle, scored on a tricky lateral pass play, the Raiders were complete masters of the battling but overpowered Leopards. The home team scored in every quarter and might have run up a larger score if Coach Andy Kerr had kept the first eleven in the game.

HOGS SCORE ONLY TOUCHDOWN AFTER FLUKE PASS PLAY

Tiger Miscue Gives Razorbacks Tally Late In Game; 15,000 Attend

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—On a heavy field, and in a steady rain, the Louisiana State university Tigers turned back the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, 19 to 7, before 15,000 fans at the Louisiana State fair today.

The Tigers' heavy running attack dominated the play, although Arkansas' aerial circus was in display throughout the Porkers made several long gains through the air. The lone touchdown of the Hogs was the results of a fluke play in the fourth period when the Louisiana State university safety man in batting down an Arkansas pass knocked the ball into the hands of Brown of the Hogs on the goal line and he stepped over the last stripe for a touchdown.

The Razorbacks' famous over-head plays carried them deep into the Louisiana State territory on several occasions but three times their advance was checked when heaves were intercepted. The Tigers scored twice in the second period and once in the third but in the fourth period they had to bring their best defensive plays into action to hold Arkansas to one touchdown.

The Tigers' running attack was featured by Pat Coffee, Cotton Milner and Bill Crass. The latter staged the most sensational sprint of the battle by racing 74 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

After a scoreless first period Louisiana State pushed over a touchdown early in the second period when Milner raced four yards around his own left end for a score. Later in the period Crass circled end for four yards and a touchdown.

The Tigers' final score came early in the third period. After a 15-yard penalty had sent the Bengals back, and Pinky Rohm had been held to a small gain, Crass went off tackle, cut back past several enemy players and then hit out down the sideline for the goal. He was trailed for 74 yards by Keen of the Hogs.

Although the battle was waged on a slippery field the Hogs took exceptional chances with their forward passing and attempted 33 heaves. They completed 16 with the result that they scored 15 first downs to the Tigers' ten, and had a gain of 234 yards to Louisiana State's 215.

The starting lineup.

RAYVILLE NOSES OUT MANGHAM TEAM, 8-7

MANGHAM, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—For the first time since 1931 the Rayville High school Hornets defeated the Dragons of Mangham High school here yesterday, 8 to 7, in a hard fought battle.

A 106-yard touchdown run by Moon, local halfback, featured the day's performance and gave the Dragons their only score. Moon took a kick-off standing behind his own goal line in the third period and ran it back the entire length of the field to score. Lee Booth added the extra point through the line.

A pass, Whatley to Schooner, gave the Hornets a touchdown just before the end of the first half. Their try for the extra point failed, but the visitors got the margin of victory on a safety when Stathum, Rayville end, caught McConnell behind the locals' goal.

The ace ball carriers of both teams, Ike Meador, of Rayville, and D. Booth, of Mangham, were hurt early in the game and neither was able to play afterwards. Cochran and Thomas O'Neal played good in the visitors' line with Silk playing best in the backfield. Jones, Thomason, Moon, L. Booth and Grant played best for the locals.

PENN EASILY DEFEATS BROWN ELEVEN, 48 TO 6

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Precise in the air and ponderous on the ground, the University of Pennsylvania football team put aside Brown university today, 48 to 6, before 35,000 at Franklin field.

Piling up two touchdowns in each of the first three periods, Penn's backfield functioned behind the powerful line that dashed Princeton's hopes a week ago.

Janazzo-Garcia Winner To Meet Barney Ross Next Month

By John J. Romano

Champion Barney Ross is a mystified young man. Seeing is believing is a rule he learned was true in the days of his childhood in the Irish section of Chicago's West Side. Barney soon learned that a bluff was no good unless you were willing to back it up with your fists. In this case Barney cannot believe the printed copy of a check published in a month-old copy of an Australian paper, calling for payment of a sum of $42,500 for him to defend his title against Slugger Jack Carroll in December.

Ross does not believe it because he does not carry so much money around in his pocket and, furthermore, his bankroll fails to disclose an entry of that sort since his last Jimmy McLarnin fight—and that was nearly two years ago. The newspaper goes on further to state that Ross was on the high seas. Barney is certain his feet are on terra firma, and if there is any exhiliaration in his step it is because a real contender for his title will be named next Friday when Ceferino Garcia and Izzy Janazzo step out 15 rounds, or less, for the right to meet him on November 27. Both fights will take place at Madison Square Garden.

Janazzo Has Good Record

Janazzo made his first bid for a Ross fight when he faced Cleto Locatelli last February. An injured hand prevented him from holding off the vigorous charges of the Italian champion in the late rounds and it appeared as though the former Birmingham battler was back where he started from. Billy Colebron's victory over Locatelli enabled Izzy to reach back into the scramble. He was penalized for his victory over the Rockford, Ill., boxer by having to accept the mean end of the purse, which did not cover his training expenses. Came then two cheap fights with Steve Halaiko and Johnny Jadick and Janazzo was all set for Gustave Eder, knockout conquerer of Jimmy Leto. The odds were against the Italian-American because he had never traveled the 15-round route, while Eder, welterweight champion of Europe by right, not by claim, had traversed the long distance on a number of occasions. That and the ability of the German to shed punishment and come back with a short inside right lead which spelled curtains, made Eder a distinct favorite when the boys squared off.

Janazzo fooled Eder by boxing entirely different than his usual style. Izzy's manager, Guy Anselmo, had made a thorough study of the German's style and drilled his boy into laying back and continually pumping a left hand into Eder's face. When Janazzo figured to tire he drew on his reserves and plunged in with trip-hammer vigor as Eder attempted to take the offensive. The result was as brief and heartening to those who watched the uphill struggle of Janazzo for welterweight titular recognition.

"Janazzo the winner!" Nothing more could be said and this was approved by the crowd who sat in to see Eder step into a dominating position for the welterweight struggle by reason of his good work in this country. Janazzo beat him to the punch and the Garcia fight. If past performances count for anything Janazzo will also step into the Ross fight and the distinction that goes with a titular scrap.

Has Met Barney Twice

Garcia is not a new name any way you look at it. The rugged Filipino has been fighting two years longer than Janazzo and boasts the best wap-lop of his weight in the world. Last year Garcia had Barney Ross on the floor for the count and losing the decision went up to Vancouver, B. C., where he gave the Canadian champion, Gordon Wallace, more trouble than the world's champion did within the boundaries of the squared circle. Another match with Ross found the Filipino on the losing end. It seems the Windy City counter-hitter learned plenty about Garcia in their previous meeting and knew how to steer clear of the sleep potion the Filipino carried in his right.

Taking up from the Ross defeat Garcia seems to have picked up much better than he had before getting the big shot. Young Peter Jackson was Garcia's first victim. Leon Zorrita, a highly touted puncher, was next on the list and he, too, went to sleep as did the Mexican welterweight champion, Kid Azteca, in five rounds.

Making his debut in New York Garcia was handed a tough nut in Cleto Locatelli. The Italian was not only badly outmauled and outpunched, but suffered severe cuts over the eyes which put him into retirement for a lengthy period. A hard walloper is this Filipino who outdoes his countrymen in that he is the biggest of his race to make good in the fighting game. Instead of a well-muscled little fellow with plenty of speed to burn, Garcia is well set up and has plenty of zip on his right.

Janazzo is distinctly the opposite type. None of the swagger, bulging ridges over his eyes and loose-tongued characteristics of the fighter as the fans learn to know him. Rather a face with a studious expression, denoting more of the poet, a thinker and a doer. Quiet in demeanor and gentlemanly inside and outside of the ring, Janazzo failed to impress as a contender for the title. Asking no favors and fighting his way along by dint of determination and ability to hit the other fellow two wallops in exchange for one brings him to the big test and there are those, the writer included, who think Ceferino Garcia will get a taste of a multidinous rain of leather Friday evening.

WAR DECLARED

Season on football coaches has been declared open earlier than usual this year.

Successive defeats by Pittsburgh and Northwestern were a little too much for Ohio State's Monday morning quarterbacks, and Francis Schmidt is getting his first taste of what Sam Willaman and Dr. John Wilce endured before him.

Vic Hanson has weathered many a storm at Syracuse, but is right now experiencing the roughest weather since he assumed command six years ago.

Although his initial campaign at Boston college barely has started, the veteran Gilmour Dobie's ears must be burning as they did during the fag-end of his reign at Cornell.

More than a few North Carolina State supporters have given up on the idea of Hunk Anderson leading the Wolfpack to the leadership of the tough tobacco triangle.

The situation at St. Louis university, where Cecil Muellerleile holds forth, already has reached the petition stage.

Additional precincts no doubt will be heard from weekly.

It required the most protracted streak of disaster in Michigan's history to bring out dissenters, but, now that they have taken the floor, their indictments are bitterest of all.

They see considerable talent at Ann Arbor, where the current varsity was bolstered by what the coaches themselves called the second classiest batch of sophomores that ever wore the Maize and Blue. But save for a few moments this season, the Wolverines have been handcuffed on defense, the attack practically is non-existent, and the general football sense faulty.

Many successful Michigan teams had no running attack worthy of the name. But those clubs had something in forward passing.

They had punting and stern defensive qualities, and were intelligently quarterbacked. Of these fundamental Michigan characteristics, the only one to put in an appearance thu far this fall is punting. The 1936 edition has attempted preposterous plays.

Michigan is outcharged, and that is fatal. The line is strong, but is not resourceful. Any direct running attack will be stopped, but a complex, shifting, tricky attack baffles the forwards.

Michigan lacks coherence. Michigan players work alone, and the only reason they occasionally do well is because many of them are naturally good players. It goes without saying that Michigan will not again have a good team until the coaching has made 11 men into a co-ordinate machine.

Schmidt's critics trace his losses to two of the best teams in the nation to his failure to pick out a first string lineup and stick to it to some extent. In the Buckeyes' thriller with Notre Dame last autumn, and against Pitt this trip, they were beaten by blunders of second stringers while vastly more dependable athletes warmed the bench.

California, under Allison, bowed only to Stanford last fall. Allison, who finished out Navy Bill Ingram's term the year before, is hurt chiefly because the Bears were expected to race Washington and U. C. L. A. right down to the wire this season.

Hanson was optimistic at Syracuse, too, but Orangemen shudder to think of what is going to happen to their team, which still has to tackle Indiana, Columbia and Colgate. Little Baldwin-Wallace furnished the first tipoff on the vulnerability of what was reputed to be a strong Syracuse array, and then the Cornell sophomores came along to win the Big Red's first major engagement in three years.

Boston college, with a sophomore-packed lineup, repelled Michigan State in 1935, and an exuberant alumni felt that the great days of Major Frank Cavanaugh were to be revived overnight.

To date, North Carolina State has been repulsed by Davidson, Wake Forest and Manhattan, with "the Notre Dame system has been outmoded" as Anderson's only explanation.

Anderson admits that he hasn't the worst material in the land, and the Notre Dame system is doing quite well at Duquesne and other places.

St. Louis university material hardly rates in the championship class, but Billiken adherents yearn for the more glorious days of Chile Walsh.

Coaching is indeed a precarious profession.

SPORTS FODDER

Despite Penn's great upset victory over Princeton, metropolitan sportswriters humor that Lou Little of Columbia will succeed Coach Harvey Harman of the Quakers.

While it's early to predict, wise ones say Joe DiMaggio, the champion Yankees' rookie prize of 1936, will be the first of the spring holdouts.

A ruling by the P. G. A. that no sanctioned open golf tournament can offer a purse of less than $3,000 will increase the pot of gold for the professionals' winter tour, topped by the world's richest $10,000 Miami Biltmore Open.

With business bad since his defeat by Joe Louis, the reloaded Bomber, Jack Sharkey, is ready to throw in the sponge on his Boston bar.

In an effort to speed up the game, pro basketball rules will be changed to put the ball back in play by the opposing team under its own goal after successful foul tries instead of at a center jump.

When Bill Booth, Ohio State sophomore back, fumbled on his own four-yard line in the Northwestern game, Coach Francis Schmidt, mindful of the alumni, is said to have muttered: "There goes $12,000!"

A plan to continue the ice hockey rivalry between the United States and England, which started with the Olympics, is gaining headway.

The first golf course in Florida was built in 1908 at the Miami Country club and now the state has more than 150, all with grass greens.

Charles Atlas, noted physical culturist, in an effort to improve health conditions on New York's famous east side, is sponsoring gymnastic and wrestling classes for 5 to 7 year old youngsters.

Don Budge, generally conceded to be the No. 1 amateur tennis player of the United States, may for the first time compete in the deep south's major tournaments this winter.

Felix Caracciolo, Yale guard, was born in Italy and came to America at the age of 8.

Following the precedent set by Harvard and Yale, Princeton will compete for the first time next Easter in Bermuda's rugby week.

Babe Ruth, who once told Jake Ruppert "It's McCarthy or me," is friendly with his former employer again. And while it's been denied on all sides the report persists that the Bambino will get the Brooklyn managerial job.

Navy's new Bill Ingram, cartooned and described as the son of the former coach, instead is a nephew namesake, although his right father, Jonas Ingram, was once a Middie grid star, too.

Glenn Morris, Olympic decathlon winner, is taking a position with a radio chain.

Louisiana State and Washington State have added dextrose (corn sugar) to their training diet to offset tired muscles and fatigue.

The sale of golf equipment during the winter months has increased 80 per cent in the past five years.

The Chicago Cubs have fired Mascot Gilly Hasbrook, with the team for four years because the players figured he hoodooed them out of the National league championship.

RIVERSIDE RAIDERS WANT TO SCHEDULE GRID GAMES

The Riverside Raiders, a football team composed of boys under 13 years of age, want a league formed of boys' teams of the city, but if that isn't possible, they'd like some opposition to keep them busy on Saturday mornings.

Ben Marshall is manager of the team and any squad which cares to play the Riverside Raiders should contact Ben at 414 North Third street, or by telephone at No. 2701. Allen Jones is captain of the team.

The Riverside Raiders have won all but one of their games so far this season. They play at the Georgia Tucker school grounds.

WISNER BULLDOGS WHIP CLARKS ELEVEN, 27 TO 0

BUZZING TO A TOUCHDOWN

Marquette university's best bet for All-America honors this year is Captain Ray (Buzz) Buivid, a triple-threat back who is one of the nation's greatest passers. Here is the elusive Buivid swinging his slippery hips in action. The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's will find this fellow a tough one to stop when they tangle with Marquette's Golden Avalanche in Chicago, Friday, October 30.

TENNESSEE'S VICTORY OVER DUKE FEATURES SOUTHERN FOOTBALL

(By Associated Press)

Mighty Duke's proud hopes of an undefeated season and a possible Rose Bowl bid crashed to earth Saturday before the unexpected might of Tennessee's underdog Volunteers in the feature engagement of the south's surprise-laden gridiron card.

The scrapping charges of Coach Bob Neyland removed the Blue Devils from the nation's select football company, 15 to 13, with a last minute stand to keep intact their record of no defeats at the hands of Wallace Wade's Southern conference crew on Tennessee soil.

Another Southeastern conference underdog, Vanderbilt, came up with dynamite in both fists to hold Georgia Tech's vaunted razzle dazzle in check in a thriller that ended in a scoreless tie.

Georgia's Bulldogs, cuffed about early in the game by the Auburn Plainsmen, generated surprising power in the last half to make it interesting for the Meagher-men who managed to hold their lead and win 20 to 13.

Tulane pounded North Carolina 21 to 7 in the second of the day's interconference contests between foes of the Southern and Southeastern.

In another strictly family fracas, Kentucky nosed out Florida, 7 to 0, while Mississippi State, also a Southeastern conference entry, was battled to a scoreless tie by a Southwest conference foe, Texas Christian university.

Mississippi whipped Catholic university 14 to 0 in an intersectional battle.

Continuing their powerhouse offense, Louisiana State's eleven won from Arkansas 19 to 7.

Sewanee, seeking to break into the win column, had a good chance when the team rolled up 18 first downs to five for Tennessee Polytechnic, but the game ended in a 0-0 tie.

Alabama found a tough opponent in Loyola of New Orleans in a Friday matinee, the Crimson nosing out a 13 to 6 victory.

NEVILLE GOLFERS DEFEAT NATCHEZ

Neville High school's golf team got off to an excellent start yesterday when the Tiger divot diggers walloped the Blue Boys of Natchez, Miss., 11 1-2 to 3 1-2, in a match at Natchez.

Bobby Oliver, No. 1 player on the Neville team, was off form and dropped three points to Stanton Patterson, Natchez ace. The only other point won by the Blue Boys was copped by Clifford Tillman, who managed to save a half point in his match with Horace Reno, the Neville No. 4 man winning, 2 1-2 to 1-2.

In the other matches, Ben Downing, Jr., Neville No. 2, defeated Buddy Trimble of Natchez, 3 to 0, and G. C. Kelley, No. 3 for Neville, trimmed Marion Simon, 3 to 0.

In the only foursome match played, Oliver and Downing had a low-ball score of par 72 to win three more points for Neville.

Miss Harriet Boyle, sponsor of the Neville team, said last night that a return match will be played here with the Natchez team in the near future. The Tigers, who lost but one match last year, have several tourneys scheduled for the winter and spring months and prospects for another winning team are excellent.

DOPE SCRAMBLED AGAIN ON SEVERAL FOOTBALL FRONTS

Panthers Hop Back Into Limelight; Duke's Defeat Big Surprise

By Herbert W. Barker

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Pitt's infuriated Panthers handed Notre Dame its worst defeat in 22 years today as six other major teams were wiped off the undefeated list and Minnesota's Gophers, turning loose power for the first time this year, rolled up their 21st consecutive victory.

Upset by Duquesne in shocking fashion a week ago, Pitt gained double consolation this week. First Duquesne, unbeaten, untied and unscored upon, was knocked off by West Virginia Wesleyan last night. Then the Panthers routed Notre Dame 26-0, before a crowd of 70,000 to put themselves right back in the running for a possible Rose Bowl nomination.

Meanwhile, 50,000 watched Minnesota roll over Purdue, previously unbeaten, with a tricky lateral-passing offensive, 33 to 0. The Boilermakers put up a great fight for the first half but bowed to Minnesota's superior reserve strength in the end.

Joining Notre Dame and Purdue in the beaten list for the first time were St. Mary's of California, Michigan State, Duke, North Carolina and Catholic university.

St. Mary's lost a 7-6 decision to Fordham's Rams, who will take a perfect record into the battle with Pitt next Saturday. Michigan State bowed to Marquette's unbeaten array, 13-7, and Catholic was bowled over by Mississippi, 14-0.

Duke, which had looked like one of the country's finest, bowed to Tennessee's fighting Volunteers in a spectacular engagement at Knoxville, 15-13, while North Carolina was no match for Tulane's undefeated Green Wave and lost 21-7.

While Pitt and Fordham were upholding eastern intersectional prestige, Manhattan and Syracuse dropped decisions to foes from other sections. Manhattan was beaten by Detroit and Syracuse by Maryland, both by 20-0 counts.

Holy Cross, Villanova, Army, Yale and Georgetown remained in the undefeated class although the last named was tied by New York university 7-7. Holy Cross rallied in the final period to stop Carnegie Tech 7-0. Army rolled over Springfield, 33-0; Villanova stopped Boston university, 25-7, and Yale trounced Rutgers, 28-0.

The eastern program otherwise was marked by Princeton's 7-0 conquest of Navy before 51,000; Dartmouth's 26-7 rout of Harvard; Penn's impressive 48-6 parade through Brown; a 41-0 victory for Colgate over Lafayette, and Cornell's 13-7 defeat of Penn State.

In the mid-west, Northwestern, which tackles Minnesota next week, kept its undefeated record intact by trampling Illinois, 13-2, as Michigan upset a favored Columbia eleven, 13-0, and Ohio State knocked over Indiana, 7-0. Nebraska took a strangle hold on Big Six honors by shipping Oklahoma, 14-0, as Missouri earned its first conference victory since 1932 in trimming Iowa State, 10-0, and Kansas State romped over Kansas, 26-6.

The Southwest conference race found Texas A. and M. still on top although held to a scoreless draw by Baylor. Rice unexpectedly upset Texas, 7-0, as Texas Christian and Mississippi State of the Southeastern conference battled to another scoreless tie.

In the south the defeat of Duke and North Carolina overshadowed the rest of the program but Vanderbilt surprised by holding Georgia Tech to a scoreless tie and Florida gave Ken-

Tiger Miscue Gives Razorbacks Tally Late In Game; 15,000 Attend

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—On a heavy field, and in a steady rain, the Louisiana State university Tigers turned back the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, 19 to 7, before 15,000 fans at the Louisiana State fair today.

The Tigers' heavy running attack dominated the play, although Arkansas' aerial circus was in display throughout the Porkers made several long gains through the air. The lone touchdown of the Hogs was the results of a fluke play in the fourth period when the Louisiana State university safety man in batting down an Arkan[illegible]ss knocked the ball into the hands of Brown of the Hogs on the goal line and he stepped over the last stripe for a touchdown.

The Razorbacks' famous over-head plays carried them deep into the Louisiana State territory on several occasions but three times their advance was checked when heaves were intercepted. The Tigers scored twice in the second period and once in the third but in the fourth period they had to bring their best defensive plays into action to hold Arkansas to one touchdown.

The Tigers' running attack was featured by Pat Coffee, Cotton Milner and Bill Crass. The latter staged the most sensational sprint of the battle by racing 74 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

After a scoreless first period Louisiana State pushed over a touchdown early in the second period when Milner raced four yards around his own left end for a score. Later in the period Crass circled end for four yards and a touchdown.

The Tigers' final score came early in the third period. After a 15-yard penalty had sent the Bengals back, and Pinky Rohm had been held to a small gain, Crass went off tackle, cut back past several enemy players and then hit out down the sideline for the goal. He was trailed for 74 yards by Keen of the Hogs.

Although the battle was waged on a slippery field the Hogs took exceptional chances with their forward passing and attempted 33 heaves. They completed 16 with the result that they scored 15 first downs to the Tigers' ten, and had a gain of 234 yards to Louisiana State's 215.

The starting lineup:

RAYVILLE NOSES OUT MANGHAM TEAM, 8-7

MANGHAM, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—For the first time since 1931 the Rayville High school Hornets defeated the Dragons of Mangham High school here yesterday, 8 to 7, in a hard fought battle.

A 106-yard touchdown run by Moon, local halfback, featured the day's performance and gave the Dragons their only score. Moon took a kick-off standing behind his own goal line in the third period and ran it back the entire length of the field to score. Lee Booth added the extra point through the line.

A pass, Whatley to Schooner, gave the Hornets a touchdown just before the end of the first half. Their try for the extra point failed, but the visitors got the margin of victory on a safety when Stathum, Rayville end, caught McConnell behind the locals' goal.

The ace ball carriers of both teams, Ike Meador, of Rayville, and D. Booth, of Mangham, were hurt early in the game and neither was able to play afterwards. Cochran and Thomas O'Neal played good in the visitors' line with Silk playing best in the backfield. Jones, Thomason, Moon, L. Booth and Grant played best for the locals.

COLGATE SHOWS POWER TO TROUNCE LAFAYETTE

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Hammering at the line with a powerful running attack and completing many passes, Colgate's Red Raiders re-bounded from the defeat of last week by trouncing Lafayette here this afternoon, 41-0, before a crowd of 4,000.

From the moment in the first quarter when Red Chesbro, tackle, scored on a tricky lateral pass play, the Raiders were complete masters of the battling but overpowered Leopards. The home team scored in every quarter and might have run up a larger score if Coach Andy Kerr had kept the first eleven in the game.

PENN EASILY DEFEATS BROWN ELEVEN, 48 TO 6

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Precise in the air and ponderous on the ground, the University of Pennsylvania football team put aside Brown university today, 48 to 6, before 35,000 at Franklin field.

Piling up two touchdowns in each of the first three periods, Penn's backfield functioned behind the powerful line that dashed Princeton's hopes a week ago.

Janazzo-Garcia Winner To Meet Barney Ross Next Month

By John J. Romano

Champion Barney Ross is a mystified young man. Seeing is believing is a rule he learned was true in the days of his childhood in the Irish section of Chicago's West Side. Barney soon learned that a bluff was no good unless you were willing to back it up with your fists. In this case Barney cannot believe the printed copy of a check published in a month-old copy of an Australian paper, calling for payment of a sum of $42,500 for him to defend his title against Slugger Jack Carroll in December.

Ross does not believe it because he does not carry so much money around in his pocket and, furthermore, his bankroll fails to disclose an entry of that sort since his last Jimmy McLarnin fight—and that was nearly two years ago. The newspaper goes on further to state that Ross was on the high seas. Barney is certain his feet are on terra firma, and if there is any exhiliaration in his step it is because a real contender for his title will be named next Friday when Ceferino Garcia and Izzy Janazzo step out 15 rounds, or less, for the right to meet him on November 27. Both fights will take place at Madison Square Garden.

Janazzo Has Good Record

Janazzo made his first bid for a Ross fight when he faced Cleto Locatelli last February. An injured hand prevented him from holding off the vigorous charges of the Italian champion in the late rounds and it appeared as though the former Birmingham battler was back where he started from. Billy Colebron's victory over Locatelli enabled Izzy to reach back into the scramble. He was penalized for his victory over the Rockford, Ill., boxer by having to accept the mean end of the purse, which did not cover his training expenses. Came then two cheap fights with Steve Halaiko and Johnny Jadick and Janazzo was all set for Gustave Eder, knockout conquerer of Jimmy Leto. The odds were against the Italian-American because he had never traveled the 15-round route, while Eder, welterweight champion of Europe by right, not by claim, had traversed the long distance on a number of occasions. That and the ability of the German to shed punishment and come back with a short inside right lead which spelled curtains, made Eder a distinct favorite when the boys squared off.

Janazzo fooled Eder by boxing entirely different than his usual style. Izzy's manager, Guy Anselmo, had made a thorough study of the German's style and drilled his boy into laying back and continually pumping a left hand into Eder's face. When Janazzo figured to tire he drew on his reserves and plunged in with trip-hammer vigor as Eder attempted to take the offensive. The result was as brief and heartening to those who watched the uphill struggle of Janazzo for welterweight titular recognition.

"Janazzo the winner!" Nothing more could be said and this was approved by the crowd who sat in to see Eder step into a dominating position for the welterweight struggle by reason of his good work in this country. Janazzo beat him to the punch and the Garcia fight. If past performances count for anything Janazzo will also step into the Ross fight and the distinction that goes with a titular scrap.

Has Met Barney Twice

Garcia is not a new name any way you look at it. The rugged Filipino has been fighting two years longer than Janazzo and boasts the best waplop of his weight in the world. Last year Garcia had Barney Ross on the floor for the count and losing the decision went up to Vancouver, B. C., where he gave the Canadian champion, Gordon Wallace, more trouble than the world's champion did within the boundaries of the squared circle. Another match with Ross found the Filipino on the losing end. It seems the Windy City counter-hitter learned plenty about Garcia in their previous meeting and knew how to steer clear of the sleep potion the Filipino carried in his right.

Taking up from the Ross defeat Garcia seems to have picked up much better than he had before getting the big shot. Young Peter Jackson was Garcia's first victim. Leon Zorrita, a highly touted puncher, was next on the list and he, too, went to sleep as did the Mexican welterweight champion, Kid Azteca, in five rounds.

Making his debut in New York Garcia was handed a tough nut in Cleto Locatelli. The Italian was not only badly outmauled and outpunched, but suffered severe cuts over the eyes which put him into retirement for a lengthy period. A hard walloper is this Filipino who outdoes his countrymen in that he is the biggest of his race to make good in the fighting game. Instead of a well-muscled little fellow with plenty of speed to burn, Garcia is well set up and has plenty of zip on his right.

Janazzo is distinctly the opposite type. None of the swagger, bulging ridges over his eyes and loose-tongued characteristics of the fighter as the fans learn to know him. Rather a face with a studious expression, denoting more of the poet, a thinker and a doer. Quiet in demeanor and gentlemanly inside and outside of the ring, Janazzo failed to impress as a contender for the title. Asking no favors and fighting his way along by dint of determination and ability to hit the other fellow two wallops in exchange for one brings him to the big test and there are those, the writer included, who think Ceferino Garcia will get a taste of a multidinous rain of leather Friday evening.

TULANE TROUNCES NORTH CAROLINA, 21 TO 7

GREENIES FLASH STRONG OFFENSE TO CRUSH HEELS

Bryan, Mattis And Andrews Lead Wave In Impressive Triumph

By Ed Desobry

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Tulane university's superior forward wall and a pass attack that clicked with precision gave it a well deserved 21 to 7 victory over North Carolina before 18,000 spectators here today.

Brilliant passes accounted for two of Tulane's scores and the third was gained by sheer power. North Carolina blocked a Tulane punt behind the goal for its touchdown.

Both teams repeatedly threatened, with Crowell Little and Tom Burnette carrying the Carolina offensive and "Bucky" Bryan, Bill Mattis and John Andrews furnishing the Tulane steam.

Tulane got to work at the opening whistle, took the ball on the 35, and worked to the Carolina 42, where Bryan tossed a beautiful pass to Schneidau, who was downed on the four-yard line. Andrews cut off left tackle for the score and Moss kicked the extra point.

After a punting duel, with Carolina's Burnette holding the advantage over Bryan of Tulane, Tulane, in a march featured by Moss' catch of a pass on the seven yard line, got to the half yard mark but lost the ball.

A little later, Little took a punt on his 20 and raced 53 yards, calling directions to his blockers along the way, to place the ball on the Tulane 27. Tulane stiffened and Carolina lost the ball on the five yard line, with only a yard to go for a first down.

When the second half opened, Bryan fumbled Carolina's kickoff, Carolina recovered and then Bryan intercepted a pass on his own six yard line. Buck McCarn, substitute end, blocked Mattis' attempted punt and Bershak, the other Tar Heel wing man, fell on the ball for a touchdown. Burnette kicked the extra point.

Near the end of the third period, Bryan threw a 25 yard pass to Schneidau who seemed to catch passes in any spot today, and Schneidau ran through a clear field to a score. Moss again kicked for the extra point.

In a drive featured by Andrews' 25 yard run from the Tulane 12 yard line, the locals put the ball on the Carolina 3 from where Andrews went through left tackle for the score. Moss' placement was good again.

The game ended with Carolina passing desperately.

TECH FANS PLAN TULANE SPECIAL

Many Bulldog Supporters To Go To New Orleans Next Saturday

RUSTON, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Followers of Louisiana Tech's football team will take a special train to New Orleans to attend the game to be played there Saturday afternoon, October 31, between the Techmen and the Tulane university eleven. The railroad tickets are available at the office of A. W. Ford, chairman of the Tech faculty athletics committee.

If there are as many as 300 students who purchase tickets for the "special," President E. S. Richardson stated that would enable him to permit a general holiday for the occasion.

In addition to coach provisions, the special train will include Pullman accommodations if as many as 25 berths are reserved, it was announced.

The special train is scheduled to leave Ruston at 10 p. m. Friday and arrive at New Orleans at 6 a. m. Saturday, going by way of Vicksburg. Returning, the train will leave New Orleans at 10 p. m. Saturday and arrive in Ruston at 6 a. m. Sunday. Monroe is the only scheduled stop for the "special."

Powerful Golden Tornado Coming Here Thursday For Tilt With Lions

The powerful Haynesville High school Golden Tornado, which breezed through the Neville Tigers Friday, will come here Thursday night for an engagement with the Lions of Ouachita Parish High school in what will be the first of three "suicide" skirmishes for Coach "Lefty" Haynes' charges.

The Tornado, chief north Louisiana contender for the Class A title held by Byrd of Shreveport, will come here undefeated with a string of six victories, all over Class A teams.

Neither has the Ouachita team suffered defeat this year, although they were held to a scoreless tie by the Waterproof Tigers, north Louisiana Class B champions.

The game will be the locals' first on the home field in four weeks, and their schedule calls for two more home games before winding up their season's battles at Pine Bluff, Ark., against the strong Pine Bluff High school Zebras on November 26, unless, however, they succeed in getting in the title playoffs.

On the week following the Haynesville battle, the Lions will meet the Class A state champions from Shreveport, and then they will wind up their home schedule against the Rayville Hornets on November 13.

The Lions came out of their battle with Bastrop Friday night in good shape and will have their full strength available for the visitors. W. B. Stewart, Ouachita fullback, looked especially good on his line plunges against the Rams and will probably be used plenty against the Tornado. Paul Patterson and Solly Mayer will also get the test of their ball carrying ability.

Wilbur Kirkpatrick, line-smashing halfback, the stellar "Row Boat" Wroten and James Tinsley will give the Ouachita forces plenty of trouble. All three of them, along with their hard-playing quarterback, Travis Kendrick, have been able to gain consistant good yardage all season and they don't intend to let the Lions stop them.

The heavy Ouachita forward wall can expect more trouble than they have had on their hands all season when they mix with the Haynesville linemen, led by James Diamond, powerful center, and J. W. Goree, all-southern tackle. Alton Rigdon, guard, is also an outstanding performer for Haynesville.

PRINCETON RALLIES TO SHADE MIDDIES

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Princeton rallied from a jittery start today to strike swiftly for a third period touchdown and beat the Navy 7 to 0, before a crowd of 51,000 fans who jammed Palmer Stadium.

Navy piled up a 12 to 3 margin in first downs but experienced its second straight week of frustration due chiefly to poorly executed passes and a sharp Tigers defense. The Midshipmen lost to Yale last Saturday.

Spectacular returns of kicks by Jack White, speedy Princeton halfback, paved the way for the game's only touchdown early in the third quarter. White raced 31 yards to Navy's 15 yard stripe with Irwin Fike's kickoff. The Sailors halted the Tiger attack on their 6-yard stripe but White returned Sneed Schmidt's punt 26 yards before he was brought down again on the 15 yard line.

Ken Sandbach, Tiger field general, capitalized this opportunity personally by crossing the Navy goal line, around his own left end, on a prettily executed "hidden ball play." Sandbach dashed 13 yards to score as the Middies, completely bamboozled by a play that looked like an "end-around," discovered too late that the Princeton quarterback had sneaked off with the pigskin. Sandbach also booted the extra point from placement.

The lineups and summary:

Navy	Pos.	Princeton (7)
Soucek	LE	Hall

JENA PREPARING FOR BATTLE WITH WISNER

JENA, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The Jena High school Giants will play their sixth game of the season Friday when they meet the strong Wisner Bulldogs on the Jena gridiron. Unless the Giants' star quarterback and captain, Woodie Doshier, is back in the lineup, Jena's chances are very slim.

Doshier suffered an injured leg in the recent Grayson game and the healing has been slow. Jena has had several bad breaks this season by losing Coach John Strother and now with Doshier hurt. If Doshier is able to be back in the lineup and the team gets functioning properly, Jena will be ready for the Lions.

SCALP IN DANGER

A move to oust Ossie Solem, head coach of the University of Iowa, was reported to be under way after the Hawkeyes lost to Northwestern and tied Illinois in Big Ten conference competition. Students and alumni are of the opinion that only a complete reversal of form against Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Temple, remaining teams on the schedule, can forestall an ouster move. Solem, above, would be retained as athletic director in the reported change.

OLE MISS BEATS CATHOLIC, 14-0

Rebels Gain Revenge For Orange Bowl Beating With Pass Attack

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi made a second quarter aerial attack count for two touchdowns and a 14 to 0 victory over Catholic university here today, successfully staving off a final half barrage by the Irish to triumph before 9,000 home-coming fans.

After threatening early and having two Mississippi touchdowns called back through slipping penalties, a sharp 23-yard toss from Parker Hall to Red Parker gave the Rebels a lead they never relinquished. Dave Bernard followed Hall's heave with a 37-yard pass to Buster Poole, who shook off Irish Carroll on the Cardinal 8-yard line and sped across. Kinard made good both placements.

The first half was all for Ole Miss, but Catholic took charge of play in the final two periods to dominate the situation and keep the Rebs moving backward. Passes aided Catholic throughout and started them on a drive in the fourth quarter that ended on the Ole Miss 5. Laterals from McKofske to Carroll and passes from McKofske advanced the ball from the Mississippi 45 to the 10 in eight plays.

Mississippi played desperately, holding the visitors to five yards in two plays, one a wide lateral, smothered Carroll on a plunge and broke up a McKofske-to-Schmarr pass. The game was all Mississippi from then on. Ray Hapes entering to return an intercepted pass 57 yards to midfield.

Injured early in the third quarter, little Hapes was a constant threat throughout, averaging high on punt returns. The Rebel line, which halted all Catholic attempts in the final half, sagged under a constant pounding in the final two quarters. Passes had caused them defeats for the past five weeks, but failed to send its eleven down today. Twelve Irish tosses went astray. First downs were even, both teams making 10. Passes gave them their only chain-moving gains in the first half.

Lineup:

Ole Miss	Pos.	Catholic U.
Graham	LE	Schnarr
Kinard	LT	Katalinas
Bilbo	LG	Anthonavage
Hutson	C	Yanchulis
White	RG	Arnold
Dickens	RT	Clements

Tradley	KB	Walker
A. Hapes	LH	Adamaitis
Bernard	RH	Carroll
C. Hapes	FB	Greco

Score by quarters:

Mississippi	0	14	0	0	—14
Catholic U.	0	0	0	0	—0

CROSSETT EAGLES WHIP ENGLAND ELEVEN, 39-13

CROSSETT, Ark., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Playing on a muddy field, Coach Mason's Crossett High school Eagles beat the England high squad here this afternoon, 39 to 13.

To the surprise of spectators, the Eagles found no difficulty in making their passes count during the rain and four of the Eagles' touchdowns resulted from sensational passes. After scoring two touchdowns in the first half, the England Lions managed to carry the ball within five yards of the Eagles' goal line in the fourth quarter but were held for downs and the Crossett team punted to safety.

Outstanding for Crossett were Vaskell Carter, star end and captain, James Scriber, fleet halfback, Burl Gulledge and Bill O'Donnell, backs, and Dover Adcock, end. The line plunging of Thomas "Boots" Brantley, sub captain and fullback, was outstanding.

VOLS WIN WHEN HARP RETURNS PUNT 70 YARDS

Last Period Sprint Adds Climax To Spectacular Gridiron Battle

By Kenneth Gregory

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Climaxing a spectacular gridiron combat that saw victory hopes rise and wane with the minutes, Thomas (Red) Harp, 155-pound halfback, pulled down a punt and raced 70 yards for a touchdown in the last period today to give Tennessee's Volunteers a 15 to 13 decision over the hitherto unbeaten Duke Blue Devils.

Approximately 20,000 homecoming day fans witnessed the brilliant scoring duel between these bitter rivals, with Major Bob Neyland and Tennessee's aggressive gridders maintaining the "Knoxville jinx" over Wallace Wade and the Blue Devils.

Trailing 9 to 6 after Tennessee rallied to score a safety and a touchdown early in the third period, North Carolina fans thought Duke had grabbed victory when Elmore (Honey) Hackney fired a bullet pass for a touchdown to Captain Clarence (Ace) Parker in the end zone to move ahead 13 to 9.

Tennessee played brilliantly all the way. Once they threw up a stone wall defense to halt a drive at the three-yard line, again on the one-foot line and another time at the four-yard stripe.

It was after that last stand by Tennessee the Blue Devils scored. Harp punted from behind his goal to Hackney, who took the ball on his own 46, almost stumbled but recovered his balance and skirted down the sideline 54 yards for a touchdown. Hackney missed the extra point.

Early in the third period, Phantom Phil Dickens, running and passing star of the battle, punted to Duke's three. Parker dropped back deep in the end zone on punt formation, but attempted to pass. Frank Crawford, Tennessee tackle, leaped high to bat the ball down behind the goal for an automatic safety.

The Volunteers appeared to take on new life after scoring and started a touchdown drive after Parker punted from his 25. Dickens passed to Bowden Wyatt for 28 yards and first down on Duke's 27. Dickens swept around end for 14. Halfback Melvin Herring failed at the line, but on the next play raced to the goal line to take a pass from Dickens for a score. Herring placekicked the extra point.

After six minutes of play in the fourth period, Duke bounced back into the lead when Hackney completed a 24-yard toss to Parker, who leaped over two Tennessee players to pull down the ball over the goal. Hackney placekicked the extra point.

Duke found the Tennessee defense impenetratable and, with the ball resting on the Blue Devil's 36, Parker booted another of his long kicks down to Harp on the 30, and the diminutive halfback breezed the 70 yards for the winning margin.

MEAT FUND STARTED FOR L. S. U.'S TIGER MASCOT

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A meat fund for Mike the Royal Bengal Tiger muscot of the L. S. U. football team, has been started by a Shreveport resident, W. Burch Lee, Sr., former U. S. clerk of court. Noticing that it requires 12 pounds of meat each day for the Tiger, Lee mailed a check for $10 to Dr. J. M. Smith, president of the university.

Dr. Smith accepted the check with thanks and admits that others like it will not be rejected.

QUEEN OF WAVES SEEKS KING'S SPEED TITLE

Powered by two 12-cylinder motors developing 900 horsepower, the Miami Queen, speedboat designed by Louis Nuta, noted Italian engineer, is undergoing test trials on the waters of Biscayne bay, Miami, with the view of breaking Gar Wood's world speed record of 124.86 miles an hour set by Miss America X in 1932. Here's the craft in a test run, pounding along at 80 miles an hour. It is capable of 130, its designer states.

VANDY AND TECH BATTLE TO DRAW

Superb Line Play Features Scoreless Deadlock Before 10,000 Fans

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Vanderbilt university and Georgia Tech battled to a scoreless tie today before 10,000 fans, the superb line play annulling the offensive fireworks of both teams.

The highly-favored Tech Engineers did not get their dazzling attack going until the second half, and even then fumbles and pass interceptions kept them from the Vanderbilt goal.

It was Tech's first draw in Southeastern conference competition and Vandy's debut in the loop.

Tech fumbled the ball seven times, Vanderbilt regaining five of them, many of them at crucial times. The Commodores fumbled three times and Tech grabbed all of them.

Snapping back after successive defeats at the hands of Southwestern and Southern Methodist, the Commodores fired passes galore at the Georgians in the first half. On the first play of the game, Joe Agee shot a 35-yard pass to Jimmy Huggins who was behind the Tech secondary, but the ball slithered through his fingers. It was an almost certain touchdown, had he held onto the ball.

Tech made 13 first downs and Vanderbilt 12.

Fitzsimmons, Preston and Jordan were unmovable on defense when yards would have meant touchdowns and for Vandy Hinkle, Ray and Merlin stood out.

WINNSBORO WINS CLOSE GAME FROM OAK GROVE

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—After battling at a standstill for a half, the Winnsboro High school Wildcats broke the ice in the third quarter to score one touchdown and beat their old rivals, the Oak Grove High school Tigers, 7 to 0, here yesterday.

A long pass, Smith to Rogers, was good for 30 yards and placed the oval on the Bengals' 22 yard line in the third quarter. On several straight line plays, the locals moved the ball to the Oak Grove two-yard line and Smith plunged through the line to score.

Oak Grove threatened once in the second quarter when they reached the Wildcats' 20, but that was as close as they ever got. Once during the first half Winnsboro reached the Tigers' three-yard line but were held for downs.

The lineups were: (Oak Grove) E. Cooper and H. Cooper, ends; Chandler and W. Butler, tackles; W. Borden and Lewis, guards; Ainsworth, center; M. Butler, quarterback; Holloman and McIntosh, halfbacks; and Curtis, fullback. (Winnsboro), Boyle and Rogers, ends; Cruse and Martin, tackles; Farmer and Fox, guards; Lang, center; Smith, quarterback; Svetlevic and Elkins, halfbacks; and Hart, fullback.

CHOUDRANT AGGIES WIN FROM JUNCTION, 22 TO 6

Louie Campbell, the Aggies' 200 pound fullback, was outstanding, hitting the line for gain after gain. The Junction City team, showing a strong line, attempted to gain through the air but their efforts were largely unsuccesful.

ARCADIA HIGH OBSERVES HOMECOMING ON FRIDAY

ARCADIA, La. Oct. 24.—(Special)—The Arcadia High school annual homecoming will be October 30 when the Arcadia Hornets play the Lisbon team on the Arcadia field at 3 o'clock. This is expected to be a great game and all the old graduates are invited to come back to watch the contest.

The student body will elect a homecoming queen to reign over the day's events. The crowning of the queen will take place just before the kickoff. The queen will be crowned by the mayor P. E. Brown. Mayor Brown, himself an alumnus of the school, was the founder of the Arcadia High School Alumni association, which is one of the few high school alumni associations in the state that really functions.

An elaborate snake dance will be held on the field between the halves and the letter "A" will be formed as a climaxing feature of the dance. The entire student body will attend the game and sit in the grandstand and help cheer. The cheering will be led by the efficient cheering leaders, Faye Wimberly, Daisy Claire Woodard and Dorothy Wade.

Coach Garrett is predicting a hard game with the Lisbon team. Those attending will see a real football game.

MAROONS HOLD T. C. U. TO DRAW

Mississippi State And Texas Christian In Muddy Scoreless Tie

Twenty four times little David O'Brien, Texas Christian reserve quarterback, booted a mud-caked football and Major Ralph Sasse's eleven answered with 20 punts.

Unable to gain through a fine Mississippi line, Texas Christian got two breaks that provided scoring opportunities but an attempted field goal and a passing flurry from the nine-yard stripe failed.

The Mississippi offense could not get pass the Horned Frogs' 36-yard line but it did manage four first downs to none for the Texans.

O'Brien's kicking toe kept the Christians out of trouble. The 150-pounder, filling in for injured Sammy Baugh, averaged 34 yards on the worst playing field seen here in years. Ike Pickle, great Mississippi halfback, and Bob Hardison, dividing kicking duties for the invaders, averaged only one yard less.

Late in the final period Texas Christian got its first chance to score when Pickle, hurried on a punt back on his four-yard stripe, booted weakly into the line of scrimmage. Ki Aldrich, Christian center, who stood head and shoulders above anything on the field, recovered for the Texans.

Walter Roach, Christian end, backed up to the 15 stripe and tried to propel the heavy ball over the crossbars but it slipped off his foot.

Roach gave the Horned Frogs life again when he scooped up Stubbs' fumble on the Mississippi 18. O'Brien scooted around right end to the nine but two passes and line thrusts failed and the Mississippians booted to midfield.

NEVILLE TO MEET GREENVILLE NEXT

Tigers Play Mississippi Eleven At Brown Field Friday Afternoon

The Neville High school Tigers, recovering from the shake-up at the hands of the Haynesville Tornado by a score of 20 to 0, Friday, will begin work tomorrow for a battle with the Greenville, Miss., eleven here next Friday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at Brown field.

Other than the defeat, the Bengals suffered the loss of Ray "Tuffy" Spicer, stellar halfback, who received a broken arm late in the third quarter of the game. Spicer had just taken a short pass from "Red" Brown for a five yard gain when he was tackled hard by Kirkpatrick, Haynesville halfback, and his left arm broken. Spicer may be able to play again by Thanksgiving, Coach Percy Brown said.

P. A. Poag, big Bengal center, was also hurt during the same period, on the play that resulted in the Tornado's first touchdown, and had to be taken from the game. An old nose injury, suffered in the Winnfield game here a week ago, was hurt again, but he is expected to be able to play against Greenville.

The remainder of the team came out of the battle without mishap.

Dick Pritchard, a first-year back, who has been the Tigers' number one reserve back, will take Spicer's place in the lineup, Coach Brown said. Pritchard has already seen quite a bit of service as a substitute this season and should be able to make a dependable back.

The Haynesville game was Neville's last scheduled battle on the road and they will wind up their schedule of four remaining games on the home field. Two of them are conference battles, with Ruston's Bearcats and the Oak Grove Tigers, both of whom have mediocre records this year.

Greenville is reported to have a strong eleven this season and the Bengals may be in for another hard fight. Neville and Greenville played their first football game together in 1934 and the Mississippi eleven was victorious, 12 to 0. A large delegation of Greenville supporters and the Greenville High school band will follow the visitors to Monroe.

MISS SAENGER REACHES TEXAS TOURNEY FINALS

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—On a rainsoaked river crest course and in a steady drizzle, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth and Mrs. Edna Saenger of Shreveport became finalists in the Texas Women's Open golf tournament today.

Mrs. Goldthwaite lost two of the first three holes to Mrs. E. R. Hury of San Antonio, but rallied to beat her rival, 5 and 3.

Mrs. Saenger, even with Mrs. David C. Gaut of Memphis, Tenn., through 12, won 13, 14 and 16 to score a 3 and 2 victory.

Mrs. Gaut, veteran of 25 years on the links, fought gamely. Three down through 7 she rallied to win 8, 10 and 12 and square the match with her younger opponent before sinking to rapid defeat.

After her inauspicious start, Mrs. Goldthwaite won 4, 5, 8 and 9 and turned two up. She won the 15th with a birdie 2 closing the match.

AUBURN BARELY BEATS GEORGIA IN ANNUAL GAME

Bulldogs Rally In Second Half To Throw Score Into Plainsmen

By Lewis Hawkins

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Some magic wrought in the Georgia dressing room at half time turned Auburn's football picnic into a gridiron nightmare here today and game's end found the rumpled Tigers glad to accept the 20-13 victory that kept their record clean.

Seldom has a team been more completely outclassed offensively than Georgia was in the first half. The Tigers rolled up 13 points while keeping the Bulldogs inside their own 25.

But after the intermission Georgia revived its drooping supporters by taking the kick-off and blasting through to a score in eight plays from the Georgia 26.

From there on it was a merry pigskin polka and Harry Mehre's rejuvenated club called the tune.

Statistics of the first half gave Auburn 10 first downs to none, but the final figures were 15 to 8. The Tigers rushed the ball 292 yards and picked up another 28 on two completed passes. The losers rushed 110 and gained 29 on three completed passes.

Wilton Kilgore, the No. 1 football citizen of Wadley, Ala., topped the ball carriers by advancing the spheroid 198 yards in 30 tries, an average of better than 6 1-2 yards. For good measure he compiled a punting average of 42 yards.

Auburn pushed the initial kick-off to the Tiger 27 and went over the goal line just a dozen plays later, generating great power inside the tackles.

Georgia took the kick-off only to have the keyed-up Alabama linesmen smash the runners back on three plays. Then Gantt smashed through from guard and took Stevens' punt on his chest. The ball bound some ten yards back over the goal and Flankman Williams pounced on it, Fenton adding the point.

Glenn Johnson came in at halfback for Georgia to start the second half and slashed through tackle for 23, starting from the Georgia 26 where the kick-off return landed the ball.

Maurice Green then slanted off Georgia's right for 20 yards. Johnson swung to the opposite side and traveled 15 more when Green felled two men with one eye-filling block that thrilled the crowd of 15,000.

A pass, Green to Gillespie, covered 13 of the remaining 15 yards and Stevens swung wide to score a moment later.

Kilgore's smart and long kicking soon gave the Tigers the ball on the Georgia 49. Warhorse Wilton stormed around left tackle, cut back neatly and seemed gone when Stevens dragged him down on the 19.

Then Kilgore bored center for 11 and carried the final two yards on a plunge four plays later, making the 49 yards on seven plays. Fenton added his second successful placement.

But the Bulldogs refused to let up. A punt exchange delivered the ball on the Auburn 40. Alf Anderson tried to pass, found no receiver, turned completely around and swept his left flanks for 30 yards. He finished it up just one play later by heaving a perfect pass to Flankman Maffett, who took it behind the goal. Anderson then added the point.

The lineups:

Auburn	Pos.	Georgia
Burford	LE	Maffett
Roton	LT	Haygood

MARQUETTE TEAM UPSETS MICHIGAN STATE, 13 TO 7

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Marquette university, with Ray Buivid's passes, knocked Michigan State off the list of unbeaten football teams here today before a homecoming crowd of 20,000. Buivid passed to Art Guepe, in the first period and again in the last to Anderson, substitute end, for a 13 to 7 victory.

TULANE TROUNCES NORTH CAROLINA, 21 TO 7

GREENIES FLASH STRONG OFFENSE TO CRUSH HEELS

Bryan, Mattis And Andrews Lead Wave In Impressive Triumph

By Ed Desobry

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Tulane university's superior forward wall and a pass attack that clicked with precision gave it a well deserved 21 to 7 victory over North Carolina before 18,000 spectators here today.

Brilliant passes accounted for two of Tulane's scores and the third was gained by sheer power. North Carolina blocked a Tulane punt behind the goal for its touchdown.

Both teams repeatedly threatened, with Crowell Little and Tom Burnette carrying the Carolina offensive and "Bucky" Bryan, Bill Mattis and John Andrews furnishing the Tulane steam.

Tulane got to work at the opening whistle, took the ball on the 35, and worked to the Carolina 42, where Bryan tossed a beautiful pass to Schneidau, who was downed on the four-yard line. Andrews cut off left tackle for the score and Moss kicked the extra point.

After a punting duel, with Carolina's Burnette holding the advantage over Bryan of Tulane, Tulane, in a march featured by Moss' catch of a pass on the seven yard line, got to the half yard mark but lost the ball.

A little later, Little took a punt on his 20 and raced 53 yards, calling directions to his blockers along the way, to place the ball on the Tulane 27. Tulane stiffened and Carolina lost the ball on the five yard line, with only a yard to go for a first down.

When the second half opened, Bryan fumbled Carolina's kickoff, Carolina recovered and then Bryan intercepted a pass on his own six yard line. Buck McCarn, substitute end, blocked Mattis' attempted punt and Bershak, the other Tar Heel wing man, fell on the ball for a touchdown. Burnette kicked the extra point.

Near the end of the third period, Bryan threw a 25 yard pass to Schneidau who seemed to catch passes in any spot today, and Schneidau ran through a clear field to a score. Moss again kicked for the extra point.

In a drive featured by Andrews' 25 yard run from the Tulane 12 yard line, the locals put the ball on the Carolina 3 from where Andrews went through left tackle for the score. Moss' placement was good again.

The game ended with Carolina passing desperately.

TECH FANS PLAN TULANE SPECIAL

Many Bulldog Supporters To Go To New Orleans Next Saturday

RUSTON, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Followers of Louisiana Tech's football team will take a special train to New Orleans to attend the game to be played there Saturday afternoon, October 31, between the Techmen and the Tulane university eleven. The railroad tickets are available at the office of A. W. Ford, chairman of the Tech faculty athletics committee.

If there are as many as 300 students who purchase tickets for the "special," President E. S. Richardson stated that would enable him to permit a general holiday for the occasion.

In addition to coach provisions, the special train will include Pullman accommodations if as many as 25 berths are reserved, it was announced.

The special train is scheduled to leave Ruston at 10 p. m. Friday and arrive at New Orleans at 6 a. m. Saturday, going by way of Vicksburg. Returning, the train will leave New Orleans at 10 p. m. Saturday and arrive in Ruston at 6 a. m. Sunday. Monroe is the only scheduled stop for the "special."

HAYNESVILLE NEXT FOE FOR OUACHITA

Powerful Golden Tornado Coming Here Thursday For Tilt With Lions

The powerful Haynesville High school Golden Tornado, which breezed through the Neville Tigers Friday, will come here Thursday night for an engagement with the Lions of Ouachita Parish High school in what will be the first of three "suicide" skirmishes for Coach "Lefty" Haynes' charges.

The Tornado, chief north Louisiana contender for the Class A title held by Byrd of Shreveport, will come here undefeated with a string of six victories, all over Class A teams.

Neither has the Ouachita team suffered defeat this year, although they were held to a scoreless tie by the Waterproof Tigers, north Louisiana Class B champions.

The game will be the locals' first on the home field in four weeks, and their schedule calls for two more home games before winding up their season's battles at Pine Bluff, Ark., against the strong Pine Bluff High school Zebras on November 26, unless, however, they succeed in getting in the title playoffs.

On the week following the Haynesville battle, the Lions will meet the Class A state champions from Shreveport, and then they will wind up their home schedule against the Rayville Hornets on November 13.

The Lions came out of their battle with Bastrop Friday night in good shape and will have their full strength available for the visitors. W. B. Stewart, Ouachita fullback, looked especially good on his line plunges against the Rams and will probably be used plenty against the Tornado. Paul Patterson and Solly Mayer will also get the test of their ball carrying ability.

Wilbur Kirkpatrick, line-smashing halfback, the stellar "Row Boat" Wroten and James Tinsley will give the Ouachita forces plenty of trouble. All three of them, along with their hard-playing quarterback, Travis Kendrick, have been able to gain consistant good yardage all season and they don't intend to let the Lions stop them.

The heavy Ouachita forward wall can expect more trouble than they have had on their hands all season when they mix with the Haynesville linemen, led by James Diamond, powerful center, and J. W. Goree, all-southern tackle. Alton Rigdon, guard, is also an outstanding performer for Haynesville.

PRINCETON RALLIES TO SHADE MIDDIES

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Princeton rallied from a jittery start today to strike swiftly for a third period touchdown and beat the Navy 7 to 0, before a crowd of 51,000 fans who jammed Palmer Stadium.

Navy piled up a 12 to 3 margin in first downs but experienced its second straight week of frustration due chiefly to poorly executed passes and a sharp Tigers defense. The Midshipmen lost to Yale last Saturday.

Spectacular returns of kicks by Jack White, speedy Princeton halfback, paved the way for the game's only touchdown early in the third quarter. White raced 31 yards to Navy's 15 yard stripe with Irwin Fike's kickoff. The Sailors halted the Tiger attack on their 6-yard stripe but White returned Sneed Schmidt's punt 26 yards before he was brought down again on the 15 yard line.

Ken Sandbach, Tiger field general, capitalized this opportunity personally by crossing the Navy goal line, around his own left end, on a prettily executed "hidden ball play." Sandbach dashed 13 yards to score as the Middies, completely bamboozled by a play that looked like an "end-around," discovered too late that the Princeton quarterback had sneaked off with the pigskin. Sandbach also booted the extra point from placement.

The lineups and summary:

JENA PREPARING FOR BATTLE WITH WISNER

JENA, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The Jena High school Giants will play their sixth game of the season Friday when they meet the strong Wisner Bulldogs on the Jena gridiron. Unless the Giants' star quarterback and captain, Woodie Doshier, is back in the lineup, Jena's chances are very slim.

Doshier suffered an injured leg in the recent Grayson game and the healing has been slow. Jena has had several bad breaks this season by losing Coach John Strother and now with Doshier hurt. If Doshier is able to be back in the lineup and the team gets to functioning properly, Jena will be ready for the Lions.

SCALP IN DANGER

A move to oust Ossie Solem, head coach of the University of Iowa, was reported to be under way after the Hawkeyes lost to Northwestern and tied Illinois in Big Ten conference competition. Students and alumni are of the opinion that only a complete reversal of form against Indiana, Minnesota, Purdue and Temple, remaining teams on the schedule, can forestall an ouster move. Solem, above, would be retained as athletic director in the reported change.

OLE MISS BEATS CATHOLIC, 14-0

Rebels Gain Revenge For Orange Bowl Beating With Pass Attack

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi made a second quarter aerial attack count for two touchdowns and a 14 to 0 victory over Catholic university here today, successfully staving off a final half barrage by the Irish to triumph before 9,000 home-coming fans.

After threatening early and having two Mississippi touchdowns called back through slipping penalties, a sharp 23-yard toss from Parker Hall to Red Parker gave the Rebels a lead they never relinquished. Dave Bernard followed Hall's heave with a 37-yard pass to Buster Poole, who shook off Irish Carroll on the Cardinal 8-yard line and sped across. Kinard made good both placements.

The first half was all for Ole Miss, but Catholic took charge of play in the final two periods to dominate the situation and keep the Rebs moving backward. Passes aided Catholic throughout and started them on a drive in the fourth quarter that ended on the Ole Miss 5. Laterals from McKofske to Carroll and passes from McKofske advanced the ball from the Mississippi 45 to the 10 in eight plays.

Mississippi played desperately, holding the visitors to five yards in two plays, one a wide lateral, smothered Carroll on a plunge and broke up a McKofske-to-Schmarr pass. The game was all Mississippi from then on. Ray Hapes entering to return an intercepted pass 37 yards to midfield.

Injured early in the third quarter, little Hapes was a constant threat throughout, averaging high on punt returns. The Rebel line, which halted all Catholic attempts in the final half, sagged under a constant pounding in the final two quarters. Passes had caused them defeats for the past five weeks, but failed to send its eleven down today. Twelve Irish tosses went astray. First downs were even, both teams making 10. Passes gave them their only chain-moving gains in the first half.

Lineup:

Ole Miss	Pos.	Catholic U.

CROSSETT EAGLES WHIP ENGLAND ELEVEN, 39-13

CROSSETT, Ark., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Playing on a muddy field, Coach Mason's Crossett High school Eagles beat the England high squad here this afternoon, 39 to 13.

To the surprise of spectators, the Eagles found no difficulty in making their passes count during the rain and four of the Eagles' touchdowns resulted from sensational passes. After scoring two touchdowns in the first half, the England Lions managed to carry the ball within five yards of the Eagles' goal line in the fourth quarter but were held for downs and the Crossett team punted to safety.

Outstanding for Crossett were Vaskell Carter, star end and captain, James Scriber, fleet halfback, Burl Gulledge and Bill O'Donnell, backs, and Dover Adcock, end. The line plunging of Thomas "Boots" Brantley, sub captain and fullback, was outstanding.

VOLS WIN WHEN HARP RETURNS PUNT 70 YARDS

Last Period Sprint Adds Climax To Spectacular Gridiron Battle

By Kenneth Gregory

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Climaxing a spectacular gridiron combat that saw victory hopes rise and wane with the minutes, Thomas (Red) Harp, 155-pound halfback, pulled down a punt and raced 70 yards for a touchdown in the last period today to give Tennessee's Volunteers a 15 to 13 decision over the hitherto unbeaten Duke Blue Devils.

Approximately 20,000 homecoming day fans witnessed the brilliant scoring duel between these bitter rivals, with Major Bob Neyland and Tennessee's aggressive gridders maintaining the "Knoxville jinx" over Wallace Wade and the Blue Devils.

Trailing 9 to 6 after Tennessee rallied to score a safety and a touchdown early in the third period, North Carolina fans thought Duke had grabbed victory when Elmore (Honey) Hackney fired a bullet pass for a touchdown to Captain Clarence (Ace) Parker in the end zone to move ahead 13 to 9.

With about five minutes left to play and Harp and Parker sparring for "breaks" with punts, the little "red head" Tennessee halfback wrapped his arms around one of the Duke quarterback's long boots on the 30-yard line, swept toward the side of the field as his teammates formed a beautiful line of interference and galloped across the goal for the winning points.

Tennessee played brilliantly all the way. Once they threw up a stone wall defense to halt a drive at the three-yard line, again on the one-foot line and another time at the four-yard stripe.

It was after that last stand by Tennessee the Blue Devils scored. Harp punted from behind his goal to Hackney, who took the ball on his own 46, almost stumbled but recovered his balance and skirted down the sideline 54 yards for a touchdown. Hackney missed the extra point.

Early in the third period, Phantom Phil Dickens, running and passing star of the battle, punted to Duke's three. Parker dropped back deep in the end zone on punt formation, but attempted to pass. Frank Crawford, Tennessee tackle, leaped high to bat the ball down behind the goal for an automatic safety.

The Volunteers appeared to take on new life after scoring and started a touchdown drive after Parker punted from his 25. Dickens passed to Bowden Wyatt for 28 yards and first down on Duke's 27. Dickens swept around end for 14. Halfback Melvin Herring failed at the line, but on the next play raced to the goal line to take a pass from Dickens for a score. Herring placekicked the extra point.

After six minutes of play in the fourth period, Duke bounced back into the lead when Hackney completed a 24-yard toss to Parker, who leaped over two Tennessee players to pull down the ball over the goal. Hackney placekicked the extra point.

Duke found the Tennessee defense impenetratable and, with the ball resting on the Blue Devil's 36, Parker booted another of his long kicks down to Harp on the 30, and the diminutive halfback breezed the 70 yards for the winning margin.

MEAT FUND STARTED FOR L. S. U.'S TIGER MASCOT

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A meat fund for Mike the Royal Bengal Tiger mascot of the L. S. U. football team, has been started by a Shreveport resident, W. Burch Lee, Sr., former U. S. clerk of court. Noticing that it requires 12 pounds of meat each day for the Tiger, Lee mailed a check for $10 to Dr. J. M. Smith, president of the university.

Dr. Smith acc'ed the check with thanks and admits that others like it will not be rejected.

Here's the craft in a test run, pounding along at 80 miles an hour. It is capable of 130, its designer states.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Vanderbilt university and Georgia Tech battled to a scoreless tie today before 10,000 fans, the superb line play annulling the offensive fireworks of both teams.

The highly-favored Tech Engineers did not get their dazzling attack going until the second half, and even then fumbles and pass interceptions kept them from the Vanderbilt goal.

It was Tech's first draw in Southeastern conference competition and Vandy's debut in the loop.

Tech fumbled the ball seven times, Vanderbilt regaining five of them, many of them at crucial times. The Commodores fumbled three times and Tech grabbed all of them.

Snapping back after successive defeats at the hands of Southwestern and Southern Methodist, the Commodores fired passes galore at the Georgians in the first half. On the first play of the game, Joe Agee shot a 35-yard pass to Jimmy Huggins who was behind the Tech secondary, but the ball slithered through his fingers. It was an almost certain touchdown, had he held onto the ball.

Tech made 13 first downs and Vanderbilt 12.

Fitzsimmons, Preston and Jordan were unmovable on defense when yards would have meant touchdowns and for Vandy Hinkle, Ray and Merlin stood out.

WINNSBORO WINS CLOSE GAME FROM OAK GROVE

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—After battling at a standstill for a half, the Winnsboro High school Wildcats broke the ice in the third quarter to score one touchdown and beat their old rivals, the Oak Grove High school Tigers, 7 to 0, here yesterday.

A long pass, Smith to Rogers, was good for 30 yards and placed the oval on the Bengals' 22 yard line in the third quarter. On several straight line plays, the locals moved the ball to the Oak Grove two-yard line and Smith plunged through the line to score.

Oak Grove threatened once in the second quarter when they reached the Wildcats' 20, but that was as close as they ever got. Once during the first half Winnsboro reached the Tigers' three-yard line but were held for downs.

The lineups were: (Oak Grove) E. Cooper and H. Cooper, ends; Chandler and W. Butler, tackles; W. Borden and Lewis, guards; Ainsworth, center; M. Butler, quarterback; Holloman and McIntosh, halfbacks; and Curtis, fullback. (Winnsboro), Boyle and Rogers, ends; Cruse and Martin, tackles; Farmer and Fox, guards; Lang, center; Smith, quarterback; Svetlevic and Elkins, halfbacks; and Hart, fullback.

Louie Campbell, the Aggies' 200 pound fullback, was outstanding, hitting the line for gain after gain. The Junction City team, showing a strong line, attempted to gain through the air but their efforts were largely unsuccessful.

ARCADIA HIGH OBSERVES HOMECOMING ON FRIDAY

ARCADIA, La. Oct. 24.—(Special)—The Arcadia High school annual homecoming will be October 30 when the Arcadia Hornets play the Lisbon team on the Arcadia field at 3 o'clock. This is expected to be a great game and all the old graduates are invited to come back to watch the contest.

The student body will elect a homecoming queen to reign over the day's events. The crowning of the queen will take place just before the kick-off. The queen will be crowned by the mayor P. E. Brown. Mayor Brown, himself an alumnus of the school, was the founder of the Arcadia High School Alumni association, which is one of the few high school alumni associations in the state that really functions.

An elaborate snake dance will be held on the field between the halves and the letter "A" will be formed as a climaxing feature of the dance. The entire student body will attend the game and sit in the grandstand and help cheer. The cheering will be led by the efficient cheering leaders, Faye Wimberly, Daisy Claire Woodard and Dorothy Wade.

Coach Garrett is predicting a hard game with the Lisbon team. Those attending will see a real football game.

Mississippi State And Texas Christian In Muddy Scoreless Tie

Twenty four times little David O'Brien, Texas Christian reserve quarterback, booted a mud-caked football and Major Ralph Sasse's eleven answered with 20 punts.

Unable to gain through a fine Mississippi line, Texas Christian got two breaks that provided scoring opportunities but an attempted field goal and a passing flurry from the nine-yard stripe failed.

The Mississippi offense could not get pass the Horned Frogs' 36-yard line but it did manage four first downs to none for the Texans.

O'Brien's kicking toe kept the Christians out of trouble. The 150-pounder, filling in for injured Sammy Baugh, averaged 34 yards on the worst playing field seen here in years. Ike Pickle, great Mississippi halfback, and Bob Hardison, dividing kicking duties for the invaders, averaged only one yard less.

Late in the final period Texas Christian got its first chance to score when Pickle, hurried on a punt back on his four-yard stripe, booted weakly into the line of scrimmage. Ki Aldrich, Christian center, who stood head and shoulders above anything on the field, recovered for the Texans.

Walter Roach, Christian end, backed up to the 15 stripe and tried to propel the heavy ball over the crossbars but it slipped off his foot.

Roach gave the Horned Frogs life again when he scooped up Stubbs' fumble on the Mississippi 18. O'Brien scooted around right end to the nine but two passes and line thrusts failed and the Mississippians booted to midfield.

NEVILLE TO MEET GREENVILLE NEXT

Tigers Play Mississippi Eleven At Brown Field Friday Afternoon

The Neville High school Tigers, recovering from the shake-up at the hands of the Haynesville Tornado by a score of 20 to 0, Friday, will begin work tomorrow for a battle with the Greenville, Miss., eleven here next Friday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at Brown field.

Other than the defeat, the Bengals suffered the loss of Ray "Tuffy" Spicer, stellar halfback, who received a broken arm late in the third quarter of the game. Spicer had just taken a short pass from "Red" Brown for a five yard gain when he was tackled hard by Kirkpatrick, Haynesville halfback, and his left arm broken. Spicer may be able to play again by Thanksgiving, Coach Percy Brown said.

P. A. Poag, big Bengal center, was also hurt during the same period, on the play that resulted in the Tornado's first touchdown, and had to be taken from the game. An old nose injury, suffered in the Winnfield game here a week ago, was hurt again, but he is expected to be able to play against Greenville.

The remainder of the team came out of the battle without mishap.

Dick Pritchard, a first-year back, who has been the Tigers' number one reserve back, will take Spicer's place in the lineup, Coach Brown said. Pritchard has already seen quite a bit of service as a substitute this season and should be able to make a dependable back.

The Haynesville game was Neville's last scheduled battle on the road and they will wind up their schedule of four remaining games on the home field. Two of them are conference battles, with Ruston's Bearcats and the Oak Grove Tigers, both of whom have mediocre records this year.

Greenville is reported to have a strong eleven this season and the Bengals may be in for another hard fight. Neville and Greenville played their first football game together in 1934 and the Mississippi eleven was victorious, 12 to 0. A large delegation of Greenville supporters and the Greenville High school band will follow the visitors to Monroe.

MISS SAENGER REACHES TEXAS TOURNEY FINALS

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—On a rainsoaked river crest course and in a steady drizzle, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth and Mrs. Edna Saenger of Shreveport became finalists in the Texas Women's Open golf tournament today.

Mrs. Goldthwaite lost two of the first three holes to Mrs. E. R. Hury of San Antonio, but rallied to beat her rival, 2 and 3.

Mrs. Saenger, even with Mrs. David C. Gaut of Memphis, Tenn., through 12, won 13, 14 and 16 to score a 3 and 2 victory.

Mrs. Gaut, veteran of 25 years on the links, fought gamely. Three down through 7 she rallied to win 8, 10 and 12 and square the match with her younger opponent before sinking to rapid defeat.

After her inauspicious start, Mrs. Goldthwaite won 4, 5, 8 and 9 and turned two up. She won the 15th with a birdie 2 closing the match.

AUBURN BARELY BEATS GEORGIA IN ANNUAL GAME

Bulldogs Rally In Second Half To Throw Score Into Plainsmen

By Lewis Hawkins

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Some magic wrought in the Georgia dressing room at half time turned Auburn's football picnic into a gridiron nightmare here today and game's end found the rumpled Tigers glad to accept the 20-13 victory that kept their record clean.

Seldom has a team been more completely outclassed offensively than Georgia was in the first half. The Tigers rolled up 13 points while keeping the Bulldogs inside their own 25.

But after the intermission Georgia revived its drooping supporters by taking the kick-off and blasting through to a score in eight plays from the Georgia 26.

From there on it was a merry pigskin polka and Harry Mehre's rejuvenated club called the tune.

Statistics of the first half gave Auburn 10 first downs to none, but the final figures were 15 to 8. The Tigers rushed the ball 292 yards and picked up another 28 on two completed passes. The losers rushed 110 and gained 29 on three completed passes.

Wilton Kilgore, the No. 1 football citizen of Wadley, Ala., topped the ball carriers by advancing the spheroid 198 yards in 30 tries, an average of better than 6 1-2 yards. For good measure he compiled a punting average of 42 yards.

Auburn pushed the initial kick-off to the Tiger 27 and went over the goal line just a dozen plays later, generating great power inside the tackles.

Georgia took the kick-off only to have the keyed-up Alabama linesmen smash the runners back on three plays. Then Gantt smashed through from guard and took Stevens' punt on his chest. The ball bound some ten yards back over the goal and Flankman Williams pounced on it, Fenton adding the point.

Glenn Johnson came in at halfback for Georgia to start the second half and slashed through tackle for 23, starting from the Georgia 26 where the kick-off return landed the ball.

Maurice Green then slanted off Georgia's right for 20 yards. Johnson swung to the opposite side and traveled 15 more when Green felled two men with one eye-filling block that thrilled the crowd of 15,000.

A pass, Green to Gillespie, covered 13 of the remaining 15 yards and Stevens swung wide to score a moment later.

Kilgore's smart and long kicking soon gave the Tigers the ball on the Georgia 49. Warhorse Wilton stormed around left tackle, cut back neatly and seemed gone when Stevens dragged him down on the 19.

Then Kilgore bored center for 11 and carried the final two yards on a plunge four plays later, making the 49 yards on seven plays. Fenton added his second successful placement.

But the Bulldogs refused to let up. A punt exchange delivered the ball on the Auburn 40. Alf Anderson tried to pass, found no receiver, turned completely around and swept his left flanks for 30 yards. He finished it up just one play later by heaving a perfect pass to Flankman Maffett, who took it behind the goal. Anderson then added the point.

The lineups:

Auburn	Pos.	Georgia
Burford	LE	Maffett
Roton	LT	Haygood

MARQUETTE TEAM UPSETS MICHIGAN STATE, 13 TO 7

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Marquette university, with Ray Buivid's passes, knocked Michigan State off the list of unbeaten football teams here today before a homecoming crowd of 20,000. Buivid passed to Art Guepe, in the first period and again in the last to Anderson, substitute end, for a 13 to 7 victory.

SAVAGE AND WESTENBERG MEET TUESDAY

CHAMPION RISKS CROWN AGAINST SOUTHERN RULER

All-Star Card Also Includes Match Between Bashara And Macaluso

Leo "Whiskers" Savage, powerful Kentucky hillbilly, will risk his heavyweight wrestling title against Marvin Westenberg, southern champion, in the main event of an all-star show at Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night. In the other half of the big program, Ellis Bashara, rough Oklahoman, will meet Len Macaluso, former Colgate all-American, in a match which should be just about as interesting as the meeting between the two champs.

With Savage recognized in no less than seven states as world heavyweight champion, his match with Westenberg rates as the biggest grappling attraction ever staged here. Westenberg hasn't lost a match in the local arena for more than a year, and there are many fans who believe he can't be beaten here. Savage, also, has gone undefeated for months on end, so somebody's winning streak is bound to come to an end Tuesday. Of course, the big fellows could wrestle to a two-hour draw, but that's unlikely.

Savage defeated Westenberg in a title match at Shreveport a month or so ago. It was a close, hard-fought battle that kept the fans on edge throughout. Westenberg asked for a return bout, and Promoter Phillip Lisotta bid high enough to cop it for Monroe.

"I feel sure I can beat Savage now," Westenberg told Lisotta last week when the promoter was negotiating with Savage in an attempt to close the match. "I learned plenty about him when we met the first time, and I'm sure I can use that knowledge to good advantage. One thing's certain, I'm going to keep out of his way when he starts using those bear hugs."

It was with those powerful, crushing arms that Savage won when they met before. Westenberg apparently has learned his lesson and it isn't likely that Leo will be able to use the same hold twice in succession in defense of his crown against the burly Westenberg.

There are many who believe Westenberg is big enough and good enough to beat "Whiskers." He undoubtedly knows more holds than the Kentuckian and he's almost as strong. Savage relies chiefly on brute strength, and Marvin believes he has mapped out a campaign that will overcome that.

Savage, of course, has met and defeated some of the best men in the game, particularly since he won his heavyweight title. His chief offensive maneuvers are the bear hug and a back breaker, and he's a pretty terrifying spectacle with his long hair and beard. In fact, it's said that many grapplers now operating in this section are afraid of him. Westenberg, however, hasn't shown any signs of weakness in that respect.

The Bashara-Macaluso match also promises plenty of fireworks. Bashara not only knows most of the holds but he mixes enough rough stuff with his science to make him one of the most feared matmen in the business. He has worked in many sensational matches here.

Macaluso returns to the local ring after an absence of more than a month. Always a favorite here, the former football luminary is chiefly a scientific performer. His nickname of "Iron Legs" is self-explanatory. He possesses some powerful underpinning that has stood him in good stead on numerous occasions. Mac doesn't hesitate to mix it with a rough opponent and there's no doubt that he'll have an opportunity to use his fists before he gets through with Bashara.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls.

Lisotta announced yesterday that there will be no advance in admission prices.

REYNOLDS SMITH REACHES TEXARKANA SEMI-FINALS

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Reynolds Smith, Dallas Walker Cup star, advanced to the semi-finals today in the Texarkana Country club's four-state golf tournament with a 4-3 win over Whitney Harb of Little Rock.

He will meet Jimmy McGonagill, Dallas, in the upper bracket of the semi-finals tomorrow while Bill Carl, Gladewater, Tex., plays Don Schumacher, Dallas, in the lower bracket.

Clark advanced with an easy 7-6 victory over Vance Lidell, Shreveport, after upsetting Harry Todd, Dallas, by a 2-1 count in the first round.

Schumacher pushed his way into the semi-finals with a 7-5 triumph over Paul Reverra, Jr., Texarkana. He eliminated W. B. Walsh, Texarkana, 8-7, in the first round.

McGonagill had little trouble disposing of Nick Overstreet, Hot Springs, by a 5-4 score in the quarter-finals after a hard fought 19-hole first round tilt in which he eliminated Taylor Caven Texarkana.

Smith ousted the veteran J. K. Wadley, Texarkana, by a 4-3 count in the first round.

MARYLAND ELEVEN WHIPS SYRACUSE BY 20-0 SCORE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 24—(AP)—A fast charging Maryland line stopped Syracuse cold here this afternoon while the Maryland backs romped across the Orange goal line three times, to win 20 to 0. Guckeyson, Gormley and Meade tallied the six points while Gormley added two placement tries of the three attempted.

Indians Play Copiah-Lincoln At Brown Field Thursday

PITT OVERWHELMS NOTRE DAME, 26-0

'Biggie' Goldberg Leads Panthers To Spectacular Triumph

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Proud Notre Dame suffered its most humiliating defeat since 1925 today as the mighty Pittsburgh Panthers, subdued a week ago by little Duquesne, broke loose to crush the fighting Irish, 26 to 0 before a wild crowd of 70,224 spectators.

Marshall "Biggie" Goldberg, 17-year-old Jewish sophomore from West Virginia, solved the great mystery of the Irish, who came to Pittsburgh undefeated and untied.

Slippery as an eel, as fast as lightning, Goldberg led the furious, vicious attack that turned the South Bend typhoon into a zephry.

Halfback Goldberg, weighing 175 pounds and standing five feet nine, scored but one of the four Pitt touchdowns but his spectacular open field running was responsible for two others as the Panthers rushed over one touchdown in each the second and third periods and then rolled over two more in the final.

The Irish didn't make a first down until the closing minutes of the third period and only made a total of four as against 15 for Pitt. In yardage gained, they were outdistanced 325 yards to 73.

Frank Souchak, Pitt end, made placements after the first and third touchdowns.

TEXAS TECH WINS FROM CENTENARY

Gents Score First But Are Unable To Protect Lead; Score, 12-6

LUBBOCK, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Striking back in the second quarter to tie the score at six-all, Texas Tech's Red Raiders scored again in the third period to defeat the Centenary college Gentlemen, 12 to 6, in a homecoming football game here tonight.

Approximately 8,000 fans braved chilly wet weather to see the game.

Centenary scored early in the second quarter when Cowboy Hohmann intercepted a pass from Neill on Tech's 30-yard line and returned for a touchdown. Stokes failed to kick goal.

Texas Tech drove 54 yards for its first score, Neill running 16 yards to start the attack. He passed to Ramsey and to Cannon for 20 yards and ran to the one-yard line, finally plunging over for a touchdown. Hemsel failed to kick goal and the score was tied as the half ended.

Tech recovered a fumble on Centenary's 22-yard line midway in the third period and Neill passed to West for a touchdown. Hemsel again failed to convert.

WASHINGTON ELIMINATES CALIFORNIA BEARS, 13-0

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The University of Washington charged another lap closer to the Rose Bowl today with a 13 to 0 football triumph over California.

The victory was the third straight for the Huskies and kept Washington in the Pacific coast forefront.

Twenty thousand spectators saw Washington virtually eliminate California from the Coast league race when Jimmy Cain and Byron Haines drove over the Bear goal line for touchdowns. Both scores were made from the one-foot line on fourth downs, Cain diving over center for the first score in the second period, and Haines circling left end for the other in the third.

Washington hurled the Bears back with only one first down and that was made on the first two plays.

Washington marched 42 yards to its first touchdown and Logg failed to place kick the extra point, but his place kick was good after Haines went over.

ARMY RUNS ROUGHSHOD OVER SPRINGFIELD, 33-0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Army ran double-time over little Springfield college, 33-0, today, scoring two thouchdowns in the first, two more in the second, and another in the third period.

With 27,000 fans packed in Michie Stadium, Army employed little more than fundamental football and used almost every substitute on the bench.

Army made eight first downs to Springfield's two and outrushed the New Englanders 189 to 69.

Score by periods:

Army	13	13	7	0	—33

MINNESOTA WHIPS PURDUE, 33 TO 0

Boilermakers Collapse In Second Half And Gophers Run Wild

Minneapolis, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Purdue's team of destiny, like 20 other attackers before it, attempted to force Minnesota's surrender today, but in the end it was vanquished, 33 to 0, before 50,000 spectators.

The gallant crew of Boilermakers, bidding for a Big Ten championship, after playing brilliantly for 30 minutes, collapsed in the final half and were scattered to all corners of the stadium.

Purdue gave out in the second half before a surge of Minnesota manpower, and was trampled under four more touchdowns after the Gophers had scored their first marker in the opening period. The Boilermakers staged a willing and desperate battle but were out-manned and outcharged. Towards the end reserve players were tearing big gaps in Purdue's line which was rapidly weakening and tiring.

Thus the Gophers, unbeaten in 28 games and victorious in their last 21, continued their march to the Western conference championship, perhaps to the national championship, in the knowledge that they have conquered one of the most feared elevens on their 1936 schedule.

The lineups:

2 GRID PLAYERS DIE OF INJURIES

Youths In Tennessee And Texas Succumb After Being Hurt In Games

DANDRIDGE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—"Mother, I'm O. K.," whispered George Alfred Thomas, 19-year-old Maury High school football guard, just before he lapsed into unconsciousness early today.

Half an hour later he died of internal injuries suffered in a game with Sevierville High school yesterday.

The 180-pound youth, one of the largest members of the Dandridge team, was struck in the abdomen just after the kickoff in the second half of the game.

He was carried to a nearby house.

"I want to go back into the game," George kept pleading, but he was removed to his home.

His teammates were at his bedside until he died. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Thomas, who live a mile north of Dandridge.

Football players will serve as pallbearers at his funeral here Sunday.

TEXAS BOY DIES

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Viry Fontenot, 18-year-old football player on the Crosby High school team, died today of injuries received in a game yesterday between Crosby and Liberty at Crosby.

Justice R. R. Zierlein of Goose Creek said cerebral concussion was the cause of death.

It was stated Fontenot was injured when he was tackled. He was knocked to the ground, but he got up and remained in the game. A few minutes later, while in a huddle, Fontenot dropped to the ground unconscious. He never regained consciousness.

Funeral will be in Eunice, La., tomorrow.

YALE PROTECTS RECORD WITH WIN OVER RUTGERS

YALE BOWL, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Yale kept its undefeated and united record intact today, trouncing Rutgers, 28 to 0, for its fourth victory of the season. Captain Larry Kelley, who played little more than one quarter; Carley Ewart, Al Wilson and Bud Humphrey each tallied a touchdown for the victors.

CENTER EXPECTED TO BE IN BETTER SHAPE THIS WEEK

Pittman Only Casualty Of Monticello Game And Others Improve

Following their second unsuccessful invasion of Arkansas, the Indians of Northeast Center of L. S. U. began preparations yesterday for their game with Copiah-Lincoln junior college at Brown field next Thursday night. It will be the first home appearance for the Indians in three weeks.

Coach Jim Malone's charges came out of the Monticello game in good shape and will be in better condition than at any time since the Southeastern game, the Tribal mentor said yesterday. At least two and perhaps three or four of the regulars who started the season will still be on the sidelines because of injuries, but the other cripples who have either been out of action entirely in the past couple of games or whose injuries have seriously handicapped them will be in fairly good shape.

There was one casualty in the Monticello game. "Red" Pittman, who turned in a bang-up performance at end, received a broken shoulder near the end of the game and had to be carried from the field. Pittman's injury came just after he had caught a long pass that was almost good for a touchdown. "Red" slipped on the soggy gridiron on about the 20 yard line when it appeared that he was going to reach the pay stripe. He had an open field ahead of him, and his ability to hold his footing was just one of the tough breaks the Indians suffered at Monticello.

A momentary lapse on the part of one of the Indian secondary was responsible for Monticello's touchdown in the third period. The pass defense had been working fairly well until then. A long pass was completed to Simmons, elongated end, as the Indians were caught flat-footed and Simmons scooted over the goal line for the score that beat the Tribe.

Clifford Johnson and George Kalil continued their praiseworthy work Friday night. Kalil has played sixty minutes of four ball games this season and in the other he got to rest five minutes. His steady work at guard has been one of the bright spots of the season.

Bob Kellogg, the Wynne, Ark., flash, was able to break into the lineup for a short while Friday night and showed some of his old form. He got away for a couple of nice gains and would have shown to even better advantage if he had received the blocking that his mates should have given him. "Red" Reynolds, another fleet, shifty back, was unable to play at all at Monticello but he should be ready to go Thursday night.

Copiah-Lincoln again has a strong team. Local fans will remember the club from two years ago. It was the smoothest aggregation that has faced the Indians in two years and the local team put up a great fight to hold them to a draw.

Coach Hook Stone employs the Notre Dame system at Copiah-Lincoln and the Wolves worked perfectly in giving their fine exhibition at Brown field two years ago. They blocked well and shifted smoothly in the rhythmic Rockne formations. The Notre Dame system is a pleasure to watch when it's worked perfectly and the Copiah-Lincoln club is one which apparently always clicks.

Coach Malone was elated yesterday that his club came out of the Monticello game in good shape and he was hopeful that the injury jinx would give the Indians a rest for the remainder of the season.

"If we can get by this week without anybody getting hurt in practice, we should be ready for Copiah-Lincoln," he said. "Some of those who were unable to play against Arkansas State Teachers and Monticello will be back in the lineup and I believe we will hit our stride again."

DOPE SCRAMBLED

tucky a tussle before surrendering, 7-0. Auburn halted Georgia, 20-13, and Louisiana checked Arkansas, 19-7. In the Southern conference, North Carolina State won from Virginia Tech, 13-0; Washington over Virginia, 13-0; Virginia Military over Richmond, 20-0, and Davidson over Citadel, 21-0.

Washington, Washington State and Southern California remained unbeaten in the Pacific Coast conference race. Washington won from California, 13-0; Southern California upset Stanford for the first time since 1932, 14-7, and Washington State eked out a 3-0 victory over Oregon.

Utah State moved to the front in the Rocky Mountain conference by handing Utah its first defeat, 12-0.

CROWLEY HIGH SCHOOL PLAYER'S LEG BROKEN

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Maxwell Barrouse, veteran halfback on the Crowley High school football team, sustained a compound fracture of the leg in a game with Lake Charles High school last night. He was removed from the playing field to St. Patricks hospital here.

It was the second broken leg in as many games sustained by opposing players of Lake Charles Wildcats. Last week end a Nichtiches lineman met with the same accident. The Wildcats won last night's game, 27 to 0.

FERRIDAY AND NATCHEZ PLAY TO 7-7 DEADLOCK

RICE OWLS UPSET LONGHORNS, 7 TO 0

Fourth Quarter Touchdown Gives Houston Team Surprise Victory

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—The Rice Owls, three times beaten away from the goal line, smashed through for a last minute touchdown and defeated the favored University of Texas Longhorns, 7 to 0, in a Southwest conference football game today.

A smart play by Schuehle, Rice quarterback, paved the way to the counter after a sustained line drive, engineered by Caldwell, Russell and Vickers, carried the ball from the Texas 38 to the 11.

Hancock, crippled Owl back, was sent into the game and apparently the stage was set for an attempt at a field goal. Schuehle pulled a neat quarterback sneak, however, and wriggled through to the shadow of the goal line. Vickers plunged over on the next play and then kicked goal from placement.

The lineups:

BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN UPSETS CHATTANOOGA

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Birmingham-Southern's Golden Panthers came from behind today to overhaul a favored University of Chattanooga Moccasin and win, 14-7, in bright, warm weather. About 2,000 saw the game.

The Moccasins took the game's first punt on their own 34 and marched straight to a touchdown. John Nardo, halfback, went over from the 12 and Bob Klein, end, added the seventh point.

The Panthers raced into the last half, flashed a brilliant passing combination of Spence and Perry, and immediately took the upper hand and held it. Passes carried to the Chattanooga 17 and then Spence flipped to Perry on the eight and the fullback scored. McLendon, end, added the point.

Ford intercepted a Chattanooga pass on the Moccasin 28 in the fourth period. Perry passed to Spence on the 10 and then the latter took it over for a touchdown. McLendon again added the extra point.

Score by periods:

Chattanooga	7	0	0	0	—7
Birmingham-Southern	0	0	7	7	—14

LARGE BOXING CLASSES WORK OUT WITH JORDAN

"Curley" Jordan, one-time flyweight boxer and later manager for two of the south's outstanding mittmen, had 186 youths in attendance at his boxing class Friday night as evidence of the popularity of his classes, which are conducted under the auspices of the city of Monroe and WPA at the Recreation center on DeSiard street.

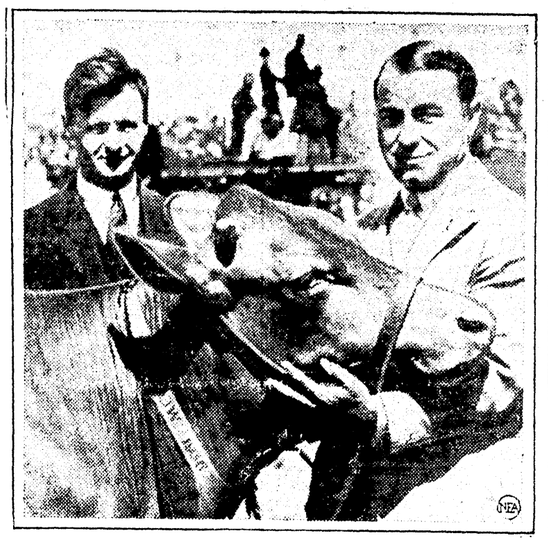

Jordan, himself too old to set the pace he did around 1910 when he was after the flyweight crown, now gets enjoyment out of having Monroe's youths flocking to his classes which are conducted free of charge. The classes are held from 6 to 10 p.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Testimony of Jordan's training ability was his development of two outstanding southern scrappers, Quina Lee and Eddie Wilson. Lee held two southern championship, the flyweight and bantamweight, and Wilson was a leading bantamweight contender.

But Jordan has left the "big time" and made his home here with his family, and many of the boys taking instruction from him now at the Recreation center will probably be seen in the high school rings when the boxing season opens next year.

Thousands of fish, marooned in San Angelo, Tex., building basements following a recent flood, were rescued and returned to rivers and lakes by game wardens.

A SWITCH FROM TEE TO MILK

Winning Golf

By Lawson Little

I have a letter from Mr. Roger Huston of White Plains, New York, in which he wants to know what club to use for shots of about fifty yards in to the green. He has been using a number five iron, but friends have told him that he should employ a seven or an eight iron.

Mr. Huston's problem is one that confronts many golfers throughout the world. The question is whether or not to pay a run-up shot. My answer is that it depends upon the condition of the course, the layout of the particular hole and the position of the pin. If for example the pin is placed on the short side of the green and there is a sand trap between the player and the hole, a number five iron would be almost useless. The low flight of the ball would not be conducive to stopping it near the pin, and in many cases it would sail over the green on the first bounce. But if there is a relatively smooth apron in front of the green and it is firm enough to permit the ball to make a straight bounce or two forward, the number five iron might well be used. This type of shot is the same as the famed St. Andrews run-up. Going to extremes, George Dunlap, in the 1934 Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews, frequently used a putter from about fifty yards off the ninth and tenth greens. This was done because the greens were exceedingly slippery for pitch shots, and the ground between him and the hole was ideal for a rolling shot.

Shot To Play

I prefer to play more of the pitch-run type shot or even the high pitch, when the greens are soft. If the greens are hard, I will use a spade mashie or a mashie niblick and try to pitch the ball to some flat spot just short of the green. From there I can be reasonably sure that the ball will get a straight bounce toward the hole.

In playing this shot, there should be no thought of trying to scoop the ball up with the clubhead. The loft on the club is sufficient to get the ball as high into the air as necessary. The ideal way to play the shot is to catch the ball on the downswing—though the downward angle of the club is not as steep as in a quick stopping shot. It is important to follow through, letting the clubhead go out toward the hole as far as possible. This sort of action tends to keep the ball on a true line to the hole.

If the greens are soft, I recommend using the club with the least amount of loft that will enable the player to pitch the ball onto the green and stop the shot close to the hole. The reason I say the least amount of loft possible is because the average hundred shooter usually finds difficulty in using the more lofted clubs. The sharp edge that is present on most of these clubs digs into the ground too quickly for the average golfer, unless he is immune to the tendency of scooping.

There are a number of cases where the ball has to be pitched all the way to the green and stopped as quickly as possible. If there is an intervening bunker or heavy rough at the apron, the shot can not be successful unless it is pitched over the trouble. In such cases the niblick or even the dynamiter is required.

The Mental Hazard

This is the shot that adds strokes to the poorer player's score. When he stands up to the shot, he immediately pictures a seven or an eight if he doesn't successfully negotiate the trouble—he then becomes "score conscious" so to speak and puts the ball in the place he was trying to avoid. At other times his precautions lead him to overhit and send the ball beyond the green into whatever trouble awaits him on the other side of the green.

The proper way to play this shot is to stand slightly opened and more in front of the ball than usual, keeping the face of the club fairly well closed at address. The ball should be struck a sharp descending blow with the club taking a divot after the ball has been hit. In all cases the club must make contact with the ball before it hits the ground. The follow through should not be too long for this shot is accomplished mostly through hand and arm movement. As is the case in all shots, scooping or trying to help the ball up is the greatest possible error when attempting this shot.

In general, for the beginner, use the lesser lofted clubs for approaches to the pin except where circumstances make it absolutely necessary to play the high, quick-stop pitch shot.

BAYLOR, AGGIES BATTLE TO TIE

Wet Field Slows Up Game As Bears Hold Favored Texas A. And M.

WACO, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A slick field and a slimy football cramped the style of the Texas Aggies and Baylor Bears as they battled to a scoreless tie today before 7,000 fans.

Sensational punting by Lloyd Russell, Baylor halfback, and Bill Stages and Doc Pitner for A. and M. made it a good football game despite the mud and intermittent rain.

Neither team was able to get anywhere with running attacks. The few passes attempted were wild or batted down.

Baylor made the only earned first down. Bob Masters on two successive end runs, in the fourth period, accounted for it.

Both teams began punting soon after the game opened and, from that point to the closing gun they often kicked on first downs, waiting patiently for the break which never came.

The lineups:

A. And M.	Pos	Baylor

NORTHWESTERN DEFEATS ILLINOIS TEAM, 13 TO 2

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Northwestern's powerful Wildcat used its claws just twice today to rake out two touchdowns and conquer Illinois' courageous little eleven, 13 to 2, for its third straight Western conference football triumph, as an Illini homecoming crowd of 27,000 spectators looked on disappointedly.

Apparently content to win without cutting loose any more than necessary, Northwestern, with its two "dashing dons," who wrecked Ohio State's title hopes a week ago, again furnishing the punch, fashioned a touchdown in the second period and smashed ruthlessly down the field 73 yards for another in the third frame.

The Illini escaped a shutout when a questionable bit of Wildcat strategy in the final period accounted for a safety.

FORDHAM NOSES OUT ST. MARY'S

Point After Touchdown Gives Rams Hard Fought 7-6 Triumph

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Despite a self-imposed handicap of 132 yards in penalties, Fordham's powerful football team turned back St. Mary's Gaels, 7-6, today in the Polo Grounds before a crowd of 50,000 on the execution of a point after touchdown by Quarterback Andy Palau.

The Californians had the gallop taken out of them the first time they collided with the Rams' rugged forward wall and their widely heralded passing attack with Les (Just) Groux pitching was ineffective against Fordham's alert secondary.

Fordham incurred seven penalties of 15 yards each for a total of 105 yards for back in motion after the shift.

In the first period, Quarterback Lou Ferry, with Sill holding the ball on the Rams' 24, booted it across the bar for a field goal and three points.

Again, without fuss or ado, Ferry discarded his head gear, dropped back to the 42 and again with Sill holding the ball, lifted the leather across the bar.

Al Gurske passed to Palau for 21 yards and then the Rams unleashed a neat forward lateral, good for 26 yards. Palau to Jacunski to Wojciechowicz. Palau passed to Jacunski in the end zone for a touchdown. Palau converted from placement, sending Fordham ahead 7-6, a few seconds before the first period ended.

The lineup:

OUIMET'S GOLF

FRANCIS OUIMET

Some years ago I had a special set of clubs designed to give a greater measure of flexibility than the usual shaft of that era was capable of. At a point just below the leather grip the hickory shaft was shaved to a degree, making it noticeably thinner at this area than the expanse of shaft immediately above and below. This added an elasticity to the club which it would not otherwise have had and after a few trials I found I could play quite well with the set. For one thing it favored a truer swinging motion than the stiffer shafted clubs, which added smoothness to the stroke.

One reason by MacDonald Smith has remained so long among the first flight professionals is the fluid quality of his swinging, a true stroke that is so perfectly grooved that he can repeat it time and again. Any method that might aid the average player to capture this true swinging element should be encouraged for without doubt it is the one essential feature of good golf.

Encourages Swinging Motion

To this end many trick club shafts have at times been put on the market not for actual play but for practice sessions. Bobby Jones for instance in stunts on occasion when he played with a club having a buggy whip shaft and was quite amazed at the results obtained. The main purpose in practice with a club of this sort is that it favors the true swing over a halting, jerky muscular effort. The muscles of the body must synchronize perfectly or else the clubhead is going to waver around uncertainly in the air with little chance of making an effective impact with the ball.

Practice During Winter

The winter season offers an excellent opportunity for practice through such a medium and continued application may well work miracles in one's game. Concentration alone on the swing and becoming increasingly conscious of just how the hands and arms work in relation to it, during its various positions, will unconsciously give one the proper weight transference. There is no need to disrupt one's trend of thought with the many do's and don'ts which are apparently the lot of the player who struggles along under the old formula.

Once one becomes aware of this true swinging feeling a measure of confidence is added that eventually will lower the score. This does not necessarily mean that the golfer must content himself for all time with a flexible shaft however. Once the swing has been learned he may use a shaft to suit his own requirements. Golfers who play every day often find the stiffer shaft more adaptable to their purpose while the week-end golfer prefers the more pliable club. The latter's muscles are not so attuned to the game and flexibility aids him in achieving the timing so essential to the well hit shot.

SAVAGE AND WESTENBERG MEET TUESDAY

CHAMPION RISKS CROWN AGAINST SOUTHERN RULER

All-Star Card Also Includes Match Between Bashara And Macaluso

Leo "Whiskers" Savage, powerful Kentucky hillbilly, will risk his heavyweight wrestling title against Marvin Westenberg, southern champion, in the main event of an all-star show at Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night. In the other half of the big program, Ellis Bashara, rough Oklahoman, will meet Len Macaluso, former Colgate all-American, in a match which should be just about as interesting as the meeting between the two champs.

With Savage recognized in no less than seven states as world heavyweight champion, his match with Westenberg rates as the biggest grappling attraction ever staged here. Westenberg hasn't lost a match in the local arena for more than a year, and there are many fans who believe he can't be beaten here. Savage, also, has gone undefeated for months on end, so somebody's winning streak is bound to come to an end Tuesday. Of course, the big fellows could wrestle to a two-hour draw, but that's unlikely.

Savage defeated Westenberg in a title match at Shreveport a month or so ago. It was a close, hard-fought battle that kept the fans on edge throughout. Westenberg asked for a return bout, and Promoter Phillip Lisotta bid high enough to cop it for Monroe.

"I feel sure I can beat Savage now," Westenberg told Lisotta last week when the promoter was negotiating with Savage in an attempt to close the match. "I learned plenty about him when we met the first time, and I'm sure I can use that knowledge to good advantage. One thing's certain, I'm going to keep out of his way when he starts using those bear hugs."

It was with those powerful, crushing arms that Savage won when they met before. Westenberg apparently has learned his lesson and it isn't likely that Leo will be able to use the same hold twice in succession in defense of his crown against the burly Westenberg.

There are many who believe Westenberg is big enough and good enough to beat "Whiskers." He undoubtedly knows more holds than the Kentuckian and he's almost as strong. Savage relies chiefly on brute strength, and Marvin believes he has mapped out a campaign that will overcome that.

Savage, of course, has met and defeated some of the best men in the game, particularly since he won his heavyweight title. His chief offensive maneuvers are the bear hug and a back breaker, and he's a pretty terrifying spectacle with his long hair and beard. In fact, it's said that many grapplers now operating in this section are afraid of him. Westenberg, however, hasn't shown any signs of weakness in that respect.

The Bashara-Macaluso match also promises plenty of fireworks. Bashara not only knows most of the holds but he mixes enough rough stuff with his science to make him one of the most feared matmen in the business. He has worked in many sensational matches here.

Macaluso returns to the local ring after an absence of more than a month. Always a favorite here, the former football luminary is chiefly a scientific performer. His nickname of "Iron Legs" is self-explanatory. He possesses some poweful underpinning that has stood him in good stead on numerous occasions. Mac doesn't hesitate to mix it with a rough opponent and there's no doubt that he'll have an opportunity to use his fists before he gets through with Bashara.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls.

Lisotta announced yesterday that there will be no advance in admission prices.

REYNOLDS SMITH REACHES TEXARKANA SEMI-FINALS

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Reynolds Smith, Dallas Walker Cup star, advanced to the semi-finals today in the Texarkana Country club's four-state golf tournament with a 4-3 win over Whitney Harb of Little Rock.

He will meet Jimmy McGonagill, Dallas, in the upper bracket of the semi-finals tomorrow while Bill Carl, Gladewater, Tex., plays Don Schumacher, Dallas, in the lower bracket.

Clark advanced with an easy 7-6 victory over Vance Lidell, Shreveport, after upsetting Harry Todd, Dallas, by a 2-1 count in the first round.

Schumacher pushed his way into the semi-finals with a 7-5 triumph over Paul Reverra, Jr., Texarkana. He eliminated W. B. Walsh, Texarkana, 8-7, in the first round.

McGonagill had little trouble disposing of Nick Overstreet, Hot Springs, by a 5-4 score in the quarter-finals after a hard fought 19-hole first round tilt in which he eliminated Trevor Caven Texarkana.

Smith ousted the veteran J. K. Wadley, Texarkana, by a 4-3 count in the first round.

MARYLAND ELEVEN WHIPS SYRACUSE BY 20-0 SCORE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 24—(AP)—A fast charging Maryland line stopped Syracuse cold here this afternoon while the Maryland backs romped across the Orange goal line three times, to win 20 to 0. Guckeyson, Gormley and Meade tallied the six pointers while Gormley added two placement tries of the three attempted.

PITT OVERWHELMS NOTRE DAME, 26-0

'Biggie' Goldberg Leads Panthers To Spectacular Triumph

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Proud Notre Dame suffered its most humiliating defeat since 1925 today as the mighty Pittsburgh Panthers, subdued a week ago by little Duquesne, broke loose to crush the fighting Irish, 26 to 0 before a wild crowd of 70,224 spectators.

Marshall "Biggie" Goldberg, 17-year-old Jewish sophomore from West Virginia, solved the great mystery of the Irish, who came to Pittsburgh undefeated and untied.

Slippery as an eel as fast as lightning, Goldberg led the furious, vicious attack that turned the South Bend typhoon into a zephry.

Halfback Goldberg, weighing 175 pounds and standing five feet nine, scored but one of the four Pitt touchdowns but his spectacular open field running was responsible for two others as the Panthers rushed over one touchdown in each the second and third periods and then rolled over two more in the final.

The Irish didn't make a first down until the closing minutes of the third period and only made a total of four as against 15 for Pitt. In yardage gained, they were outdistanced 325 yards to 73.

Frank Souchak, Pitt end, made placements after the first and third touchdowns.

TEXAS TECH WINS FROM CENTENARY

Gents Score First But Are Unable To Protect Lead; Score, 12-6

LUBBOCK, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Striking back in the second quarter to tie the score at six-all, Texas Tech's Red Raiders scored again in the third period to defeat the Centenary college Gentlemen, 12 to 6, in a homecoming football game here tonight.

Approximately 8,000 fans braved chilly wet weather to see the game.

Centenary scored early in the second quarter when Cowboy Hohmann intercepted a pass from Neill on Tech's 30-yard line and returned for a touchdown. Stokes failed to kick goal.

Texas Tech drove 54 yards for its first score, Neill running 16 yards to start the attack. He passed to Ramsey and to Cannon for 20 yards and ran to the one-yard line, finally plunging over for a touchdown. Hemsel failed to kick goal and the score was tied as the half ended.

Tech recovered a fumble on Centenary's 22-yard line midway in the third period and Neill passed to West for a touchdown. Hemsel again failed to convert.

WASHINGTON ELIMINATES CALIFORNIA BEARS, 13-0

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The University of Washington charged another lap closer to the Rose Bowl today with a 13 to 0 football triumph over California.

The victory was the third straight for the Huskies and kept Washington in the Pacific coast forefront.

Twenty thousand spectators saw Washington virtually eliminate California from the Coast league race when Jimmy Cain and Byron Haines drove over the Bear goal line for touchdowns. Both scores were made from the one-foot line on fourth downs, Cain diving over center for the first score in the second period, and Haines circling left end for the other in the third.

Washington hurled the Bears back with only one first down and that was made on the first two plays.

Washington marched 42 yards to its first touchdown and Logg failed to place kick the extra point, but his place kick was good after Haines went over.

ARMY RUNS ROUGHSHOD OVER SPRINGFIELD, 33-0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Army ran double-time over little Springfield college, 33-0, today, scoring two thouchdowns in the first, two more in the second, and another in the third period.

With 27,000 fans packed in Michie Stadium, Army employed little more than fundamental football and used almost every substitute on the bench.

Army made eight first downs to Springfield's two and outrushed the New Englanders 189 to 69.

Score by periods:

MINNESOTA WHIPS PURDUE, 33 TO 0

Boilermakers Collapse In Second Half And Gophers Run Wild

Minneapolis, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Purdue's team of destiny, like 20 other attackers before it, attempted to force Minnesota's surrender today, but in the end it was vanquished, 33 to 0, before 50,000 spectators.

The gallant crew of Boilermakers, bidding for a Big Ten championship, after playing brilliantly for 30 minutes, collapsed in the final half and were scattered to all corners of the stadium.

Purdue gave out in the second half before a surge of Minnesota manpower, and was trampled under four more touchdowns after the Gophers had scored their first marker in the opening period. The Boilermakers staged a willing and desperate battle but were out-manned and outcharged. Towards the end reserve players were tearing big gaps in Purdue's line which was rapidly weakening and tiring.

Thus the Gophers, unbeaten in 28 games and victorious in their last 21, continued their march to the Western conference championship, perhaps to the national championship, in the knowledge that they have conquered one of the most feared elevens on their 1936 schedule.

The lineups:

2 GRID PLAYERS DIE OF INJURIES

Youths In Tennessee And Texas Succumb After Being Hurt In Games

DANDRIDGE, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—"Mother, I'm O. K.," whispered George Alfred Thomas, 19-year-old Maury High school football guard, just before he lapsed into unconsciousness early today.

Half an hour later he died of internal injuries suffered in a game with Sevierville High school yesterday.

The 180-pound youth, one of the largest members of the Dandridge team, was struck in the abdomen just after the kickoff in the second half of the game.

He was carried to a nearby house.

"I want to go back into the game," George kept pleading, but he was removed to his home.

His teammates were at his bedside until he died. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Thomas, who live a mile north of Dandridge.

Football players will serve as pallbearers at his funeral here Sunday.

TEXAS BOY DIES

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Viry Fontenot, 18-year-old football player on the Crosby High school team, died today of injuries received in a game yesterday between Crosby and Liberty at Crosby.

Justice R. R. Zierlein of Goose Creek said cerebral concussion was the cause of death.

It was stated Fontenot was injured when he was tackled. He was knocked to the ground, but he got up and remained in the game. A few minutes later, while in a huddle, Fontenot dropped to the ground unconscious. He never regained consciousness.

Funeral will be in Eunice, La., tomorrow.

YALE PROTECTS RECORD WITH WIN OVER RUTGERS

YALE BOWL, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Yale kept its undefeated and united record intact today, trouncing Rutgers, 28 to 0, for its fourth victory of the season. Captain Larry Kelley, who played little more than one quarter; Carley Ewart, Al Wilson and Bud Humphrey each tallied a touchdown for the victors.

CENTER EXPECTED TO BE IN BETTER SHAPE THIS WEEK

Pittman Only Casualty Of Monticello Game And Others Improve

Following their second unsuccessful invasion of Arkansas, the Indians of Northeast Center of L. S. U. began preparations yesterday for their game with Copiah-Lincoln junior college at Brown field next Thursday night. It will be the first home appearance for the Indians in three weeks.

Coach Jim Malone's charges came out of the Monticello game in good shape and will be in better condition than at any time since the Southeastern game, the Tribal mentor said yesterday. At least two and perhaps three or four of the regulars who started the season will still be on the sidelines because of injuries, but the other cripples who have either been out of action entirely in the past couple of games or whose injuries have seriously handicapped them will be in fairly good shape.

There was one casualty in the Monticello game. "Red" Pittman, who turned in a bang-up performance at end, received a broken shoulder near the end of the game and had to be carried from the field. Pittman's injury came just after he had caught a long pass that was almost good for a touchdown. "Red" slipped on the soggy gridiron on about the 20 yard line when it appeared that he was going to reach the pay stripe. He had an open field ahead of him, and his ability to hold his footing was just one of the tough breaks the Indians suffered at Monticello.

A momentary lapse on the part of one of the Indian secondary was responsible for Monticello's touchdown in the third period. The pass defense had been working fairly well until then. A long pass was completed to Simmons, elongated end, as the Indians were caught flat-footed and Simmons scooted over the goal line for the score that beat the Tribe.

Clifford Johnson and George Kalil continued their praiseworthy work Friday night. Kalil has played sixty minutes of four ball games this season and in the other, he got to rest five minutes. His steady work at guard has been one of the bright spots of the season.

Bob Kellogg, the Wynne, Ark., flash, was able to break into the lineup for a short while Friday night and showed some of his old form. He got away for a couple of nice gains and would have shown to even better advantage if he had received the blocking that his mates should have given him. "Red" Reynolds, another fleet, shifty back, was unable to play at all at Monticello but he should be ready to go Thursday night.

Copiah-Lincoln again has a strong team. Local fans will remember the club from two years ago. It was the smoothest aggregation that has faced the Indians in two years and the local team put up a great fight to hold them to a draw.

Coach Hook Stone employs the Notre Dame system at Copiah-Lincoln and the Wolves worked perfectly in giving their fine exhibition at Brown field two years ago. They blocked well and shifted smoothly in the rhythmic Rockne formations. The Notre Dame system is a pleasure to watch when it's worked perfectly and the Copiah-Lincoln club is one which apparently always clicks.

Coach Malone was elated yesterday that his club came out of the Monticello game in good shape and he was hopeful that the injury jinx would give the Indians a rest for the remainder of the season.

"If we can get by this week without anybody getting hurt in practice, we should be ready for Copiah-Lincoln," he said. "Some of those who were unable to play against Arkansas State Teachers and Monticello will be back in the lineup and I believe we will hit our stride again."

tucky a tussle before surrendering, 7-0. Auburn halted Georgia, 20-13, and Louisiana checked Arkansas, 19-7. In the Southern conference, North Carolina State won from Virginia Tech, 13-0; Washington over Virginia, 13-0; Virginia Military over Richmond, 20-0, and Davidson over Citadel, 21-0.

Washington, Washington State and Southern California remained unbeaten in the Pacific Coast conference race. Washington won from California, 13-0; Southern California upset Stanford for the first time since 1932, 14-7, and Washington State eked out a 3-0 victory over Oregon.

Utah State moved to the front in the Rocky Mountain conference by handing Utah its first defeat, 12-0.

CROWLEY HIGH SCHOOL PLAYER'S LEG BROKEN

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Maxwell Barrouse, veteran halfback on the Crowley High school football team, sustained a compound fracture of the leg in a game with Lake Charles High school last night. He was removed from the playing field to St. Patricks hospital here.

It was the second broken leg in as many games sustained by opposing players of Lake Charles Wildcats. Last week end a Natchitoches lineman met with the same accident. The Wildcats won last night's game, 27 to 0.

FERRIDAY AND NATCHEZ PLAY TO 7-7 DEADLOCK

RICE OWLS UPSET LONGHORNS, 7 TO 0

Fourth Quarter Touchdown Gives Houston Team Surprise Victory

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 24.—The Rice Owls, three times beaten away from the goal line, smashed through for a last minute touchdown and defeated the favored University of Texas Longhorns, 7 to 0, in a Southwest conference football game today.

A smart play by Schuehle, Rice quarterback, paved the way to the counter after a sustained line drive, engineered by Caldwell, Russell and Vickers, carried the ball from the Texas 38 to the 11.

Hancock, crippled Owl back, was sent into the game and apparently the stage was set for an attempt at a field goal. Schuehle pulled a neat quarterback sneak, however, and wriggled through to the shadow of the goal line. Vickers plunged over on the next play and then kicked goal from placement.

BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN UPSETS CHATTANOOGA

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Birmingham-Southern's Golden Panthers came from behind today to overhaul a favored University of Chattanooga Moccasin and win, 14-7, in bright, warm weather. About 2,000 saw the game.

The Moccasins took the game's first punt on their own 34 and marched straight to a touchdown. John Nardo, halfback, went over from the 12 and Bob Klein, end, added the seventh point.

The Panthers raced into the last half, flashed a brilliant passing combination of Spence and Perry, and immediately took the upper hand and held it. Passes carried to the Chattanooga 17 and then Spence flipped to Perry on the eight and the fullback scored. McLendon, end, added the point.

Ford intercepted a Chattanooga pass on the Moccasin 28 in the fourth period. Perry passed to Spence on the 10 and then the latter took it over for a touchdown. McLendon again added the extra point.

Score by periods:

Chattanooga	7	0	0	0	7
Birmingham-Southern	0	0	7	7	14

LARGE BOXING CLASSES WORK OUT WITH JORDAN

"Curley" Jordan, one-time flyweight boxer and later manager for two of the south's outstanding mittmen, had 186 youths in attendance at his boxing class Friday night as evidence of the popularity of his classes, which are conducted under the auspices of the city of Monroe and WPA at the Recreation center on DeSiard street.

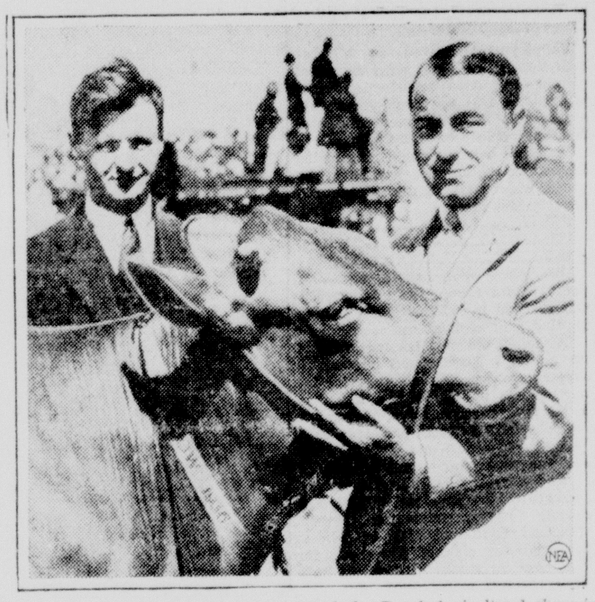

Jordan, himself too old to set the pace he did around 1910 when he was after the flyweight crown, now gets enjoyment out of having Monroe's youths flocking to his classes which are conducted free of charge. The classes are held from 6 to 10 p.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Testimony of Jordan's training ability was his development of two outstanding southern scrappers, Quina Lee and Eddie Wilson. Lee held two southern championship, the flyweight and bantamweight, and Wilson was a leading bantamweight contender.

But Jordan has left the "big time" and made his home here with his family, and many of the boys taking instruction from him now at the Recreation center will probably be seen in the high school rings when the boxing season opens next year.

Thousands of fish, marooned in San Angelo, Tex., building basements following a recent flood, were rescued and returned to rivers and lakes by game wardens.

Winning Golf

By Lawson Little

I have a letter from Mr. Roger Huston of White Plains, New York, in which he wants to know what club to use for shots of about fifty yards in to the green. He has been using a number five iron, but friends have told him that he should employ a seven or an eight iron.

Mr. Huston's problem is one that confronts many golfers throughout the world. The question is whether or not to pay a run-up shot. My answer is that it depends upon the condition of the course, the layout of the particular hole and the position of the pin. If for example the pin is placed on the short side of the green and there is a sand trap between the player and the hole, a number five iron would be almost useless. The low flight of the ball would not be conducive to stopping it near the pin, and in many cases it would sail over the green on the first bounce. But if there is a relatively smooth apron in front of the green and it is firm enough to permit the ball to make a straight bounce or two forward, the number five iron might well be used. This type of shot is the same as the famed St. Andrews run-up. Going to extremes, George Dunlap, in the 1934 Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews, frequently used a putter from about fifty yards off the ninth and tenth greens. This was done because the greens were exceedingly slippery for pitch shots, and the ground between him and the hole was ideal for a rolling shot.

Shot To Play

I prefer to play more of the pitch-run type shot or even the high pitch, when the greens are soft. If the greens are hard, I will use a spade mashie or a mashie niblick and try to pitch the ball to some flat spot just short of the green. From there I can be reasonably sure that the ball will get a straight bounce toward the hole.

In playing this shot, there should be no thought of trying to scoop the ball up with the clubhead. The loft on the club is sufficient to get the ball as high into the air as necessary. The ideal way to play the shot is to catch the ball on the downswing—though the downward angle of the club is not as steep as in a quick stopping shot. It is important to follow through, letting the clubhead go out toward the hole as far as possible. This sort of action tends to keep the ball on a true line to the hole.

If the greens are soft, I recommend using the club with the least amount of loft that will enable the player to pitch the ball onto the green and stop the shot close to the hole. The reason I say the least amount of loft possible is because the average hundred shooter usually finds difficulty in using the more lofted clubs. The sharp edge that is present on most of these clubs digs into the ground too quickly for the average golfer, unless he is immune to the tendency of scooping.

There are a number of cases where the ball has to be pitched all the way to the green and stopped as quickly as possible. If there is an intervening bunker or heavy rough at the apron, the shot can not be successful unless it is pitched over the trouble. In such cases the niblick or even the dynamiter is required.

The Mental Hazard

This is the shot that adds strokes to the poorer player's score. When he stands up to the shot, he immediately pictures a seven or an eight if he doesn't successfully negotiate the trouble—he then becomes "score conscious" so to speak and puts the ball in the place he was trying to avoid. At other times his precautions lead him to overhit and send the ball beyond the green into whatever trouble awaits him on the other side of the green.

The proper way to play this shot is to stand slightly opened and more in front of the ball than usual, keeping the face of the club fairly well closed at address. The ball should be struck a sharp descending blow with the club taking a divot after the ball has been hit. In all cases the club must make contact with the ball before it hits the ground. The follow through should not be too long for this shot is accomplished mostly through hand and arm movement. As is the case in all shots, scooping or trying to help the ball up is the greatest possible error when attempting this shot.

In general, for the beginner, use the lesser lofted clubs for approaches to the pin except where circumstances make it absolutely necessary to play the high, quick-stop pitch shot.

BAYLOR, AGGIES BATTLE TO TIE

Wet Field Slows Up Game As Bears Hold Favored Texas A. And M.

WACO, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP)—A slick field and a slimy football cramped the style of the Texas Aggies and Baylor Bears as they battled to a scoreless tie today before 7,000 fans.

Sensational punting by Lloyd Russell, Baylor halfback, and Bill Stages and Doc Pitner for A. and M. made it a good football game despite the mud and intermittent rain.

Neither team was able to get anywhere with running attacks. The few passes attempted were wild or batted down.

Baylor made the only earned first down. Bob Masters on two successive end runs, in the fourth period, accounted for it.

Both teams began punting soon after the game opened and, from that point to the closing gun they often kicked on first downs, waiting patiently for the break which never came.

The lineups:

A. And M.	Pos.	Baylor

NORTHWESTERN DEFEATS ILLINOIS TEAM, 13 TO 2

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Northwestern's powerful Wildcat used its claws just twice today to rake out two touchdowns and conquer Illinois' courageous little eleven, 13 to 2, for its third straight Western conference football triumph, as an Illini homecoming crowd of 27,000 spectators looked on disappointedly.

Apparently content to win without cutting loose any more than necessary, Northwestern, with its two "dashing dons," who wrecked Ohio State's title hopes a week ago, again furnishing the punch, fashioned a touchdown in the second period and smashed ruthlessly down the field 73 yards for another in the third frame.

The Illini escaped a shutout when a questionable bit of Wildcat strategy in the final period accounted for a safety.

FORDHAM NOSES OUT ST. MARY'S

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Despite a self-imposed handicap of 132 yards in penalties, Fordham's powerful football team turned back St. Mary's Gaels, 7-6, today in the Polo Grounds before a crowd of 50,000 on the execution of a point after touchdown by Quarterback Andy Palau.

The Californians had the gallop taken out of them the first time they collided with the Rams' rugged forward wall and their widely heralded passing attack with Les (Just) Groux pitching was ineffective against Fordham's alert secondary.

Fordham incurred seven penalties of 15 yards each for a total of 105 yards for back in motion after the shift.

In the first period, Quarterback Lou Ferry, with Sill holding the ball on the Rams' 24, booted it across the bar for a field goal and three points.

Again, without fuss or ado, Ferry discarded his head gear, dropped back to the 42 and again with Sill holding the ball, lifted the leather across the bar.

Al Gurske passed to Palau for 21 yards and then the Rams unleashed a neat forward lateral, good for 26 yards, Palau to Jacunski to Wojciechowicz. Palau passed to Jacunski in the end zone for a touchdown. Palau converted from placement, sending Fordham ahead 7-6, a few seconds before the first period ended.

The lineup:

OUIMET'S GOLF

FRANCIS OUIMET

Some years ago I had a special set of clubs designed to give a greater measure of flexibility than the usual shaft of that era was capable of. At a point just below the leather grip the hickory shaft was shaved to a degree, making it noticeably thinner at this area than the expanse of shaft immediately above and below. This added an elasticity to the club which it would not otherwise have had and after a few trials I found I could play quite well with the set. For one thing it favored a truer swinging motion than the stiffer shafted clubs, which added smoothness to the stroke.

One reason why MacDonald Smith has remained so long among the first flight professionals is the fluid quality of his swinging, a true stroke that is so perfectly grooved that he can repeat it time and again. Any method that might aid the average player to capture this true swinging element should be encouraged for without doubt it is the one essential feature of good golf.

Encourages Swinging Motion

To this end many trick club shafts have at times been put on the market not for actual play but for practice sessions. Bobby Jones for instance mentions an occasion when he played with a club having a buggy whip shaft and was quite amazed at the results obtained. The main purpose in practice with a club of this sort is that it favors the true swing over a halting, jerky muscular effort. The muscles of the body must synchronize perfectly or else the clubhead is going to waver around uncertainly in the air with little chance of making an effective impact with the ball.

Practice During Winter

The winter season offers an excellent opportunity for practice through such a medium and continued application may well work miracles in one's game. Concentration alone on the swing and becoming increasingly conscious of just how the hands and arms work in relation to it, during its various positions, will unconsciously give one the proper weight transference. There is no need to disrupt one's trend of thought with the many do's and don'ts which are apparently the lot of the player who struggles along under the old formula.

Once one becomes aware of this true swinging feeling a measure of confidence is added that eventually will lower the score. This does not necessarily mean that the golfer must content himself for all time with a flexible shaft however. Once the swing has been learned he may use a shaft to suit his own requirements. Golfers who play every day often find the stiffer shaft more adaptable to their purpose while the week-end golfer prefers the more pliable club. The latter's muscles are not so attuned to the game and flexibility aids him in achieving the timing so essential to the well hit shot.

PONTIAC ENJOYS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

In Many Respects, 1936 Has Been Best Year, Says President

Pontiac Motor company is just winding up one of the most successful car years it has ever enjoyed. So says H. J. Klingler, president and general manager.

"In many respects 1936 has been our best year," he said, "even though the volume of sales was slightly under the peak year of 1928."

Pontiac has now completed its run on 1936 models with production of 176,222 units, according to company figures. This was a unit increase of 46,524 cars over the preceding year.

For next year the management is laying broad plans for a minimum increase in sales in every territory of at least thirty per cent.

"If this minimum gain is achieved," says Mr. Klingler, "and there is every indication that it will be, since improved distribution and retail outlets alone should account for the increase, which calls only for as large a unit gain as was made in 1936 over 1935—it will send volume well over the 200,000 mark for the best year the company has ever had.

"Perhaps the brightest single factor in the improved outlook is the great progress made in strengthening dealer outlets. A broad program calling for able dealers and able management in dealerships has been under way for months."

In addition to this corrective work, rapid expansion in volume has brought about a fuller utilization of the company's vast physical properties at Pontiac, Mich. Early this year the company's foundry, built in 1928 at a cost of $5,000,000 and idle since 1932, again began pouring metal, and upon completion of the foundry re-opening some weeks ago, Pontiac again was producing all castings used in car manufacture.

By far the largest annual development and expansion program in the three years of the Klingler regime is now under way for 1937, a program calling for a capital outlay of $6,000,000. Major item is the installation and equipment of a new axle plant which is already in production.

"Establishment of this new axle plant means that Pontiac is now building as many parts required in car assembly as it ever did in the past," he said; "and by manufacturing for an outside source, the volume of manufacturing operations will be larger than before.

"Employment neared an all-time high during 1936, and with expanded volume and manufacturing activities assured for 1937, the new year should see records in employment and production topple month by month."

1935	129,698
1936	176,222

Like many other cars of comparatively recent origin, the all-time low was reached in 1932, with model-sales for that year of 42,000 units.

"Although the new car market held up in July, August and September, as early as the 20th of August Pontiac dealers nationally had less than a thirty-day stock of used cars on hand," the Pontiac president said, "—a safe condition—and one that was cut materially during September.

"By reason of the continued strength of the new car market, and despite having squeezed several thousand additional new cars in to the originally planned model-run for 1936, new car stocks in the field have been reduced materially."

Since the introduction of the 1937 cars is generally understood to be planned for the first week in November the interval will give any dealers out of line in either used or new stocks ample time to correct their local situation before the 1937 program is launched.

NEW DIE-SINKER PROVIDES EFFICIENCY IN CHEVROLET

Greater speed, combined with marked sensitivity, is claimed for the new automatic die-sinker which Chevrolet is now using in its gear and axle plant in Detroit. The machine is said to be the first automatic die-sinker with integral hydraulic control, according to Lee-Rogers Chevrolet Co., local dealers.

The equipment is used to make drop-forging dies. The master die, and the material which is to duplicate, are fastened on a steel bed side by side. Over each is a vertical spindle, coming down from the same superstructure, which is movable horizontally in all directions.

At the end of one spindle a cutting tool is chucked; at the end of the other, above the master die, is what might be termed a "tracing finger," also of steel. The operator guides the movement of the tracer finger around the master die, and as he does so, a corresponding bite is taken out of the material on the adjacent bed. Due to hydraulic control, the resulting work is not only accurate, but 30 per cent faster than with equipment previously used.

A Jacksonville woman returned a parrot and said it couldn't say anything but "Polly wants a cracker." The dealer asked her: "What do you want him to do; discuss Einstein's theory?"

HERE'S THE BEAUTIFUL NEW STUDEBAKER

COMMERCIAL CAR SALES INCREASED

More commercial vehicles will be sold in 1937 than in 1936. This is the belief of W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, who this week cited general business conditions in support of the view. These conditions, in conjunction with the company's 1937 organization and product make the outlook so encouraging that Chevrolet has projected 225,000 units as its truck sales goal for the year. This will be a 20,000-unit increase over the 1936 total, which in turn is the highest commercial vehicle volume in the company's history.

"The current year," said Mr. Holler, "has seen a large volume of truck replacement sales, especially to large fleet users, whose equipment would have been replaced two or three years sooner, had times been normal. During the coming year we look for a substantial volume of truck business as a result of the general improvement evident in 1936. Business, industry and agriculture alike will contribute to this increase, for all three are in better shape than they were a year ago at this time. All in all, the outlook for commercial car and truck sales is very good."

That Chevrolet is organized to take maximum advantage of whatever sales potential the market offers was evident from Mr. Holler's review of the activities to be conducted by the sales department during the coming year. Every departmental group—advertising, service, parts and accessories, quality dealer, used cars, retail selling, to mention only a few—is embarked on its own program, which dovetails into those of the other groups to provide closely-coordinated action, with higher quality operations as the over-all result, he said.

"The balanced operation with which Chevrolet comes into 1937 extends to all departments of our business," said Mr. Holler. "The three primary phases of the business—engineering, manufacturing and distribution—have all received their due share of attention in the formulation of our plans.

"Except for minor changes which this year's operation has suggested, the general plan of organization is identical with that under which all Chevrolet truck records were broken in 1936. Truck sales performance in connection with this year's models has been as remarkable as passenger car sales performance, which is certainly an indication that we are on the right track. Truck sales for the year will total the highest of any year in Chevrolet history—205,000 units. For six consecutive months they exceeded the 20,000 mark, another record unparalleled at any time in the past. In view of the product and the organization with which we approach the new year, and the strong probability that the market as a whole will show a further expansion, our 225,000-truck goal is by no means out of reach."

A Houston, Tex., house burglar apparently wanted enlightenment as well as swag. He stole a telephone directory and 21 volumes of an encyclopedia.

OLDS SPONSORS COBB ON RADIO

New Feature Started Oct. 17 And Will Continue Through Winter

Oldsmobile, beginning October 17, will go on the air with a radio program headed by Irvin S. Cobb, famous American author, commentator, radio star and movie actor. The program is carried by the N. B. C. Red Network coast to coast.

The program will be called "Irvin S. Cobb's Paducah Plantation" and the setting will be Whitehall, Mr. Cobb's home near Paducah, Ky.

One of the best known and best loved of American writers, Mr. Cobb brings to the Oldsmobile program his great knowledge of Americans and American life.

Musical background in the program will be the famed Hall-Johnson choir, admittedly the best negro choir in the country. Assisting the master of ceremonies will be Dorothy Page, one of the younger radio and movie stars, and Clarence Muse, rising negro actor and singer.

A continuity of the story from week to week will add to the interest of the program.

A guest star of national reputation will appear with Mr. Cobb each week. First of these guests, opening the series on Saturday night at 10:30 Eastern standard time, will be Miss Marion Talley, Metropolitan Opera star.

"We are extremely pleased to present Mr. Cobb in this entirely new type of program," said D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice-president and general sales manager, in announcing the new radio program.

"Irvin S. Cobb holds a unique place in the hearts of America. His humor and every-day philosophy are appreciated by everyone. His success as an author and motion picture star is too well known to need mentioning. We feel sure that Mr. Cobb, through this new program, will hit new heights of popularity.

WESTINGHOUSE IS BIG TIME SAVER

Electric Range With Automatic Clock Allows Housewives To Shop

Your kitchen doesn't need you when you have Westinghouse electric range with an automatic clock, according to Monroe Hardware company, distributors for Westinghouse products.

With this clock or electric timer on your Westinghouse range, you can control the cooking of a meal automatically while you are miles away from the kitchen. A recent survey by the National Broadcasting company revealed that the average woman, between the hours of 8 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon spends 20 per cent of her time cooking. The period does not include time for dishwashing or cleaning up, only the time actually spent in cooking. By using the Westinghouse clock, you can easily save as much as one hour each day.

Suppose you were to leave the house about noon to take in a "Dollar Day Sale," but you also plan to serve a roast for dinner. If you wait until you arrive home to start it, you must cut your shopping tour in the middle of the afternoon. But with the Westinghouse range and its automatic time and temperature control, you can actually stay away until dinner time. At noon, before leaving home, you simply place your seasoned roast in the oven and set the automatic control for the required roasting temperature. Then you set the clock, the little "on" hand in the lower right-hand corner at, say 3:30, and the "off" hand in the lower left-hand corner at 6 o'clock. Next, you pull out the little knob at the back, and turn it to the right until the word "set" appears in the little window between the two small hands at the bottom of the clock. Last, you turn the oven switch to "bake" position and leave with no thought or worry about the roast in your oven. At 6 o'clock the current will turn off automatically and your meat will have been completely roasted. When you return at six or after and open the oven door, a piping hot, beautifully browned and delicious roast will be all ready to serve your eager family. This automatic feature not only relieves you of many kitchen hours but also brings you untold satisfaction and happiness.

What an appetite the open air and sunshine creates! The food tastes so good and the physical being tunes up again for the cold days ahead. It is no secret that well-cooked food helps to strengthen resistance against winter ills. But will the lithe brown bodies of your youngsters, now radiant with summer health, languish and pale during the winter to come? Vegetables whose vitamins and mineral salts have been destroyed by old-fashioned cooking methods and baked goods which have been dried out and over-cooked in an old-fashioned oven do not produce rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes. It would indeed be the supreme blessing if the food for these radiant, restless bits of humanity were prepared on a Westinghouse electric range. Durable surface units with three speeds make modern "waterless" cooking easy, accurate temperature control insures delicious and healthful products from the oven Electric cooking can do much to promote good health in your family. In short, with a Westinghouse Electric range in your kitchen, good health and happiness will be permanent guests in your home.

PLYMOUTH AXEL DESIGN CHANGED

Drastic Improvement Listed For Low-Price Field Car For 1937

A major change in rear axle design for 1937 cars in the low-pric field was confirmed here today by sources close to the Plymouth Motor corporation.

Definite changes in the new Plymouth models were said to include an improved hypoid rear axle, formerly limited to high-priced cars. It marks the first time this valuable feature will be included in automobiles built for the low-price bracket.

D. S. Eddins, Plymouth president, refused to confirm or deny the report. He said that all details of the 1937 models are being closely guarded until public announcement time in early November.

Other sources confirmed, however, that special "amola" steel developed for use in other Plymouth hard-wearing parts, is now being used in the construction of hypoid gears consigned to the Plymouth plant. The new "hypoid" design is a development of recent years, increasing the contact area of gear-teeth for greater strength, longer life and quieter operation. Until now the design was employed only by expensive cars.

Mr. Eddins confirmed that the Plymouth factory has already begun production on 1937 models. Present capacity of Plymouth's main plant in Detroit is in excess of 2,000 cars a day, at the rate of three a minute. It is the largest automobile factory in the world, capable of producing completed cars, with 11,000 workmen and 17 miles of conveyors all within a single room. The two main assembly lines are each a half-mile long.

Millions of dollars in steel, plate glass and other materials were required to resume operations on the new Plymouth models. Tens of thousands of hours of highly-skilled labor behind the scenes were involved in preparation of new body dies and special equipment for making various parts.

A new battery of giant presses to shape the 1937 Plymouth body is said to include the most powerful presses in the world, exerting a pressure of 3,000,000 pounds with a single die alone weighing upwards of 240,000 pounds.

STUDEBAKER SALES CONTINUE TO CLIMB

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Studebaker sales for 1936 to date are 68 per cent ahead of 1935, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation. He reports sales for the first 10 days of October as 3,961, compared with 513 last year. This brings total sales of passenger cars and trucks from January 1 to October 10 to 67,260, compared with 40,080 in the corresponding period of 1935.

C. E. Stice, farmer of near Augusta, Kas., was in a serious condition for several days when he was stung numerous times by a swarm of bees released when his horse kicked over a bee hive. The horse died.

PONTIAC ENJOYS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

In Many Respects, 1936 Has Been Best Year, Says President

Pontiac Motor company is just winding up one of the most successful car years it has ever enjoyed. So says H. J. Klingler, president and general manager.

"In many respects 1936 has been our best year," he said, "even though the volume of sales was slightly under the peak year of 1928."

Pontiac has now completed its run on 1936 models with production of 176,222 units, according to company figures. This was a unit increase of 46,524 cars over the preceding year.

For next year the management is laying broad plans for a minimum increase in sales in every territory of at least thirty per cent.

"If this minimum gain is achieved," says Mr. Klingler, "and there is every indication that it will be, since improved distribution and retail outlets alone should account for the increase, which calls only for as large a unit gain as was made in 1936 over 1935—it will send volume well over the 200,000 mark for the best year the company has ever had.

"Perhaps the brightest single factor in the improved outlook is the great progress made in strengthening dealer outlets. A broad program calling for able dealers and able management in dealerships has been under way for months."

In addition to this corrective work, rapid expansion in volume has brought about a fuller utilization of the company's vast physical properties at Pontiac, Mich. Early this year the company's foundry, built in 1928 at a cost of $5,000,000 and idle since 1932, again began pouring metal, and upon completion of the foundry re-opening some weeks ago, Pontiac again was producing all castings used in car manufacture.

By far the largest annual development and expansion program in the three years of the Klingler regime is now under way for 1937, a program calling for a capital outlay of $6,000,000. Major item is the installation and equipment of a new axle plant which is already in production.

"Establishment of this new axle plant means that Pontiac is now building as many parts required in car assembly as it ever did in the past," he said; "and by manufacturing for an outside source, the volume of manufacturing operations will be larger than before.

"Employment neared an all-time high during 1936, and with expanded volume and manufacturing activities assured for 1937, the new year should see records in employment and production topple month by month."

1935	129,698
1936	176,222

Like many other cars of comparatively recent origin, the all-time low was reached in 1932, with model-sales for that year of 42,000 units.

"Although the new car market held up in July, August and September, as early as the 20th of August Pontiac dealers nationally had less than a thirty-day stock of used cars on hand," the Pontiac president said, "—a safe condition—and one that was cut materially during September.

"By reason of the continued strength of the new car market, and despite having squeezed several thousand additional new cars in to the originally planned model-run for 1936, new car stocks in the field have been reduced materially."

Since the introduction of the 1937 cars is generally understood to be planned for the first week in November the interval will give any dealers out of line in either used or new stocks ample time to correct their local situation before the 1937 program is launched.

NEW DIE-SINKER PROVIDES EFFICIENCY IN CHEVROLET

Greater speed, combined with marked sensitivity, is claimed for the new automatic die-sinker which Chevrolet is now using in its gear and axle plant in Detroit. The machine is said to be the first automatic die-sinker with integral hydraulic control, according to Lee-Rogers Chevrolet Co., local dealers.

The equipment is used to make drop-forging dies. The master die, and the material which is to duplicate, are fastened on a steel bed side by side. Over each is a vertical spindle, coming down from the same superstructure, which is movable horizontally in all directions.

At the end of one spindle a cutting tool is chucked; at the end of the other, above the master die, is what might be termed a "tracing finger," also of steel. The operator guides the movement of the tracer finger around the master die, and as he does so, a corresponding bite is taken out of the material on the adjacent bed. Due to hydraulic control, the resulting work is not only accurate, but 30 per cent faster than with equipment previously used.

A Jacksonville woman returned a parrot and said it couldn't say anything but "Polly wants a cracker." The dealer asked her: "What do you want him to do; discuss Einstein's theory?"

HERE'S THE BEAUTIFUL NEW STUDEBAKER

COMMERCIAL CAR SALES INCREASED

More commercial vehicles will be sold in 1937 than in 1936. This is the belief of W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, who this week cited general business conditions in support of the view. These conditions, in conjunction with the company's 1937 organization and product make the outlook so encouraging that Chevrolet has projected 225,000 units as its truck sales goal for the year. This will be a 20,000-unit increase over the 1936 total, which in turn is the highest commercial vehicle volume in the company's history.

"The current year," said Mr. Holler, "has seen a large volume of truck replacement sales, especially to large fleet users, whose equipment would have been replaced two or three years sooner, had times been normal. During the coming year we look for a substantial volume of truck business as a result of the general improvement evident in 1936. Business, industry and agriculture alike will contribute to this increase, for all three are in better shape than they were a year ago at this time. All in all, the outlook for commercial car and truck sales is very good."

That Chevrolet is organized to take maximum advantage of whatever sales potential the market offers was evident from Mr. Holler's review of the activities to be conducted by the sales department during the coming year. Every departmental group—advertising, service, parts and accessories, quality dealer, used cars, retail selling, to mention only a few—is embarked on its own program, which dovetails into those of the other groups to provide closely-coordinated action, with higher quality operations as the over-all result, he said.

"The balanced operation with which Chevrolet comes into 1937 extends to all departments of our business," said Mr. Holler. "The three primary phases of the business—engineering, manufacturing and distribution—have all received their due share of attention in the formulation of our plans.

"Except for minor changes which this year's operation has suggested, the general plan of organization is identical with that under which all Chevrolet truck records were broken in 1936. Truck sales performance in connection with this year's models has been as remarkable as passenger car sales performance, which is certainly an indication that we are on the right track. Truck sales for the year will total the highest of any year in Chevrolet history—205,000 units. For six consecutive months they exceeded the 20,000 mark, another record unparalleled at any time in the past. In view of the product and the organization with which we approach the new year, and the strong probability that the market as a whole will show a further expansion, our 225,000-truck goal is by no means out of reach."

A Houston, Tex., house burglar apparently wanted enlightenment as well as swag. He stole a telephone directory and 21 volumes of an encyclopedia.

OLDS SPONSORS COBB ON RADIO

New Feature Started Oct. 17 And Will Continue Through Winter

Oldsmobile, beginning October 17, will go on the air with a radio program headed by Irvin S. Cobb, famous American author, commentator, radio star and movie actor. The program is carried by the N. B. C. Red Network coast to coast.

The program will be called "Irvin S. Cobb's Paducah Plantation" and the setting will be Whitehall, Mr. Cobb's home near Paducah, Ky.

One of the best known and best loved of American writers, Mr. Cobb brings to the Oldsmobile program his great knowledge of Americans and American life.

Musical background in the program will be the famed Hall-Johnson choir, admittedly the best negro choir in the country. Assisting the master of ceremonies will be Dorothy Page, one of the younger radio and movie stars, and Clarence Muse, rising negro actor and singer.

A continuity of the story from week to week will add to the interest of the program.

A guest star of national reputation will appear with Mr. Cobb each week. First of these guests, opening the series on Saturday night at 10:30 Eastern standard time, will be Miss Marion Talley, Metropolitan Opera star.

"We are extremely pleased to present Mr. Cobb in this entirely new type of program," said D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice-president and general sales manager, in announcing the new radio program.

"Irvin S. Cobb holds a unique place in the hearts of America. His humor and every-day philosophy are appreciated by everyone. His success as an author and motion picture star is too well known to need mentioning. We feel sure that Mr. Cobb, through this new program, will hit new heights of popularity.

WESTINGHOUSE IS BIG TIME SAVER

Your kitchen doesn't need you when you have Westinghouse electric range with an automatic clock, according to Monroe Hardware company, distributors for Westinghouse products.

With this clock or electric timer on your Westinghouse range, you can control the cooking of a meal automatically while you are miles away from the kitchen. A recent survey by the National Broadcasting company revealed that the average woman, between the hours of 8 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon spends 20 per cent of her time cooking. The period does not include time for dishwashing or cleaning up, only the time actually spent in cooking. By using the Westinghouse clock, you can easily save as much as one hour each day.

Suppose you were to leave the house about noon to take in a "Dollar Day Sale," but you also plan to serve a roast for dinner. If you wait until you arrive home to start it, you must cut your shopping tour in the middle of the afternoon. But with the Westinghouse range and its automatic time and temperature control, you can actually stay away until dinner time. At noon, before leaving home, you simply place your seasoned roast in the oven and set the automatic control for the required roasting temperature. Then you set the clock, the little "on" hand in the lower right-hand corner at, say 3:30, and the "off" hand in the lower left-hand corner at 6 o'clock. Next, you pull out the little knob at the back, and turn it to the right until the word "set" appears in the little window between the two small hands at the bottom of the clock. Last, you turn the oven switch to "bake" position and leave with no thought or worry about the roast in your oven. At 6 o'clock the current will turn off automatically and your meat will have been completely roasted. When you return at six or after and open the oven door, a piping hot, beautifully browned and delicious roast will be all ready to serve your eager family. This automatic feature not only relieves you of many kitchen hours but also brings you untold satisfaction and happiness.

What an appetite the open air and sunshine creates! The food tastes so good and the physical being tunes up again for the cold days ahead. It is no secret that well-cooked food helps to strengthen resistance against winter ills. But will the lithe brown bodies of your youngsters, now radiant with summer health, languish and pale during the winter to come? Vegetables whose vitamins and mineral salts have been destroyed by old-fashioned cooking methods and baked goods which have been dried out and over-cooked in an old-fashioned oven do not produce rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes. It would indeed be the supreme blessing if the food for these radiant, restless bits of humanity were prepared on a Westinghouse electric range. Durable surface units with three speeds make modern "waterless" cooking easy, accurate temperature control insures delicious and healthful products from the oven Electric cooking can do much to promote good health in your family. In short, with a Westinghouse Electric range in your kitchen, good health and happiness will be permanent guests in your home.

PLYMOUTH AXEL DESIGN CHANGED

Drastic Improvement Listed For Low-Price Field Car For 1937

A major change in rear axle design for 1937 cars in the low-pric field was confirmed here today by sources close to the Plymouth Motor corporation.

Definite changes in the new Plymouth models were said to include an improved hypoid rear axle, formerly limited to high-priced cars. It marks the first time this valuable feature will be included in automobiles built for the low-price bracket.

D. S. Eddins, Plymouth president, refused to confirm or deny the report. He said that all details of the 1937 models are being closely guarded until public announcement time in early November.

Other sources confirmed, however, that special "amola" steel developed for use in other Plymouth hard-wearing parts, is now being used in the construction of hypoid gears consigned to the Plymouth plant. The new "hypoid" design is a development of recent years, increasing the contact area of gear-teeth for greater strength, longer life and quieter operation. Until now the design was employed only by expensive cars.

Mr. Eddins confirmed that the Plymouth factory has already begun production on 1937 models. Present capacity of Plymouth's main plant in Detroit is in excess of 2,000 cars a day, at the rate of three a minute. It is the largest automobile factory in the world, capable of producing completed cars, with 11,000 workmen and 17 miles of conveyors all within a single room. The two main assembly lines are each a half-mile long.

Millions of dollars in steel, plate glass and other materials were required to resume operations on the new Plymouth models. Tens of thousands of hours of highly-skilled labor behind the scenes were involved in preparation of new body dies and special equipment for making various parts.

A new battery of giant presses to shape the 1937 Plymouth body is said to include the most powerful presses in the world, exerting a pressure of 3,000,000 pounds with a single die alone weighing upwards of 240,000 pounds.

STUDEBAKER SALES CONTINUE TO CLIMB

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Studebaker sales for 1936 to date are 68 per cent ahead of 1935, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation. He reports sales for the first 10 days of October as 3,961, compared with 513 last year. This brings total sales of passenger cars and trucks from January 1 to October 10 to 67,260, compared with 40,080 in the corresponding period of 1935.

C. E. Stice, farmer of near Augusta, Kas., was in a serious condition for several days when he was stung numerous times by a swarm of bees released when his horse kicked over a bee hive. The horse died.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The cotton market ended the week on the downtrend. Prices lost from 1 to 3 points in today's quiet dealings.

Light hedge selling which was scattered in all active positions was given as the reason for the slight decline.

December finished at 11.68, January at 11.69 and March at 11.76.

Texas has been drenched by rains during the last 24 hours and temperatures in the northern part of that state ranged low.

Speculative sentiment today began to give way in a degree to pre-election restrictive influences in some quarters.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Nimble traders bought a few aircrafts, utilities, oils and specialties in today's stock market and scurried to the sidelines.

The result was a virtual stalemate at the close with minor gains and losses being about evenly divided among the leaders. Transfers were around 650,000 shares.

Brokerage quarters attributed the apathetic proceedings mainly to the inclination of many of their customers to suspend substantial buying operations pending outcome of the presidential election.

Food for recovery proponents was plentiful, however, and selling in most instances was far from urgent. The European situation was said to have had little influence on trends.

Bonds were a trifle uneven, as were commodities. The French franc pointed downward in terms of the dollar as Paris faced fresh political troubles and the Spanish war outlook became cloudier.

Shares giving the best account of themselves included Douglas, Boeing, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, North American, Western Union, American Telephone, American Smelting, Texas Corp., Standard Oil of California, Shell Union, Skelly Oil. Air Reduction, Vasisco Sales, Brunswick-Balke-Collander, General Baking, Continental Baking, Tennessee Corp., du Pont, Servel and Consolidated Film.

Backward most of the session were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, General Motors, Briggs Mfg., Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Safeway Stores, Allied Stores, American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric, Bendix, Anaconda, Kennecott, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, J. I. Case and Deere.

The recent ability of the utilities to keep pace with the industrials was attributed partly to the better statistical position of the power companies.

A straw in the mind was seen in the report of Electric Power & Light for the year ended September 30, showing balance available for dividends of some $7,100,000 compared with $47,032 in the preceding 12 months.

The motors failed to respond to predictions of automobile corporation executives that the current production year would approach the 1929 peak of 5,600,000 units. One concern's export business at present was said to be 40 per cent above that of the same time last year.

While most of the steel stocks were inclined to mark time pending settlement of wage and price problems, there was considerable speculation as to what next week's U. S. Steel meeting will do about accumulations on its preferred issue. There was some talk of the company bringing out a second preference stock in order to eliminate back dividends. The difficulty here, it was pointed out, would be in getting approval of 75 per cent of the stockholders who are scattered all over the world.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The cotton market ended the week on the downtrend. Prices lost from 1 to 3 points in today's quiet dealings.

Light hedge selling which was scattered in all active positions was given as the reason for the slight decline.

December finished at 11.68, January at 11.69 and March at 11.76.

Texas has been drenched by rains during the last 24 hours and temperatures in the northern part of that state ranged low.

Speculative sentiment today began to give way in a degree to pre-election restrictive influences in some quarters.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Nimble traders bought a few aircrafts, utilities, oils and specialties in today's stock market and scurried to the sidelines.

The result was a virtual stalemate at the close with minor gains and losses being about evenly divided among the leaders. Transfers were around 650,000 shares.

Brokerage quarters attributed the apathetic proceedings mainly to the inclination of many of their customers to suspend substantial buying operations pending outcome of the presidential election.

Food for recovery proponents was plentiful, however, and selling in most instances was far from urgent. The European situation was said to have had little influence on trends.

Bonds were a trifle uneven, as were commodities. The French franc pointed downward in terms of the dollar as Paris faced fresh political troubles and the Spanish war outlook became cloudier.

Shares giving the best account of themselves included Douglas, Boeing, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, North American, Western Union, American Telephone, American Smelting, Texas Corp., Standard Oil of California, Shell Union, Skelly Oil, Air Reduction, Vasisco Sales, Brunswick-Balke-Collander, General Baking, Continental Baking, Tennessee Corp., du Pont, Servel and Consolidated Film.

Backward most of the session were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, General Motors, Briggs Mfg., Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Safeway Stores, Allied Stores, American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric, Bendix, Anaconda, Kennecott, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, J. I. Case and Deere.

The recent ability of the utilities to keep pace with the industrials was attributed partly to the better satistical position of the power companies.

A straw in the mind was seen in the report of Electric Power & Light for the year ended September 30, showing balance available for dividends of some $7,100,000 compared with $47,032 in the preceding 12 months.

The motors failed to respond to predictions of automobile corporation executives that the current production year would approach the 1929 peak of 5,600,000 units. One concern's export business at present was said to be 40 per cent above that of the same time last year.

While most of the steel stocks were inclined to mark time pending settlement of wage and price problems, there was considerable speculation as to what next week's U. S. Steel meeting will do about accumulations on its preferred issue. There was some talk of the company bringing out a second preference stock in order to eliminate back dividends. The difficulty here, it was pointed out, would be in getting approval of 75 per cent of the stockholders who are scattered all over the world.

LOUISIANA'S OIL REVENUE GROWS

State Produces 49,301,191 Barrels In First Eight Months Of Year

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Louisiana's 1,000 oil wells, operating under restricted regulations, produced 49,301,191 barrels of crude oil, valued at more than $50,000,000, the first eight months of 1936, the state conservation department, announced in New Orleans Saturday.

The production of crude oil the first eight months of this year is "far in excess" of the production for the corresponding period of 1935, officials of the department's minerals division said.

The largest number of barrels produced in a single month of the eight-month production figures thus far recorded was in May with a total production of 6,899,395 barrels. The seven other monthly production figures follow: January 5,447,902 barrels; February 5,484,744; March 5,943,102; April 5,718,269; June 6,310,262; July 6,793,748, and August, 6,702,739.

The department's minerals division also announced the completion of 10 new gushers in the state during the week ended Friday, and the issuance of 18 permits for drilling operations for the same period.

The field location, name of producing company, the initial daily production of each well, follow in order:

Basile in Acadia parish, Continental Oil company, three wells, 1,006.26, 152, and 649.20 barrels respectively; Caillou island in Terrebonne parish, the Texas company, 828 barrels; Cameron Meadows in Cameron parish, Burton-Sutton Oil company, 462 barrels; Dog Lake, Terrebonne parish, the Texas company, 1,000 barrels; Rodessa in Caddo, American Liberty Oil company, 1,320 barrels same field, United Gas Public Service company, 816 barrels; Sligo in Bossier parish, United Gas Public Service company, 768 barrels, and Sulphurmines in Calcasieu parish, Union Sulphur company, 500 barrels.

The department estimated that the average daily production of oil in the gulf coast region for the week ended October 17 was 156,748 barrels.

With each company or individual obtaining a single permit in the respective parish, the following permits were issued by the department:

Humble Oil company in Acadia parish; Shell Petroleum company in Acadia parish; Pan-American Production company in Ascension parish; Morefield & Prine in Caddo parish; Simplex Oil company in Caddo; United Gas Public Service company in Caddo; Shell Petroleum corporation in Calcasieu parish; J. S. Abercrombie company and Harrison Oil company in Cameron parish, a joint permit; Burton-Sutton Oil company in Cameron, and Gulf Refining company in Cameron.

Pearl Oil corporation in DeSoto parish; Cane River Production company in Grant parish; William Helis in Iberia parish; the Texas company in Jefferson parish; Lent & Pace in Natchitoches parish; Blue Lake Oil corporation in Sabine parish; the Texas company in Terrebonne parish, and Seaboard Oil corporation in Webster parish.

CAMPAIGN HARVEST NOTE IN LANDON HOUSEHOLD

MRS. NOE TO AID RED CROSS DRIVE

Accepts General Home Membership Chairman's Post In Roll Call

E. C. Gibson chairman of the annual Red Cross roll call, announced Saturday that Mrs. James A. Noe has accepted the general chairmanship of the home membership drive that will be conducted here, starting on Armistice day and ending on Thanksgiving. Mrs. Noe has announced that she will shortly name her co-chairmen and workers and that her plans are in excellent shape for a highly successful campaign.

A generous response has already been received from various groups, pledging cooperation in the drive and providing necessary workers, stated Mr. Gibson, so that every home in Monroe and West Monroe will be visited and the public given an opportunity to enlist.

Mrs. J. O. McCormick has accepted the chairmanship of the home group in West Monroe and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf will work with her as co-chairman, Mr. Gibson said. These women have planned their work carefully and this part of the campaign will get under way promptly, Mr. Gibson reported.

Mr. Gibson stated that a capable committee of business leaders of West Monroe has been organized who will supervise the roll call in that city. H. A. McDonald has accepted the chairmanship of the group and he will be assisted by A. B. Colmer, J. L. Warren, T. John, Sam Humphries and George W. Welch.

The Kiwanis club of West Monroe has enlisted in the work through assuring that they will cooperate 100 per cent in the campaign. With this set-up, Mr. Gibson feels assured that the response will this year surpass that of former years.

COLLEGE OF SURGEONS MAKES DR. RIZZO MEMBER

Dr. Frank P. Rizzo, well-known physician and surgeon of Monroe, was elected Friday to fellowship in the American College of Surgeons at its annual meeting in Philadelphia. He was one of 569 surgeons from all over the United States, Canada and several foreign countries so honored. These were selected from 1,444 applicants.

Dr. Rizzo graduated from the college of medicine of Tulane university in New Orleans in 1927. He was one of the 10 honor men of his class, which was composed of 108 members. Following his graduation, Dr. Rizzo served a two-year internship at Charity hospital in New Orleans.

A native of Monroe, Dr. Rizzo returned here upon the completion of his internship and, for a year, was house surgeon at St. Francis sanitarium. Since then, he has been successfully engaged in the private practice of surgery and medicine.

Tulane Law School Will Honor Edward Livingston

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—"The first legal genius of modern times," the man on whose rejected criminal code many nations have based their own criminal law, will be honored for five days in New Orleans, October 27-30, though he has been dead a century this year.

He is Edward Livingston (1754-1836) profound legal scholar, eminent lawyer, federal district attorney of New York City, United States congressman, United States senator, secretary of state for the United States, and United States minister to France.

The college of law of the Tulane university of Louisiana, located in this city where Livingston spent the most fruitful and important years of his life, will conduct a five-day Livingston memorial celebration here at the end of this month, in which some of the nation's outstanding legal figures will participate.

The Tulane Livingston centennial will be international in scope, for it will not only honor a man whose best achievements were international, but it will include speakers whose repute extends far beyond the boundaries of this nation and whose words in consideration of Livingston's universality will have the character of their subject.

Chief speaker will be Dr. Roscoe Pound, dean emeritus of the internationally-known Harvard university law school, of Cambridge, Mass., himself among the outstanding Anglo-American legal scholars of today and a man whose lifetime views have advocated simplification of legal machinery and of the law itself—a typically Livingstonian attitude.

Henry T. Lummus, associate justice of the supreme judicial court of the state of Massachusetts, will come here from Boston to make several talks on the centennial program. Justice Lummus is a scholarly jurist, author of several books, and formerly was a lecturer in the Boston university school of law.

A dinner for Dr. Pound will be a feature of the program, at which Esmond Phelps, local attorney and president of the board of administrators of Tulane university, will be toastmaster. At this dinner Justice Lummus will speak on "The Thought and Work of Roscoe Pound." Dean Rufus C. Harris of the Tulane college of law will preside.

Justice Lummus will also talk on "Arguing a Case on Appeal" at a public lecture October 31.

The Tulane Law Review, quarterly published by the college of law, will dedicate to Edward Livingston its autumn issue, in which all the articles will be by faculty or students of the law school, Dean Harris has announced.

Several honorary degrees are expected to be awarded by Tulane university for the college of law during the Tulane Livingston centennial.

A member of the prominent New York family, Edward Livingston was reared in an atmosphere of internationalism. He was a friend of Lafayette's. His brother, Robert, was United States minister to France and negotiated the transfer of the vast Louisiana territory. Edward had a brilliant career, and became United States district attorney for New York and almost simultaneously mayor of the city of New York. Yellow fever struck him down, and while he was away from his district attorney's office a clerk made off with an enormous sum of money, which immediately was complicated by huge personal debts. Livingston chose to pay his debts, but decided to leave New York to do it. Louisiana, newly-acquired, looked like a land of promise. He arrived in New Orleans in 1804, and immediately plunged into the legal and political life of the roistering little city of 8,056 persons. His reputation was large, and his ability larger. Soon he was making money, though it was not until he was 62 that he finished paying the federal debt of more than $100,000.

In New Orleans a great argument was in progress, upon Livingston's arrival, as to whether Louisiana should have a common law, such as was generally in use in the nation, or should continue with a French civil law, derived originally from the Roman law. The newcoming American attorneys fought for the common law, against the defending French and Spanish adherents of the civil law. Surprisingly, Livingston, an easterner, threw the great weight of his personality and reputation with the Creoles, and Louisiana today has the civil law largely because of this action.

Livingston always fought for retention of what was best in the old Spanish and French laws of the state. Likewise, he strove constantly toward simplification of laws, simplification of the legal machinery.

His legal scholarship won him widespread attention. But his crowning achievement was the criminal code. The Louisiana legislature asked him to write one. He spent an enormous amount of labor; then fire destroyed the manuscript. He promptly wrote another. It proposed a "new deal" for the criminal. Livingston was nearly a century ahead of his time. He proposed preventing crime as better than having to punish it. He proposed abolition of capital punishment, abolition of flogging. He wanted to clean up prisons. He advocated teaching trades to convicts, as well as educating them along other lines. He suggested issuing them a certificate of merit for ability at their craft, for behavior, and as a means of helping the released convict make his way honestly in the community.

It was too advanced for the legislature. But the code was published in England, France, and Germany. Worldwide acclaim followed.

Sir Henry Maine, eminent English jurist, styled Livingston "the first legal genius of modern times." Victor Hugo wrote in rapt praise of his humanitarian views on prison reform and crime prevention. Decorations and awards were showered on him by European nations. Brazil made his criminal code the basis of its jurisprudence of crimes. Harvard university made him a doctor of laws. The Republic of Guatemala adopted verbatim some of his penal code.

But the legislature of the state of Louisiana, which had requested him to write the criminal code, never adopted it.

MEETING SCHEDULED

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The October meeting of the Music club will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. G. L. Smith. The program on "The Voice" will be led by Mrs. R. C. Gaines.

RODEO'S FINAL SHOWINGS TODAY

Knife-Throwing Exhibition Is One Of Most Thrilling Performances

This afternoon and tonight the Crosby and Paine rodeo will stage its final showings here, the afternoon performance starting at 2 o'clock and the night show at 8 o'clock. Someone of those attending will leave the rodeo grounds, at Stovall park, driving a new Ford V-8.

Billy Crosby, general director, had succeeded in smoothing away the rough edges of opening day and yesterday's performances were given with handily. Some fine riding, bareback, saddle bronc and steer, was done by the cowboys and several additional features were given.

Perhaps the most thrilling of these was a knife-throwing exhibition by Colonel Leon Lamar, assisted by Dot Anderson.

Then there was a novelty—bulldogging a steer from the running board of a swiftly moving V-8. Vick Blackstone, one of the favorites of the rodeo, performed this stunt while the spectators yelled with delight.

The knife throwing also evoked a big hand. Helpers placed a big board in the field before the grandstand and Raymond Morace, a yellow-shirted cowboy better known as the "Black Ace," draped himself gracefully but a trifle nervously on the front side.

Lamar picked up a handful of wicked looking knives, moved forward a bit, and—wham! The Black Ace was hemmed in by knives and couldn't have moved if he wanted to.

Then Dot Anderson, who is a star in her own right as a fancy rope artist, leaned over a knife previously planted in the board while Colonel Lamar outlined her figure, too, with gleaming cutlery.

Later he clipped a piece of paper held in her mouth and the "Black Ace," smoking a cigaret, moved in front of the board. Not only the ashes but a good inch of the cigaret fell to the ground as the knife flashed.

All events yesterday seemed to have an added bit of dash. Stack Lee, the veteran plainsman, United States marshal and Indian fighter of the old days in Indian Territory and on the western plains, captivated the fancy of the crowd from the start.

Stack, on his tall mount, was all over the field, heading off stock bound for the pens after calf roping and bulldogging, and twirling a mean lariat.

His sharpshooting act, performed from horseback with the assistance of Mrs. Lee, drew storms of applause. Stack is also an old showman, from the Buffalo Bill and 101 Ranch days, having appeared in London, Australia and in most of the European capitals.

And Herbert Parsons is always as good as an entire show by himself. What he didn't do with the various species of firearms put out by the Winchester company isn't worth mentioning.

Other performers include Texas Jack Sullivan and Chief White Cloud.

The day's performances opened auspiciously again, for the slick riders who came first on the prgram did an unusually good job, both in riding and falling. The horses displayed plenty of life and Gerald Roberts, the Texas cowboy, was incapacitated for the day, with a sprained wrist early in the afternoon.

The calf roping provided both examples of neat work and fun, for some of the calves had no intention of being caught. Each calf is given a 50 yard start before the mounted cowboy tries to rope him. Then he has to lasso the critter, throw him and tie three feet.

The untying is attended to by the clown, who with Ike Hamilton's trick mule, offers comedy relief. In one instance the calf was no more anxious to be untied than tied and dragged the clown half way around the arena.

Several boys in the bulldogging events rode considerable distance on the horns of hefty steers. The brahmas, with their great sweep of horn, were especially popular with the crowd and the buffalo bull, with his shaggy head, aroused lots of interest.

Lloyd McBee, Blanche McBee and Dot Anderson did a fancy rope twirling act on the order of Will Rogers' old stunt in the Ziegfeld follies days. Miss Anderson with a heavy rope, kept the circle spinning over head while she stepped through the loop, assumed a recumbent position and then rose again, despite a light rain which fell for a time.

The spectators, in the spacious bleachers, had no trouble in keeping dry.

CHARGED WITH KILLING

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Son Howard, 28-year-old negro of Lake Providence, was arrested by Madison parish officers and charged with the killing of T. A. Florence on the highway north of Tallulah when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Howard is being held in jail here.

NEW SIRENS RECEIVED BY POLICE DEPARTMENT

Five new sirens were received by the Monroe police department yesterday for installation on its motor vehicles.

C. R. Tidwell, superintendent of the department, said the sirens positively will not be sounded except in instances when police are making emergency calls that urgently demand the quick clearing of a path through traffic.

The Minnesota soil conservation service planned to plant 1,390,000 trees and shrub seedlings in the southeastern part of the state in the fall of 1936 for erosion control.

CHRISTMAS TOY PROGRAM SLATED

Public Requested To Begin Assembling Materials For Shop

The Monroe recreation department this year will again conduct a Christmas toy collection, repair and distribution program, according to announcement yesterday.

While it is not planned to actively begin the program for several weeks, the announcement was made yesterday so that persons who contribute used toys and repair materials will have ample time in which to assemble their contributions.

Persons who have toys and materials which they prefer to contribute immediately are asked to telephone No. 4785. Later, a general collection program will be inaugurated.

In addition to used toys and parts of broken toys, materials which will be needed in the program include nails, tacks, screws, plastic wood, glue, cord string, ribbons, remnants, thread, buttons, wrapping paper, inner tubes, fruit crates and boxes, lumber, silk underwear and various other articles.

The entire collection, repair and distribution program is one which annually receives the cooperation of the Council of Social Agencies, firemen, Boy Scouts and other organizations. Last year the WPA provided skilled workmen for the repair shop and assisted in other ways.

Flush Kidneys of Acids and Poisons

Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Nights

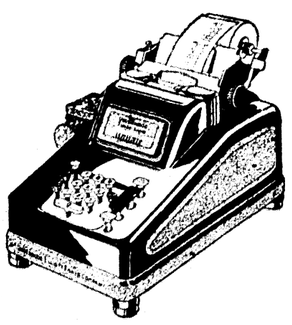

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed.

But be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness.

LOUISIANA'S OIL REVENUE GROWS

State Produces 49,301,191 Barrels In First Eight Months Of Year

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Louisiana's 1,000 oil wells, operating under restricted regulations, produced 49,301,191 barrels of crude oil, valued at more than $50,000,000, the first eight months of 1936, the state conservation department, announced in New Orleans Saturday.

The production of crude oil the first eight months of this year is "far in excess" of the production for the corresponding period of 1935, officials of the department's minerals division said.

The largest number of barrels produced in a single month of the eight-month production figures thus far recorded was in May with a total production of 6,899,395 barrels. The seven other monthly production figures follow: January 5,447,902 barrels; February 5,484,744; March 5,943,102; April 5,718,269; June 6,310,262; July 6,793,748, and August, 6,702,739.

The department's minerals division also announced the completion of 10 new gushers in the state during the week ended Friday, and the issuance of 18 permits for drilling operations for the same period.

The field location, name of producing company, the initial daily production of each well, follow in order:

Basile in Acadia parish, Continental Oil company, three wells, 1,006.26, 152, and 649.20 barrels respectively; Caillou island in Terrebonne parish, the Texas company, 828 barrels; Cameron Meadows in Cameron parish, Burton-Sutton Oil company, 462 barrels; Dog Lake, Terrebonne parish, the Texas company, 1,000 barrels; Rodessa in Caddo, American Liberty Oil company, 1,320 barrels same field, United Gas Public Service company, 816 barrels; Sligo in Bossier parish, United Gas Public Service company, 768 barrels, and Sulphurmines in Calcasieu parish, Union Sulphur company, 500 barrels.

The department estimated that the average daily production of oil in the gulf coast region for the week ended October 17 was 156,748 barrels.

With each company or individual obtaining a single permit in the respective parish, the following permits were issued by the department;

Humble Oil company in Acadia parish; Shell Petroleum company in Acadia parish; Pan-American Production company in Ascension parish; Morefield & Prine in Caddo parish; Simplex Oil company in Caddo; United Gas Public Service company in Caddo; Shell Petroleum corporation in Calcasieu parish; J. S. Abercrombie company and Harrison Oil company in Cameron parish, a joint permit; Burton-Sutton Oil company in Cameron, and Gulf Refining company in Cameron.

Pearl Oil corporation in DeSoto parish; Cane River Production company in Grant parish; William Helis in Iberia parish; the Texas company in Jefferson parish; Lent & Pace in Natchitoches parish; Blue Lake Oil corporation in Sabine parish; the Texas company in Terrebonne parish, and Seaboard Oil corporation in Webster parish.

CAMPAIGN HARVEST NOTE IN LANDON HOUSEHOLD

MRS. NOE TO AID RED CROSS DRIVE

Accepts General Home Membership Chairman's Post In Roll Call

E. C. Gibson chairman of the annual Red Cross roll call, announced Saturday that Mrs. James A. Noe has accepted the general chairmanship of the home membership drive that will be conducted here, starting on Armistice day and ending on Thanksgiving. Mrs. Noe has announced that she will shortly name her co-chairmen and workers and that her plans are in excellent shape for a highly successful campaign.

A generous response has already been received from various groups, pledging cooperation in the drive and providing necessary workers, stated Mr. Gibson, so that every home in Monroe and West Monroe will be visited and the public given an opportunity to enlist.

Mrs. J. O. McCormick has accepted the chairmanship of the home group in West Monroe and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf will work with her as co-chairman, Mr. Gibson said. These women have planned their work carefully and this part of the campaign will get under way promptly, Mr. Gibson reported.

Mr. Gibson stated that a capable committee of business leaders of West Monroe has been organized who will supervise the roll call in that city. H. A. McDonald has accepted the chairmanship of the group and he will be assisted by A. B. Colmer, J. L. Warren, T. John, Sam Humphries and George W. Welch.

The Kiwanis club of West Monroe has enlisted in the work through assuring that they will cooperate 100 per cent in the campaign. With this set-up, Mr. Gibson feels assured that the response will this year surpass that of former years.

COLLEGE OF SURGEONS MAKES DR. RIZZO MEMBER

Dr. Frank P. Rizzo, well-known physician and surgeon of Monroe, was elected Friday to fellowship in the American College of Surgeons at its annual meeting in Philadelphia. He was one of 589 surgeons from all over the United States, Canada and several foreign countries so honored. These were selected from 1,444 applicants.

Dr. Rizzo graduated from the college of medicine of Tulane university in New Orleans in 1927. He was one of the 10 honor men of his class, which was composed of 108 members. Following his graduation, Dr. Rizzo served a two-year internship at Charity hospital in New Orleans.

A native of Monroe, Dr. Rizzo returned here upon the completion of his internship and, for a year, was house surgeon at St. Francis sanitarium. Since then, he has been successfully engaged in the private practice of surgery and medicine.

Tulane Law School Will Honor Edward Livingston

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—"The first legal genius of modern times," the man on whose rejected criminal code many nations have based their own criminal law, will be honored for five days in New Orleans, October 27-30, though he has been dead a century this year.

He is Edward Livingston (1754-1836) profound legal scholar, eminent lawyer, federal district attorney of New York City, United States congressman, United States senator, secretary of state for the United States, and United States minister to France.

The college of law of the Tulane university of Louisiana, located in this city where Livingston spent the most fruitful and important years of his life, will conduct a five-day Livingston memorial celebration here at the end of this month, in which some of the nation's outstanding legal figures will participate.

The Tulane Livingston centennial will be international in scope, for it will not only honor a man whose best achievements were international, but it will include speakers whose repute extends far beyond the boundaries of this nation and whose words in consideration of Livingston's universality will have the character of their subject.

Chief speaker will be Dr. Roscoe Pound, dean emeritus of the internationally-known Harvard university law school, of Cambridge, Mass., himself among the outstanding Anglo-American legal scholars of today and a man whose lifetime views have advocated simplification of legal machinery and of the law itself—a typically Livingstonian attitude.

Henry T. Lummus, associate justice of the supreme judicial court of the state of Massachusetts, will come here from Boston to make several talks on the centennial program. Justice Lummus is a scholarly jurist, author of several books, and formerly was a lecturer in the Boston university school of law.

A dinner for Dr. Pound will be a feature of the program, at which Esmond Phelps, local attorney and president of the board of administrators of Tulane university, will be toastmaster. At this dinner Justice Lummus will speak on "The Thought and Work of Roscoe Pound." Dean Rufus C. Harris of the Tulane college of law will preside.

Justice Lummus will also talk on "Arguing a Case on Appeal" at a public lecture October 31.

The Tulane Law Review, quarterly published by the college of law, will dedicate to Edward Livingston its autumn issue, in which all the articles will be by faculty or students of the law school, Dean Harris has announced.

Several honorary degrees are expected to be awarded by Tulane university for the college of law during the Tulane Livingston centennial.

A member of the prominent New York family, Edward Livingston was reared in an atmosphere of internationalism. He was a friend of Lafayette's. His brother, Robert, was United States minister to France and negotiated the transfer of the vast Louisiana territory. Edward had a brilliant career, and became United States district attorney for New York and almost simultaneously mayor of the city of New York. Yellow fever struck him down, and while he was away from his district attorney's office a clerk made off with an enormous sum of money, which immediately was complicated by huge personal debts. Livingston chose to pay his debts, but decided to leave New York to do it. Louisiana, newly-acquired, looked like a land of promise. He arrived in New Orleans in 1804, and immediately plunged into the legal and political life of the roistering little city of 8,056 persons. His reputation was large, and his ability larger. Soon he was making money, though it was not until he was 62 that he finished paying the federal debt of more than $100,000.

In New Orleans a great argument was in progress, upon Livingston's arrival, as to whether Louisiana should have a common law, such as was generally in use in the nation, or should continue with a French civil law, derived originally from the Roman law. The newcoming American attorneys fought for the common law, against the defending French and Spanish adherents of the civil law. Surprisingly, Livingston, an easterner, threw the great weight of his personality and reputation with the Creoles, and Louisiana today has the civil law largely because of this action.

Livingston always fought for retention of what was best in the old Spanish and French laws of the state. Likewise, he strove constantly toward simplification of laws, simplification of the legal machinery.

His legal scholarship won him widespread attention. But his crowning achievement was the criminal code. The Louisiana legislature asked him to write one. He spent an enormous amount of labor; then fire destroyed the manuscript. He promptly wrote another. It proposed a "new deal" for the criminal. Livingston was nearly a century ahead of his time. He proposed preventing crime as better than having to punish it. He proposed abolition of capital punishment, abolition of flogging. He wanted to clean up prisons. He advocated teaching trades to convicts, as well as educating them along other lines. He suggested issuing them a certificate of merit for ability at their craft, for behavior, and as a means of helping the released convict make his way honestly in the community.

It was too advanced for the legislature. But the code was published in England, France, and Germany. Worldwide acclaim followed.

Sir Henry Maine, eminent English jurist, styled Livingston "the first legal genius of modern times." Victor Hugo wrote in rapt praise of his humanitarian views on prison reform and crime prevention. Decorations and awards were showered on him by European nations. Brazil made his criminal code the basis of its jurisprudence of crimes. Harvard university made him a doctor of laws. The Republic of Guatemala adopted verbatim some of his penal code.

But the legislature of the state of Louisiana, which had requested him to write the criminal code, never adopted it.

MEETING SCHEDULED

RODEO'S FINAL SHOWINGS TODAY

Knife-Throwing Exhibition Is One Of Most Thrilling Performances

This afternoon and tonight the Crosby and Paine rodeo will stage its final showings here, the afternoon performance starting at 2 o'clock and the night show at 8 o'clock. Someone of those attending will leave the rodeo grounds, at Stovall park, driving a new Ford V-8.

Billy Crosby, general director, had succeeded in smoothing away the rough edges of opening day and yesterday's performances were given with handily. Some fine riding, bareback, saddle bronc and steer, was done by the cowboys and several additional features were given.

Perhaps the most thrilling of these was a knife-tirowing exhibition by Colonel Leon Lamar, assisted by Dot Anderson.

Then there was a novelty—bulldogging a steer from the running board of a swiftly moving V-8. Vick Blackstone, one of the favorites of the rodeo, performed this stunt while the spectators yelled with delight.

The knife throwing also evoked a big hand. Helpers placed a big board in the field before the grandstand and Raymond Morace, a yellow-shirted cowboy better known as the "Black Ace," draped himself gracefully but a trifle nervously on the front side.

Lamar picked up a handful of wicked looking knives, moved forward a bit, and—wham! The Black Ace was hemmed in by knives and couldn't have moved if he wanted to.

Then Dot Anderson, who is a star in her own right as a fancy rope artist, leaned over a knife previously planted in the board while Colonel Lamar outlined her figure, too, with gleaming cutlery.

Later he clipped a piece of paper held in her mouth and the "Black Ace," smoking a cigaret, moved in front of the board. Not only the ashes but a good inch of the cigaret fell to the ground as the knife flashed.

All events yesterday seemed to have an added bit of dash. Stack Lee, the veteran plainsman, United States marshal and Indian fighter of the old days in Indian Territory and on the western plains, captivated the fancy of the crowd from the start.

Stack, on his tall mount, was all over the field, heading off stock bound for the pens after calf roping and bulldogging, and twirling a mean lariat.

His sharpshooting act, performed from horseback with the assistance of Mrs. Lee, drew storms of applause. Stack is also an old showman, from the Buffalo Bill and 101 Ranch days, having appeared in London, Australia and in most of the European capitals.

And Herbert Parsons is always as good as an entire show by himself. What he didn't do with the various species of firearms put out by the Winchester company isn't worth mentioning.

Other performers include Texas Jack Sullivan and Chief White Cloud.

The day's performances opened auspiciously again, for the slick riders who came first on the prgram did an unusually good job, both in riding and falling. The horses displayed plenty of life and Gerald Roberts, the Texas cowboy, was incapacitated for the day, with a sprained wrist early in the afternoon.

The calf roping provided both examples of neat work and fun, for some of the calves had no intention of being caught. Each calf is given a 50 yard start before the mounted cowboy tries to rope him. Then he has to lasso the critter, throw him and tie three feet.

The untying is attended to by the clown, who with Ike Hamilton's trick mule, offers comedy relief. In one instance the calf was no more anxious to be untied than tied and dragged the clown half way around the arena.

Several boys in the bulldogging events rode considerable distance on the horns of hefty steers. The brahmas, with their great sweep of horn, were especially popular with the crowd and the buffalo bull, with his shaggy head, aroused lots of interest.

Lloyd McBee, Blanche McBee and Dot Anderson did a fancy rope twirling act on the order of Will Rogers' old stunt in the Ziegfeld follies days. Miss Anderson with a heavy rope, kept the circle spinning over head while she stepped through the loop, assumed a recumbent position and then rose again, despite a light rain which fell for a time.

The spectators, in the spacious bleachers, had no trouble in keeping dry.

CHARGED WITH KILLING

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Son Howard, 28-year-old negro of Lake Providence, was arrested by Madison parish officers and charged with the killing of T. A. Florence on the highway north of Tallulah when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Howard is being held in jail here.

NEW SIRENS RECEIVED BY POLICE DEPARTMENT

Five new sirens were received by the Monroe police department yesterday for installation on its motor vehicles.

C. R. Tidwell, superintendent of the department, said the sirens positively will not be sounded except in instances when police are making emergency calls that urgently demand the quick clearing of a path through traffic.

The Minnesota soil conservation service planned to plant 1,390,000 trees and shrub seedlings in the southeastern part of the state in the fall of 1936 for erosion control.

CHRISTMAS TOY PROGRAM SLATED

Public Requested To Begin Assembling Materials For Shop

The Monroe recreation department this year will again conduct a Christmas toy collection, repair and distribution program, according to announcement yesterday.

While it is not planned to actively begin the program for several weeks, the announcement was made yesterday so that persons who contribute used toys and repair materials will have ample time in which to assemble their contributions.

Persons who have toys and materials which they prefer to contribute immediately are asked to telephone No. 4785. Later, a general collection program will be inaugurated.

In addition to used toys and parts of broken toys, materials which will be needed in the program include nails, tacks, screws, plastic wood, glue, cord string, ribbons, remnants, thread, buttons, wrapping paper, inner tubes, fruit crates and boxes, lumber, silk underwear and various other articles.

The entire collection, repair and distribution program is one which annually receives the cooperation of the Council of Social Agencies, firemen, Boy Scouts and other organizations. Last year the WPA provided skilled workmen for the repair shop and assisted in other ways.

Flush Kidneys of Acids and Poisons

Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Nights

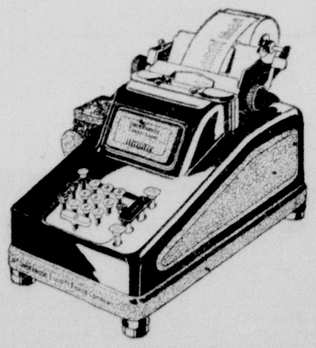

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed.

But be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness.

Home Becomes Center Of Activities As Cool Days Arrive

Junior League Revue Claiming Interest

Society Looks Forward To Three Marriages Which Will Be Celebrated Soon

By Eve Bradford

NIGHT winds with a tang of frost in them whisper of approaching winter. Across the broad, golden face of the moon, "V" shaped flocks of wild geese, winging their way steadily southward on their great autumnal adventure, bring a grim reminder that winter is advancing and the year is growing old.

Once again the home becomes the center of interest and the chitter-chatter of small talk echoes in drawing rooms warm with firelight. The cup of fragrant orange pecoe now takes the place of frosted glasses and the tinkling ice that accompanied conversation during the summer.

Conversation is centered today, where two or more members of society are gathered together, in the approaching Junior League style revue on Wednesday on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel. The tide of conversation will reach crescendo when the gowns worn by the mannequins will be discussed most emphatically at the luncheon tables along the margin of the white carpeted aisle. Never have clothes been so beautiful with their flared, fitted silhouettes and lavish fur trimmings. Presto, like Alladin's lamp, six beautiful young women will change from sport clothes to those glamorous evening gowns of scintillating beauty for the feminine world of Monroe to feast their eyes upon. Gleaming satins, suave velvets and glimmering metallic materials are irresistable after months of summer nets, drooping chiffons and naive, printed cottons.

Now that big weddings are fashionable again, the girl who is about to take her marriage vows is not going to pass up the chance for a little pageantry. Resplendent bridal fashions have made the traditional veil more attractive than an elopement, especially to the bride who hasn't been married before and is entitled to as much formality as she pleases. An anticipatory thrill is being experienced by members of society who will watch Elizabeth Gill join Dr. John Bostick at the altar on Wednesday, and Elizabeth Cosper, who will walk altarward to meet Dr. Elldrege Carroll on November 7. Sue Graves and her wedding c tourage will dazzle the eyes of society when they walk down the aisle to the strains of Lohengrin during the month of November. King Stubbs will join the recessional with his bride beside him.

Hope chests, it seems are not relics of the past. Elizabeth Cosper is setting aside one day next week for friends to see the gorgeous linens with which her hope chest is simply overflowing. Elizabeth and her mother have been busy f r years, embroidering, monogramming and sewing fine seams, in readiness for the day every girl dreams about. We discovered recently that Elizabeth's chef d'oevre is housekeeping, so naturally the new home in Columbia will be a model of perfection. Vines and shrubbery, already planted, will soon be clambering over the cottage door.

Demonstrating the truism, "He best pursues life who is keenly aware of the greatest number and variety of interests," Dorothy Sholars has a new hobby—raising highly pedigreed cocker spaniels. The rear gardens of her home are simply alive with the most beautiful, long-eared baby spaniels, you ever looked at. Last year, Dorothy's hobby was the growing of azaleas and she followed the azalea trail from Monroe to Mobile and on to North Carolina through gardens steeped in the beauty of their exquisite coloring. Her own gardens boasted of numerous varieties that claimed the interest of garden club workers from this section of the state. Brunswig Sholars is her colleague in the interesting new hobby and every day they can ' found hovering over the kennels watching the playful antics of these handsome dogs.

It is not often one finds such unanimity of opinion among friends as prevailed among the guests who attended the Tidwell coffee hour where Happy LaCour, home for the first time since her r arriage in August, presided with her mother. Happy, so everyone avows, is more beautiful than ever and simply radiates happiness. The frock she was wearing did much toward enhancing her charm—it was black and white with a flip little jacket, bound in black satin. The flower bedecked rooms of the Tidwell home were swarming with beautifully gowned guests. Everyone, it seems, was in her newest and smartest winter outfit.

Louise Theus and Ruth Surguine were looking unusually smart. Ruth was in black with black lynx fur and a small black hat that was vastly becoming. Louise was wearing a silver fox fur with bottle green crepe frock and a small hat of the same color. Sue Kellogg almost flew, because of the winged black hat she was wearing, along the street, with mind busily at work with the Junior League style revue of which she is chairman.

Burton-Gatlin

The interest of friends is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Juanita Gatlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Gatlin, and Mr. Stanley Burton, at the home of the bride's parents October 17 at half after seven o'clock.

Autumnal garden flowers of pronounced beauty formed a decorative background for the ceremony, performed by Reverend O'Neal of Bastrop in the presence of a few intimate friends.

The bride wore a distinctive light wool tailleur of navy blue with accessories of smoke grey. A corsage of bride's roses and valley lilies completed the charming ensemble. For sentiment, she carried the rose point handkerchief carried by her grandmother on her wedding day. She also wore her grandmother's antique brooch.

Mrs. Burton has a wide circle of friends socially and in the business world, where she is identified with the Gatlin Wholesale Grocery company. Mr. Burton is associated with the Monroe Automobile and Supply company.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Menefee are receiving the congratulations of their friends over the arrival of their second child, a splendid son, Jerry Leonard, at St. Francis sanitarium, October 21. His maternal grandmother is Mrs. H. B. Andrews of Mer Rouge and his paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Menefee of Homer. Mrs. Menefee will be remembered as Miss Doris Andrews of Mer Rouge.

Music Contests

Mrs. H. M. James, publicity chairman of the fifth district, Federation of Music clubs, calls attention to the meeting of the national board of directors and district state presidents' council in Dallas, Tex., October 15-18.

One of the main discussion themes was the young artists' and student musicians' contests. Ruth Haller Ottaway, the national chairman of these contests, reports inquiries from young artists in 36 states and other indications that the twelfth biennial nation-wide contests for ambitious young American artists will command unusual interest. The attractive National Federation of Music clubs' prizes totaling four thousand dollars the major appearances offered by the Schubert memorial to federation winners account in part for the keen interest shown as well as a knowledge that the attention of leading musicians in the country is called to the contestants. As a result of this feature, contestants in the past unsuccessful in receiving awards have secured church, radio, opera and teaching positions as well as opportunities for further study and engagements.

Competitions will take place in the states not earlier than March 1, 1937. Those young artists who are adjudged qualified to compete in the district contests will enter district auditions within 30 days after the state contests. There are 14 districts and four classifications in which there may be state, district and national winners, piano, violin, voice, opera voice. Hence, 56 winners, if adjudged ready for a national career, may compete in the national finals which will be one of the major events at the National Federation of Music clubs' biennial convention at Louisville, April 23-29, 1937.

Quality rather than quantity is the rule in the young artists' contests due to the stringent requirements which include a repertoire of two recital programs.

The National Federation of Music clubs offers three cash prizes of one thousand dollars each to the winner of first place in each of the four classifications. Two cash prizes of five hundred dollars each will be presented by the federation to the two opera voice contestants who are considered by the judges worthy to compete for the Schubert memorial award of a major role in the Metropolitan opera. The contestant who receives the award of a major role in the Metropolitan opera will be declared the federation national opera voice winner. As in previous contests, if no contestant has received first rating in any classification, the best contestant in that classification will receive one-half of the federation first prize and will not be eligible for the Schubert memorial award.

1. An appearance with the Philadelphia orchestra in Philadelphia and New York to the best instrumentalist (violinist or pianist), the audition to take place in Philadelphia.

2. A major role in the Metropolitan opera, the two best federation opera voice contestants to be given a Metropolitan Opera company audition in New York.

The artist sponsors for the contests have remained the same throughout the present administration: piano, Ernest Hutcheson; violin, Albert Spalding; voice, Frank La Forge; opera voice, Lawrence Tibbett.

The student musicians' contests are considered highly important and are being forwarded vigorously by the state contest chairman with the aim of focussing public attention upon music study as an avocation as well as to give recognition to gifted state artists. The artist sponsors for these contests are: piano, Rudolph Ganz; violin, Louis Persinger; violincello, Felix Salmond; organ, Harold Milligan; men's voice, Richard Crooks; women's voice, Kathryn Meisle.

The student musicians' contests terminate with district auditions. District and state determine the awards which take the form of appearances with orchestra, cash prizes and engagements.

Working with Mrs. Ottaway in the national contest committee are Mrs. Byrl Fox Bacher, Ann Arbor, (also chairman of placement for winners), Mr. Ernest Hutcheson and Madam Olga Samaroff Stokowski. For information and contest bulletins, address Mrs. Ottaway at the Music Clubs Magazine Office, 320 Wait avenue, Ithaca, N. Y. State chairman, Mrs. Agnes Roach, 2033 Jena street, New Orleans, La.

Honor Miss Gill

Mrs. C. B. Sherrouse, wearing a trailing gown of black chiffon velvet, stood in the reception suite of her home in Gilbert to receive friends invited to meet Miss Elizabeth Gill, whose marriage on October 28 to Dr John Bostick will be an event of unusual social prominence. Miss Gill wore on this occasion a beautiful black velvet model with flowing sleeves and long full skirt with clips of rhinestone at the neckline.

Mrs. D. D. Gill, mother of the bride-elect, was aslo a member of the receiving party. She wore a lovely peacock blue model of crepe and net.

Co-hostesses on this occasion were Mrs. P. B. Turner, Mrs. R. L. Segrest, Mrs. P. B. Gunn, Mrs. J. W Robinson, Mrs A. J. Ensminger, Mrs. G. G. Conner, Mrs. W. B. McLemore, Mrs. E. A. Pennebaker, Mrs W. E. Gilbert, Mrs. C. E. Scott, Mrs E. E. Ewing, Mrs. Paul Hammond, Mrs. Asa Kiper, Mrs. B. E. Tucker, Mrs. Amy Griffin, Mrs. Laura Bates, Mrs. O. B. Richardson, Mrs. Leta Gilbert, Mrs. J. S. Gardner, Mrs. Walter Shelton, Mrs. Alice Kelly, Mrs. John Barr, Mrs. E. R. Kiper.

All were beautifully gowned and passed among the guests offering the many charming courtesies that rendered this event one of unusual pleasure.

The tea table in the flower banked dining room was beautifully appointed with silver and crystal. Silver platters held luscious confections passed among the guests by Miss Jennie Louise Talbert, Miss Virginia Talbert Townsend, Miss Ellen Gunn, Miss Blanche Martin, Miss Lula Alice Jarrott, Miss Louella Snyder and Miss Rachel Wafer.

The highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of gifts of a miscellaneous nature to Miss Gill. The gift of her hostesses was a handsome Sheffield silver tray.

Motoring from Monroe for this event were Mrs. Thomas Sandridge, sister of Dr. Bostick, and Mrs. R. R. Beaman, Mrs. Curtis Smith, Mrs. Addie Walker.

Home Becomes Center Of Activities As Cool Days Arrive

Society Looks Forward To Three Marriages Which Will Be Celebrated Soon

By Eve Bradford

NIGHT winds with a tang of frost in them whisper of approaching winter. Across the broad, golden face of the moon, "V" shaped flocks of wild geese, winging their way steadily southward on their great autumnal adventure, bring a grim reminder that winter is advancing and the year is growing old.

Once again the home becomes the center of interest and the chitter-chatter of small talk echoes in drawing rooms warm with firelight. The cup of fragrant orange pecoe now takes the place of frosted glasses and the tinkling ice that accompanied conversation during the summer.

Conversation is centered today, where two or more members of society are gathered together, in the approaching Junior League style revue on Wednesday on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel. The tide of conversation will reach crescendo when the gowns worn by the mannequins will be discussed most emphatically at the luncheon tables along the margin of the white carpeted aisle. Never have clothes been so beautiful with their flared, fitted silhouettes and lavish fur trimmings. Presto, like Alladin's lamp, six beautiful young women will change from sport clothes to those glamorous evening gowns of scintillating beauty for the feminine world of Monroe to feast their eyes upon. Gleaming satins, suave velvets and glimmering metallic materials are irresistable after months of summer nets, drooping chiffons and naive, printed cottons.

Now that big weddings are fashionable again, the girl who is about to take her marriage vows is not going to pass up the chance for a little pageantry. Resplendent bridal fashions have made the traditional veil more attractive than an elopement, especially to the bride who hasn't been married before and is entitled to as much formality as she pleases. An anticipatory thrill is being experienced by members of society who will watch Elizabeth Gill join Dr. John Bostick at the altar on Wednesday, and Elizabeth Cosper, who will walk altarward to meet Dr. Elldrege Carroll on November 7. Sue Graves and her wedding e tourage will dazzle the eyes of society when they walk down the aisle to the strains of Lohengrin during the month of November. King Stubbs will join the recessional with his bride beside him.

Hope chests, it seems are not relics of the past. Elizabeth Cosper is setting aside one day next week for friends to see the gorgeous linens with which her hope chest is simply overflowing. Elizabeth and her mother have been busy f r years, embroidering, monogramming and sewing fine seams, in readiness for the day every girl dreams about. We discovered recently that Elizabeth's chef d'oevre is housekeeping, so naturally the new home in Columbia will be a model of perfection. Vines and shrubbery, already planted, will soon be clambering over the cottage door.

Demonstrating the truism, "He best pursues life who is keenly aware of the greatest number and variety of interests," Dorothy Sholars has a new hobby—raising highly pedigreed cocker spaniels. The rear gardens of her home are simply alive with the most beautiful, long-eared baby spaniels, you ever looked at. Last year, Dorothy's hobby was the growing of azaleas and she followed the azalea trail from Monroe to Mobile and on to North Carolina through gardens steeped in the beauty of their exquisite coloring. Her own gardens boasted of numerous varieties that claimed the interest of garden club workers from this section of the state. Brunswig Sholars is her colleague in the interesting new hobby and every day they can ' found hovering over the kennels watching the playful antics of these handsome dogs.

It is not often one finds such unanimity of opinion among friends as prevailed among the guests who attended the Tidwell coffee hour where Happy LaCour, home for the first time since her r arriage in August, presided with her mother. Happy, so everyone avows, is more beautiful than ever and simply radiates happiness. The frock she was wearing did much toward enhancing her charm—it was black and white with a flip little jacket, bound in black satin. The flower bedecked rooms of the Tidwell home were swarming with beautifully gowned guests. Everyone, it seems, was in her newest and smartest winter outfit.

Louise Theus and Ruth Surguine were looking unusually smart. Ruth was in black with black lynx fur and a small black hat that was vastly becoming. Louise was wearing a silver fox fur with bottle green crepe frock and a small hat of the same color. Sue Kellogg almost flew, because of the winged black hat she was wearing, along the street, with mind busily at work with the Junior League style revue of which she is chairman.

Burton-Gatlin

The interest of friends is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Juanita Gatlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Gatlin, and Mr. Stanley Burton, at the home of the bride's parents October 17 at half after seven o'clock.

Autumnal garden flowers of pronounced beauty formed a decorative background for the ceremony, performed by Reverend O'Neal of Bastrop in the presence of a few intimate friends.

The bride wore a distinctive light wool tailleur of navy blue with accessories of smoke grey. A corsage of bride's roses and valley lilies completed the charming ensemble. For sentiment, she carried the rose point handkerchief carried by her grandmother on her wedding day. She also wore her grandmother's antique brooch.

Mrs. Burton has a wide circle of friends socially and in the business world, where she is identified with the Gatlin Wholesale Grocery company. Mr. Burton is associated with the Monroe Automobile and Supply company.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Menefee are receiving the congratulations of their friends over the arrival of their second child, a splendid son, Jerry Leonard, at St. Francis sanitarium, October 21. His maternal grandmother is Mrs. H. B. Andrews of Mer Rouge and his paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Menefee of Homer. Mrs. Menefee will be remembered as Miss Doris Andrews of Mer Rouge.

Music Contests

Mrs. H. M. James, publicity chairman of the fifth district, Federation of Music clubs, calls attention to the meeting of the national board of directors and district state presidents' council in Dallas, Tex., October 15-18.

One of the main discussion themes was the young artists' and student musicians' contests. Ruth Haller Ottaway, the national chairman of these contests, reports inquiries from young artists in 36 states and other indications that the twelfth biennial nationwide contests for ambitious young American artists will command unusual interest. The attractive National Federation of Music clubs' prizes totaling four thousand dollars the major appearances offered by the Schubert memorial to federation winners account in part for the keen interest shown as well as a knowledge that the attention of leading musicians in the country is called to the contestants. As a result of this feature, contestants in the past unsuccessful in receiving awards have secured church, radio, opera and teaching positions as well as opportunities for further study and engagements.

Competitions will take place in the states not earlier than March 1, 1937. Those young artists who are adjudged qualified to compete in the district contests will enter district auditions within 30 days after the state contests. There are 14 districts and four classifications in which there may be state, district and national winners, piano, violin, voice, opera voice. Hence, 56 winners, if adjudged ready for a national career, may compete in the national finals which will be one of the major events at the National Federation of Music clubs' biennial convention at Louisville, April 23-29, 1937.

Quality rather than quantity is the rule in the young artists' contests due to the stringent requirements which include a repertoire of two recital programs.

The National Federation of Music clubs offers three cash prizes of one thousand dollars each to the winner of first place in each of the four classifications. Two cash prizes of five hundred dollars each will be presented by the federation to the two opera voice contestants who are considered by the judges worthy to compete for the Schubert memorial award of a major role in the Metropolitan opera. The contestant who receives the award of a major role in the Metropolitan opera will be declared the federation national opera voice winner. As in previous contests, if no contestant has received first rating in any classification, the best contestant in that classification will receive one-half of the federation first prize and will not be eligible for the Schubert memorial award.

1. An appearance with the Philadelphia orchestra in Philadelphia and New York to the best instrumentalist (violinist or pianist), the audition to take place in Philadelphia.

2. A major role in the Metropolitan opera, the two best federation opera voice contestants to be given a Metropolitan Opera company audition in New York.

The artist sponsors for the contests have remained the same throughout the present administration: piano, Ernest Hutcheson; violin, Albert Spalding; voice, Frank La Forge; opera voice, Lawrence Tibbett.

The student musicians' contests are considered highly important and are being forwarded vigorously by the state contest chairman with the aim of focussing public attention upon music study as an avocation as well as to give recognition to gifted state artists. The artist sponsors for these contests are; piano, Rudolph Ganz; violin, Louis Persinger; violincello, Felix Salmond; organ, Harold Milligan; men's voice, Richard Crooks; women's voice, Kathryn Meisle.

The student musicians' contests terminate with district auditions. District and state determine the awards which take the form of appearances with orchestra, cash prizes and engagements.

Working with Mrs. Ottaway in the national contest committee are Mrs. Byrl Fox Bacher, Ann Arbor, (also chairman of placement for winners), Mr. Ernest Hutcheson and Madam Olga Samaroff Stokowski. For information and contest bulletins, address Mrs. Ottaway at the Music Clubs Magazine Office, 320 Wait avenue, Ithaca, N. Y. State chairman, Mrs. Agnes Roach, 2033 Jena street, New Orleans, La.

Reception
immediately following the ceremony
Nineteen hundred five
North Third street.

The radiance of the harvest moon last week lured members of Beta Sigma Phi and their friends out-of-doors for a treasure hunt that led them down winding paths and to the river's edge, where a tempting supper served on the Brown Kraft climaxed the evening's activities. The "pot of gold" was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Allen West, Miss Billy Ryan and Clifford Johnson.

Enjoying this pleasant evening were Miss Jean Hebert and James Eaton, Miss Jerry Wilkes and Robert Kellogg, Miss Katie Harper and Fred Beckett, Miss Mildred Johnson and Frank Mosley, Miss Sally Breard and Bill Caldwell, Miss Billy Ryan and Clifford Johnson, Miss Annie Laurie Breard and Frank Breese, Mr. and Mrs. Allen West, Mr. and Mrs. Bunn Beasley, Mrs. W. J. Veasey and Mrs. J. F. Pendergast.

Mrs. A. G. McHenry and son, Armand, Jr., are spending the week end in Shreveport with Mrs. Robert Humble and family, and incidentally attended the football game and the Louisiana State fair.

MODES of the MOMENT

Flowers Top Evening Coiffures

A single fresh orchid, poised at the part, gives a regal touch to this evening coiffure dressed with the new pompadour which has taken the hairdressing world by storm. The gown of black silk crepe shot with gold threads is cut with an unusual decollete and finished with a diamond clip. Diamond bracelets and clip earrings add the last glittering touches.

Fifth District Parent-Teacher Group Meets At Ferriday

Women Start Many Activities For Year

State President Delivers Address Before Delegates Of Twelve Local Units

Another season is rolling around in which the women members of Parent-Teacher associations are playing a most important part. The united interest of this group of women has resulted in a mighty organization. Their greatest ambition in life, at the present moment is to care for the underprivileged school child.

Especially busy are members of the fifth district Parent-Teacher association. A meeting in Ferriday last Thursday resulted in renewed enthusiasm and a greater determination than ever before to carry on the work as outlined by the national congress.

Mrs. A. L. Price, associate director, presided at the Ferriday meeting.

Three nominees for the office of district director were chosen by the popular vote of the delegates, naming Mrs. Price of Winnsboro, Mrs. W. H. Eisman of Sterlington and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong of Monroe. Their names and qualifications will be submitted to the state board of managers of P.-T. A., and a director will be chosen at the board meeting in Alexandria in January.

Twelve local units including the Monroe council were represented at the meeting, which had a total registration of 65 members of P.-T. A. The spring meeting of the fifth district will be held in Winnsboro.

The newly drafted by-laws were read to the convention by Mrs. E. Faye Walter, after which they were to be submitted to the state parliamentarian before being presented to the district unit for approval.

The program was opened with a welcome by Mr. Hugh Bateman, principal of the Ferriday High school. Mrs. A. L. Smith of Winnfield, state president of P.-T. A., delivered an address on "A Growing Program," in which she said that "We should measure our organizations in three ways—how tall are we, are we expanding, and do we weigh as much as we should?" She closed her talk with the thought that P.-T. A. is trying to promote child welfare. not an organization.

Mrs. C. C. McDonald, auxiliary field worker for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, spoke on the "Two-Way Street," stressing the relation of the home and school, and she proposed the P.-T. A. as a medium for solving the big problem. She termed it an "American institution." Mrs. McDonald spoke on "Homemaking" during the afternoon session.

The goals as adopted by the state board of P.-T. A. were read and discussed by the state president. Safety was stressed. Mrs. G. B. Wilson, state chairman, talked on "Safety Education," interspersing her remarks with suggestions for carrying out the program.

A motion was passed to offer a prize of $3 for the best essay written by a high school student, and a prize of $2.50 for the best poster made by a grammar school student on "Safety," submitted before February 1. Other features of the safety drive will be the distribution of stickers and the pledges asked of all drivers.

Gardeners Busy

There is no special season for gardeners Every month of the year is filled with interest and claims attention. The fall of the year is perhaps the busiest of all, as changes must be made at this time and all plans completed for the early spring and summer garden.

At a recent meeting of the council of the National Garden club in Dallas, Tex., the chairman of the committee gave an outline of what is being done in various sections of the country. She urged the protection and care of birds as our best garden friends—without birds, we could have no gardens; the insects would destroy us. "Visiting Gardens" and "Garden Pilgrimages" were discussed by the chairman and she explained that visiting gardens is a courtesy extended to garden lovers in all countries affiliated in organization—that garden pilgrimages are planned, a series of gardens are opened and a fee is charged for some worthy cause.

Garden club work was outlined in this suggestive form month by month:

"October—Trip to woods for survey of birds, animals, soil erosion, types of trees, etc.

"November—Soil erosion, ground covers—note berry shrubs, good for birds, etc.

"December—Conservation of Christmas Greens—Why? Orchards of holly in Oregon, exported.

"January—Bird Survey — Audubon slides in all schools.

"February—Road 'Miniature Models' and 'Little Waters,' 'Deserts on the March'—Oklahoma University Press.

"March — National Wild Flower week—National Wild Flower association literature.

"April—Visit woodlands in soil erosion areas—note all flowers gone. Visit other sections for abundance of plant life and flowers—conclusions

"May—Visit gardens, nature trails etc. Recreation leaders to plan outings. Flower arrangements as weekly event during spring months by children

"The national council had at the end of the fiscal year 1,980 garden clubs and more than 100,000 members.

"Georgia has 23 garden centers—Ohio has seven. The largest garden center is in Cleveland, O.

"Texas has the greatest number of roadside parks, and also reported not one club delinquent in payment of dues.

"Twelve states reported having held garden institutes, garden schools or flower show judging schools.

"Garden magazines in many states were reported as self-supporting through advertisements. Georgia reported that they had more applications for advertising than they can use each month. They use only one-third of space for advertisements and two-thirds for garden news and club news and a copy is sent to every garden club member.

"Each state was asked to send five slides on trees, to the national lecture and slide committee."

In connection with the roadside development committee's work and plans the board voted to re-affirm its policy on billboard control outside of commercial areas and urged state garden clubs to greater activity in these matters.

"Conservation was presented in a most illuminating manner and the importance of this phase of our work was stressed as a resource that touches every life. It was said that often more misinformation than information could be had on the subject and garden clubs were urged to work for a coordinated program in conservation of all natural resources.

Enjoy Coffee Hour

Society paid homage to a lovely bride-to-be, Miss Elizabeth Cosper, and an attractive bride of recent date, Mrs. Jack Knowles, in the home of Mrs. Arthur Tidwell Friday morning, when she and her daughter, Mrs. Vernon LaCour, entertained during the coffee hour.

Considerable beauty of detail was observed with the artistic arrangement of flowers playing an important part.

Mrs. Tidwell welcomed guests in a jade green afternoon model, and Mrs. LaCour wore a distinctive model of black and white with short coat bound in black satin. Miss Cosper was a charming figure in rust colored crepe satin tunic model, and Mrs. Knowles wore a chic black crepe jacket model banded in black caracul.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. J. N. Knowles, Sr., Mrs. Louis Cosper, Mrs. James A. Noe, Miss Doris Beaman, Miss Judy Thornton, Miss Nancy Helm and Mrs. Ray Rhymes, all of whom were beautifully frocked. Mrs. Peyton Parker also assisted in extending courtesies.

The dining room echoed to the pleasant rhythm of clinking coffee and tea cups and sound of much small talk around the lace covered refreshment table, fragrant with pink Radiance roses and presided over by two charming matrons, Mrs. R. R. Beaman and Mrs. C. P. Gray. Silver salvers laden with luscious tidbits with the bridal theme accentuated in the valley lily embossed mints and the white-frosted petit fours were passed among the guests by Mrs. Joseph Renwick, assisted by Mrs. Travis Oliver, Jr., Mrs. Charles Garretson and Mrs. Walter Kellogg.

Guests drifted back to the reception room for further conversation with friends and the charming hostess, Mrs. LaCour, who is making her first visit home in the city since her marriage last August.

Monroe Lady Says Gly-Cas First Not To Disappoint Her

Mrs. Barlow's Entire System Toned By New Remedy; Stomach And Kidneys Now Fine; Eats And Sleeps Good, New Strength and Energy Restored, Nerves Quieted.

It is a striking fact that in many instances of awful suffering where all kinds of medicines and treatments had flatly failed, this amazing new medical discovery, Gly-Cas, has given results which are astonishing.

MRS. J. D. BARLOW

Read what Mrs. J. D. Barlow, 210 Seventh street, Monroe, highly respected lady of this city who has lived here for the past twelve years, said recently in a statement reaching the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

"I now realize why so many people are praising Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Barlow. "Indigestion had been a constant source of suffering for me for years. After every meal I ate I was sure to suffer severely afterwards. Gas formed so badly I would bloat until I could hardly breathe, often felt as if I would surely smother. My kidneys were affected too and I could not get a good night's sleep, up at all hours, rest was broken continually and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything to help me. I was bothered continually with severe headaches, was terribly nervous and felt tired and worn-out all of the time. I had to force myself out of bed each morning and lacked the energy to do my work as I should. I spent all kinds of money but met only with repeated failure until I began Gly-Cas—it was what I should have had all the time.

"I was about ready to give up when I was persuaded to give this new Gly-Cas a trial and today I am again enjoying the blessing of good and glorious health," continued Mrs. Barlow. "My years of constipation were corrected almost at once, poisons and gases removed from my system. In a very short time my kidneys became normal and my stomach was fine. I now eat and sleep good, my nerves are quieted, new strength and energy has been restored and I am freed of all those years of suffering. Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have taken that did not disappoint me—there can be no doubt of its merit for this new herbal remedy gives desired results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., Monroe, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

Fifth District Parent-Teacher Group Meets At Ferriday

Women Start Many Activities For Year

State President Delivers Address Before Delegates Of Twelve Local Units

Another season is rolling around in which the women members of Parent-Teacher associations are playing a most important part. The united interest of this group of women has resulted in a mighty organization. Their greatest ambition in life, at the present moment is to care for the under-privileged school child.

Especially busy are members of the fifth district Parent-Teacher association. A meeting in Ferriday last Thursday resulted in renewed enthusiasm and a greater determination than ever before to carry on the work as outlined by the national congress.

Mrs. A. L. Price, associate director, presided at the Ferriday meeting.

Three nominees for the office of district director were chosen by the popular vote of the delegates, naming Mrs. Price of Winnsboro, Mrs. W. H. Eisman of Sterlington and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong of Monroe. Their names and qualifications will be submitted to the state board of managers of P.-T. A., and a director will be chosen at the board meeting in Alexandria in January.

Twelve local units including the Monroe council were represented at the meeting, which had a total registration of 65 members of P.-T. A. The spring meeting of the fifth district will be held in Winnsboro.

The newly drafted by-laws were read to the convention by Mrs. E. Faye Walter, after which they were to be submitted to the state parliamentarian before being presented to the district unit for approval.

The program was opened with a welcome by Mr. Hugh Bateman, principal of the Ferriday High school. Mrs. A. L. Smith of Winnfield, state president of P.-T. A., delivered an address on "A Growing Program," in which she said that "We should measure our organizations in three ways—how tall are we, are we expanding, and do we weigh as much as we should?" She closed her talk with the thought that P.-T. A. is trying to promote child welfare, not an organization.

Mrs. C. C. McDonald, auxiliary field worker for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, spoke on the "Two-Way Street," stressing the relation of the home and school, and she proposed the P.-T. A. as a medium for solving the big problem. She termed it an "American institution." Mrs. McDonald spoke on "Homemaking" during the afternoon session.

The goals as adopted by the state board of P.-T. A. were read and discussed by the state president. Safety was stressed. Mrs. G. B. Wilson, state chairman, talked on "Safety Education," interspersing her remarks with suggestions for carrying out the program.

A motion was passed to offer a prize of $3 for the best essay written by a high school student, and a prize of $2.50 for the best poster made by a grammar school student on "Safety," submitted before February 1. Other features of the safety drive will be the distribution of stickers and the pledges asked of all drivers.

Monroe Lady Says Gly-Cas First Not To Disappoint Her

Mrs. Barlow's Entire System Toned By New Remedy; Stomach And Kidneys Now Fine; Eats And Sleeps Good, New Strength and Energy Restored, Nerves Quieted.

It is a striking fact that in many instances of awful suffering where all kinds of medicines and treatments had flatly failed, this amazing new medical discovery, Gly-Cas, has given results which are astonishing.

MRS. J. D. BARLOW

Read what Mrs. J. D. Barlow, 210 Seventh street, Monroe, highly respected lady of this city who has lived here for the past twelve years, said recently in a statement reaching the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

"I now realize why so many people are praising Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Barlow. "Indigestion had been a constant source of suffering for me for years. After every meal I ate I was sure to suffer severely afterwards. Gas formed so badly I would bloat until I could hardly breathe, often felt as if I would surely smother. My kidneys were affected too and I could not get a good night's sleep, up at all hours, rest was broken continually and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything to help me. I was bothered continually with severe headaches, was terribly nervous and felt tired and worn-out all of the time. I had to force myself out of bed each morning and lacked the energy to do my work as I should. I spent all kinds of money but met only with repeated failure until I began Gly-Cas—it was what I should have had all the time.

"I was about ready to give up when I was persuaded to give this new Gly-Cas a trial and today I am again enjoying the blessing of good and glorious health," continued Mrs. Barlow. "My years of constipation were corrected almost at once, poisons and gases removed from my system. In a very short time my kidneys became normal and my stomach was fine. I now eat and sleep good, my nerves are quieted, new strength and energy has been restored and I am freed of all those years of suffering. Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have taken that did not disappoint me—there can be no doubt of its merit for this new herbal remedy gives desired results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., Monroe, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

Mrs. R. N. Slator To Attend Women's Federation Meeting

Others Also Will Go To National Session

Mrs. Annish And Miss Faulk Among Group Scheduled To Go To Dallas Conference

Mrs. R. N. Slator, regional treasurer of the south central region, Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, will attend the national conference in Dallas, Tex., on November 6-7-8. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Dora Annish and Miss Eleanor Faulk, members of the local club.

Women prominent in affairs of the national organization will be present at this meeting as follows: Mrs. Verna DeArmond, of Oklahoma, national recording secretary; Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, Dallas, national health chairman; Miss Josephine Bell, Blackwell, Okla., national education chairman; Miss Mary Jane Higgins, Fort Worth, regional chairman; Miss Mary Lilyerstrom, Beaumont, co-chairman for regional; Mrs. Faye Gordon, Amarillo, Tex., co-chairman for regional; Mrs. Laura L. Slator, Monroe, regional treasurer; Mrs. John G. Sims, Jr., Fort Worth, regional publicity chairman; Miss Monita Goldsby, Baton Rouge, first vice-president Louisiana federation; Miss Jodie Collette, Lake Charles, recording secretary Louisiana federation; Miss Allene Hawsey, president of Baton Rouge club; Mrs. Zella Kirksey, president Bogalusa club; Miss Ida Harrington, president Lake Charles club; Miss Mabel Collette, Lake Charles, regional publicity assistant for Louisiana.

The theme of the conference, "The Pursuit of Liberty," is a subject of national importance and will be discussed at length at the business sessions.

The social side of the conference is also exceedingly interesting with the "old south" dinner Friday night, November 6, the highlight of the program. Miss Erline White, first vice-president of the national federation, will be the speaker of the evening.

A luncheon each day at 1 o'clock will feature noted speakers, including Miss Maude Reid, president of the Louisiana federation, Miss Margaret Mohler, president of the Missouri federation, and Miss Jessye Arnett, president of the Oklahoma federation. Mrs. Mildred Etter, president of the Kansas federation, Mrs. Mary Turner, president of the Arkansas federation, and Miss Grace Fitzgerald, president of the Texas federation, will be the principal speakers and preside over the roundtable talks.

A panel discussion on some phase of social security is being sponsored by Mrs. Patricia Solander of Kansas, regional parliamentarian.

The presence of Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, will add lustre and prestige to the three-day conference. She will address the assemblage at the banquet Saturday night on the subject, "Wings Over Waves," touching on the life of women at home and abroad.

Miss Louise Franklin, executive secretary of the national federation, will talk on "Club Building" at the Sunday evening session.

A visit to the Texas centennial in a body will be a thrilling experience for all those who attend the conference.

"Make Louisiana First in Safety" is the slogan adopted by the Louisiana State Parent-Teacher association for the year, when the state board met at the Bentley hotel in Alexandria recently.

In their attempt to carry out this splendid program members of the organization are working along many lines of interest, outstanding being the school boy patrol.

The school boy with the white Sam Browne belt is a symbol of America's progress in reducing child injuries and deaths from motor vehicle accidents.

That child fatalities in the United States increased only 4 per cent during the past 12 years, while adult fatalities increased 186 per cent, is attributed directly to the growing attention that states and cities are giving to the promotion of child safety.

Authorities in safety everywhere point to this marked difference as definitely proving the effectiveness of the methods for accident prevention, which are being used so widely, not only in the United States, but in almost all civilized countries.

We believe that the percentage can be lessened as much in the next 10 years if the child is taught properly. We teach the child to appreciate the value of robust health, to understand the conditions and problems of industrial or political society, to enjoy the fine and beautiful in music and art, and to appreciate literature—so why not teach him the invaluable methods of safety? We not only can do it, but we must do it.

Second Book Lecture

Another literary feast has been prepared for women of this city for Monday afternoon and evening at the Lotus club, where Miss Annette Duchein will deliver the second of a series of lectures on "Books and Their Authors" during the winter season.

The lectures are being sponsored by the L. S. U. book circle of the general extension division, divised as a means of extending an adult educational service to the women of Louisiana. Its purpose is to afford Louisiana's women further opportunities to discuss and read worthwhile books.

Classes in the L. S. U. book circle are planned for women of the state who are interested in books and in hearing opinions on current books, with a consideration of the lives and works of outstanding authors. The course is not offered for credit toward university degrees, and it is conducted solely as a lecture course. No questions are asked or papers required. Discussion at the end of the lecture is encouraged, but not required.

Each class is divided into two half-hour periods. During the first half-hour, the lecturer discusses the life and works of an outstanding writer. Examples of writers to be discussed are Miss Ellen Glasgow, John Galsworthy, H. G. Wells, Ernest Hemingway, Miss Willa Cather, contemporary and past Louisiana writers, the Nobel prize winners, etcetera. The lecturer will be influenced by current happenings in the literary world in her choice of subject. For example, the centennial of Mark Twain would call for a lecture on that author. The lecturer will announce at the conclusion of each lecture her subject for the following class meeting.

If new classes prefer a course confined to "The Writers of the South," such a course can be arranged as the subject of the first half-hour period. That course includes a general survey of southern literature, a consideration of the lives and works of Thomas Wolfe, Stark Young, William Faulkner, Erskine Caldwell, Ellen Glasgow, T. S. Stribling, James Branch Cabell, Julia Peterkin, DuBose Heyward, Paul Green, Katherine Anne Porter, Carolyn Gordon, John Peale Bishop, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Evelyn Scott and of Louisiana writers of the past and present.

The second half-hour discussion of two or three books that fall in the group of current "best sellers." The life of the author, his or her past literary efforts and the worth of the present volume will be considered.

Choice of books to be discussed in the second half-hour is governed by reports from leading public libraries and booksellers of the United States as to the books that are most in demand, judged weekly by circulation and sales. Every effort will be made to review any book desired by any particular member or group in any town where the L. S. U. book circle meets, provided the lecturer feels a discussion of the book suggested will be advantageous to the whole class.

Examples of books reviewed in the fall of 1935 in circle classes are Anne Lindbergh's "North to the Orient," Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here," Ellen Glasgow's "Vein of Iron," Hugh Walpole's "The Inquisitors," Willa Cather's "Lucy Gayheart," Stefan Zweig's "Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles," Clarence Day's "Life With Father," and MacKinlay Kantor's "The Voice of Bugle Ann."

Wherever a special book is requested immediately by a class member and it cannot be secured through the circle or library commission books, the lecturer will be glad to secure that book from a rental library, with the understanding that the class member will pay the required rental fees.

Miss Duchein will review on Monday "Young Mr. Disraeli," by Elswyth Thane; "Victoria of England," by Edity Sitwell, and "Anthony," by Earl of Lyton.

Miss Mildred Buttita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buttita, has returned home from New Orleans where she has been under the care of a specialist for the past six weeks and underwent an operation. During the period of convalescence she will be glad to have her friends call.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Norris and children were visitors to the Texas centennial in Dallas last week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sinnott of El Dorado are the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Lofton.

Loyalty to their Alma Mater, the Louisiana State Normal at Natchitoches, graduates and former students have formed the habit of meeting annually for dinner and a few happy hours of pleasant reminiscences.

Thursday night the annual dinner was held at the Virginia hotel, where beautiful flowers, delectable food and a steady flow of animated conversation resulted in one of the happiest and one of the most interesting events ever enjoyed by this group of state normal alumni.

Carnival Planned

Georgia Tucker Mothers Arrange Gala Event For Next Thursday Night

The season for carnivals has arrived and the Georgia Tucker Grammar school will have its regular annual carnival in the school auditorium next Thursday night beginning at 7:30 p.m. There will be fortune telling, folk dancing, moving pictures, fish ponds, boys and girls in gay and grotesque costumes, and all the other things that go with a good carnival. It promises to be all in all a gay, jolly evening for young and old alike.

Mrs. W. M. Harper, the president of Georgia Tucker P.-T. A., supported by a splendid corps of officers, has all the details organized for smooth running efficiency and fun. Mrs. James Phelps is general chairman and Mrs. R. L. Moore and Mrs. John Humble will assist her.

Candy committee: Mrs. W. C. Oliver, Jr., chairman, and Mrs. J. B. Dawkins, Mrs. W. A. Walker, Mrs. S. M. Scott, Mrs. H. M. James, Mrs. H. A. Mouk, Mrs. N. G. Gaston, Mrs. John Madden.

Coffee: Mrs. Carl McHenry.

Entertainment: Mrs. Ted Allen, chairman, and Mrs. S. Solomon, Mrs. W. R. Hammond, Mrs. Alex Wilenzick.

Picture show: Mrs. J. A. Noe.

Comic booths: Mrs. G. A. Bennett, Mrs. Hugh Reverley.

Bastrop

Mrs. W. N. Sype and daughter, Miss Helen Sype, are at home after spending the past two months in New York and Chicago.

Mrs. Fannie Flewellen has returned from a delightful week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. T. E. Rawls, in Minden.

Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Garnier and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Trippe formed a congenial party motoring to Dallas and Fort Worth where they spent the week end attending the Texas centennial.

Mrs. Linea Taylor of Indianapolis, Ind., has arrived for a visit with Dr. and Mrs. B. C. Johnson, and other relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Murchie are having the pleasure of entertaining as their guests Dr. and Mrs. G. O. Kerfoot and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerfoot of Batabis, Ill., who are spending a week in their home.

Mrs. W. H. Hadley has returned from a pleasant week's visit in Shreveport where she was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. E. Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bain McBride have returned from a week's stay in Dallas and Fort Worth where they attended the centennial.

The home of Mrs. J. E. Turpin on East Madison street was the scene of a beautifully arranged affair when Mrs. Evans Turpin and Mrs. William Montgomery were co-hostesses at a bridge shower given in honor of Mrs. Norvall R. Taylor, an attractive bride of recent date.

The hostesses employed a pastel color theme exclusively in the details of their hospitality. Lovely pink radiance roses in slender vases and pottery jars were advantageously placed throughout the reception suite. The card tables were covered in crisp green, pink and white linen, and clever tallys and score pads portrayed the bridal motif. At the conclusion of the games Miss Oma Shaw Jones held highest score, for which she was awarded a lovely individual cream and sugar service of Fostoria. Mrs. Ernest Smith was given a Fostoria relish dish as a consolation prize.

Those sharing the pleasurable evening with the honor guest were her mother, Mrs. Leon Jones of Monroe, Mesdames J. E. Turpin, Ernest Smith, E. S. Trippe, Charlie Hines, Sam Smith, M. F. Hill, Floyd McLeod, Henry Walker, Lee Williamson, J. B. Rawlinson, Jr., J. V. Jones, Jr., William Loftin, Misses Oma Shaw Jones, Grace Carpenter, Hazel Little, Dale Simpson, Nellie Collins, Mattie Bell Harper, Ira Dell Airhart.

Mangham

Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Poole had as their guest recently Miss Mattie Tilloton of Aetna.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Humble, Sam Humble, Jr., and William Douglas Humble spent seven days in Dallas, Tex., with their daughter and sister, Mrs. T. R. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Randall spent the week end in Shreveport.

Mrs. W. O. Jones, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. I. L. Bruce, Mrs. Homer Boughton, Mrs. Josie Logan and Mrs. C. L. Ellington, enjoyed a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Evans of Fort Worth, Tex.

Mrs. Benton Weed is a patient at St. Francis sanitarium in Monroe, where she is receiving medical treatment.

Women from Mangham who attended the Baptist Deer Creek associational meeting, which was held in Crowville were: Mrs. J. W. DeMoss, Sr., Mrs. R. M. Baxter, Mrs. Will Frey, Mrs. C. Windham, Mrs. Bill Taylor, Mrs. Clara Bell Boughton and Mrs. John Brunson.

The Intermediate G.A.'s of the Mangham Baptist church, with their leader, Mrs. F. C. Sheppard, enjoyed an outing and program meeting on the bank of a creek near here. Those enjoying the outing were: Misses Myrtis Tillman, Marie Tillman, Effie Little, Julia Judd, Helen Prewitt, Elaine Windham, Molly Neil Curry and Mary Anna Gregory.

Second Book Lecture

Another literary feast has been prepared for women of this city for Monday afternoon and evening at the Lotus club, where Miss Annette Duchein will deliver the second of a series of lectures on "Books and Their Authors" during the winter season.

Every effort will be made to review any book desired by any particular member or group in any town where the L. S. U. book circle meets, provided the lecturer feels a discussion of the book suggested will be advantageous to the whole class.

Examples of books reviewed in the fall of 1935 in circle classes are Anne Lindbergh's "North to the Orient," Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here," Ellen Glasgow's "Vein of Iron," Hugh Walpole's "The Inquisitors," Willa Cather's "Lucy Gayheart," Stefan Zweig's "Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles," Clarence Day's "Life With Father," and MacKinlay Kantor's "The Voice of Bugle Ann."

Wherever a special book is requested immediately by a class member and it cannot be secured through the circle or library commission books, the lecturer will be glad to secure that book from a rental library, with the understanding that the class member will pay the required rental fees.

Miss Duchein will review on Monday "Young Mr. Disraeli," by Elswyth Thane; "Victoria of England," by Edity Sitwell, and "Anthony," by Earl of Lyton.

Loyalty to their Alma Mater, the Louisiana State Normal at Natchitoches, graduates and former students have formed the habit of meeting annually for dinner and a few happy hours of pleasant reminiscences.

Thursday night the annual dinner was held at the Virginia hotel, where beautiful flowers, delectable food and a steady flow of animated conversation resulted in one of the happiest and one of the most interesting events ever enjoyed by this group of state normal alumni.

Carnival Planned

Georgia Tucker Mothers Arrange Gala Event For Next Thursday Night

The season for carnivals has arrived and the Georgia Tucker Grammar school will have its regular annual carnival in the school auditorium next Thursday night beginning at 7:30 p.m. There will be fortune telling, folk dancing, moving pictures, fish ponds, boys and girls in gay and grotesque costumes, and all the other things that go with a good carnival. It promises to be all in all a gay, jolly evening for young and old alike.

Mrs. W. M. Harper, the president of Georgia Tucker P.-T. A., supported by a splendid corps of officers, has all the details organized for smooth running efficiency and fun. Mrs. James Phelps is general chairman and Mrs. R. L. Moore and Mrs. John Humble will assist her.

Fish pond committee: Mrs. R. F. Petty, chairman, and Mrs. E. M. Steen, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. T. O. Rutledge.

Bastrop

Mrs. W. N. Sype and daughter, Miss Helen Sype, are at home after spending the past two months in New York and Chicago.

Mrs. Fannie Flewellen has returned from a delightful week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. T. E. Rawls, in Minden.

Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Garnier and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Trippe formed a congenial party motoring to Dallas and Fort Worth where they spent the week end attending the Texas centennial.

Mrs. Linea Taylor of Indianapolis, Ind., has arrived for a visit with Dr. and Mrs. B. C. Johnson, and other relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Murchie are having the pleasure of entertaining as their guests Dr. and Mrs. G. O. Kerfoot and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerfoot of Batabis, Ill., who are spending a week in their home.

Mrs. W. H. Hadley has returned from a pleasant week's visit in Shreveport where she was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. E. Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bain McBride have returned from a week's stay in Dallas and Fort Worth where they attended the centennial.

The home of Mrs. J. E. Turpin on East Madison street was the scene of a beautifully arranged affair when Mrs. Evans Turpin and Mrs. William Montgomery were co-hostesses at a bridge shower given in honor of Mrs. Norvall R. Taylor, an attractive bride of recent date.

The hostesses employed a pastel color theme exclusively in the details of their hospitality. Lovely pink radiance roses in slender vases and pottery jars were advantageously placed throughout the reception suite. The card tables were covered in crisp green, pink and white linen, and clever tallys and score pads portrayed the bridal motif. At the conclusion of the games Miss Oma Shaw Jones held highest score, for which she was awarded a lovely individual cream and sugar service of Fostoria. Mrs. Ernest Smith was given a Fostoria relish dish as a consolation prize.

Following the games of bridge Mrs. Taylor was presented with innumerable daintily wrapped packages, which contained beautiful and useful gifts, from her many friends.

Those sharing the pleasurable evening with the honor guest were her mother, Mrs. Leon Jones of Monroe, Mesdames J. E. Turpin, Ernest Smith, E. S. Trippe, Charlie Hines, Sam Smith, M. F. Hill, Floyd McLeod, Henry Walker, Lee Williamson, J. B. Rawlinson, Jr., J. V. Jones, Jr., William Loftin, Misses Oma Shaw Jones, Grace Carpenter, Hazel Little, Dale Simpson, Nellie Collins, Mattie Bell Harper, Ira Dell Airhart.

VEILED HINTS AT SMARTNESS

The House of Patou gilds the lily by multiplying the loveliness of young Pat Patterson with a smoke blue felt hat with matching feather fancies at the sides and a flaring veil.

Looking more like a headdress than a hat, the creation that glorifies Pat Patterson, Hollywood starlet and wife of the French actor, Charles Boyer, is known in Paris fashion circles as a formal coiffure. As interpreted by the House of Patous, it consists of yards of filmy black tulle streaming from a red velvet rose mounted on a tiny tapered crown.

Try this recipe for something stunning to admire—take a glamor girl like Pat Patterson, add a suave black felt hat, drape it with a dash of chenille veil. Then feast your eyes on a Paris achievement.

VEILED HINTS AT SMARTNESS

The House of Patou gilds the lily by multiplying the loveliness of young Pat Patterson with a smoke blue felt hat with matching feather fancies at the sides and a flaring veil.

Looking more like a headdress than a hat, the creation that glorifies Pat Patterson, Hollywood starlet and wife of the French actor, Charles Boyer, is known in Paris fashion circles as a formal coiffure. As interpreted by the House of Patous, it consists of yards of filmy black tulle streaming from a red velvet rose mounted on a tiny tapered crown.

Try this recipe for something stunning to admire—take a glamor girl like Pat Patterson, add a suave black felt hat, drape it with a dash of chenille veil. Then feast your eyes on a Paris achievement.

Glamorous Star

The last word in chic, indeed, was Marian Marsh, a Columbia star, in the dress pictured here, dashing across the lot to her work on "Come Closer Folks." One couldn't help but remark the details of her dress; the new outside darts on the shoulders and pockets, the original raglan sleeves, the flattering animation of the pleated skirt. The fabric was so smart, too, in the tremendously popular fallen leaf shade of soft angora finish wool, and trimmed with brown velvet belt ends and smart natural wood buttons. Miss Marsh was asked to pose in it so that Anne Adams, our pattern director, might note its simple yet newly smart lines. The pattern X4207 is now ready to send to you, and it may be ordered in sizes 14 to 42. Miss Marsh thought that the woman who sews is fortunate, indeed, to be able to get the material she wants in the color she likes at the price to fit her pocket book, and, she added, that smart women seem to realize today that simple lines and fit are so much more important than a lot of fussy detail. Send 15c today for pattern X4207 to News-Star—World Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York, N. Y.

The Strange Case of Julia Craig

by Nard Jones Copyright NEA 1936

CHAPTER XIV

Next day, a little after five, Julia found herself in a taxi bound for one of the municipal wharves. There, Cintra Lee had told her over the telephone the night before, she would find Tony Latta ready to take her to his gambling ship for her first professional engagement.

All day long her better judgment had warred against the idea—but already she had given Cintra her word. And there remained the fact that she was out of a job and must do something. But, despite all this, she might still have sent her excuses had it not been for Amy Sanders.

"I'd do it," Amy told her. "You can take care of yourself, Julia. It's not where a girl is, but what she is. If you're sold on this Cintra Lee, and she says that Latta is all right, what more do you want?"

So, bolstered with Amy's advice, Julia kept her promise to Cintra Lee. All day long she had occupied herself furiously with small tasks around the apartment, trying not to think of her eventual appointment with Latta. When the time came, she ordered a cab almost automatically—and now here she was, headed straight for Latta's gambling ship.

It seemed only a few minutes before the taxi had stopped before the wide gates of the municipal wharf. Trembling a little, Julia got out and paid the driver. In her excitement she almost forgot her bag and he had to call after her. But when Julia reached out a hand for it a low, strange voice said, "I'll take it, please." She turned swiftly to look into dark brown eyes—enigmatic eyes that told nothing.

"I am Tony. And you are Miss Craig?"

"Yes . . ." Julia faltered.

"I recognized you from what Cintra told me. You are ready to come aboard now?"

In those few seconds before she found her voice to answer, Julia examined Tony Latta. He was rather short, and a little heavy—a man somewhere beyond forty. His eyes were the eyes of his race, deep and dark and beautiful. They were his most—perhaps his only—attractive feature. But his smile was broad and friendly.

"Before we start out we must get things straight, eh?" He smiled again. "You want to sing for my customers?" He nodded quickly to his own questions. "And about the salary. I cannot pay very much, even though Cintra tells me you are very good. Suppose we start at $40 a week?"

Julia started. Her salary at Woodford and Brooks had been $27.50 a week.

Mistaking her hesitation, Latta added, "That includes your meals aboard the ship, if you want them. And also you can have a room—or you can come in with the last taxi boat."

"I—I think I'd rather stay in town," Julia said.

Latta shrugged. "Even if you do, $40 is all I can afford to pay."

"That will be . . . quite satisfactory, Mr. Latta."

His wide smile flashed again. "Good! . . . And one other thing. Everybody calls me Tony. Nobody calls me Mr. Latta unless they do not like me much. I think right from the start you should call me Tony, and I should call you Julia. Is it a go?"

Julia laughed. "It's a go," she agreed, wondering what there was about this short, dark man that was so likable.

But when he led her to the end of the wharf where four sleek mahogany runabouts were moored she felt as if she were about to step into an abyss from which a return would be difficult. At sight of Latta, a man appeared from out the sedan-top of the nearest boat.

"Ready to go, Tony?"

"All ready. Put the light on the ladder, Pete."

Below her Julia saw the narrow rungs which made it possible to board the water taxi. In no time at all she and Latta were aboard and the boat seemed to literally leap away from the dock. Julia caught her breath at the sudden speed, and Latta smiled.

"These boats are very fast," he said. "I have had them a long time." He looked at her slyly, like a small boy confessing a peccadillo. "I had them before prohibition was repealed. Before," he added with a smile, "before I decided that it was not right to be breaking the law."

"I see," said Julia uncertainly.

"You know my ship is perfectly legal?" he asked anxiously. "It does not operate in the state, and so it is not subject to state laws. You know that?"

"Oh, yes," laughed Julia. "Cintra told me. I wouldn't have taken the job if she hadn't assured me of that."

* * *

Latta nodded. "I believe you, Julia. You are a good girl. I can see that with only one eye. And that is what I want. Cintra says you sing like—I think she said it was like nobody's business."

"I hope she didn't build me up so much that you'll be disappointed."

"I cannot tell a good note from a bad one," Latta confessed. "But I take Cintra's word for anything. And anyhow, my customers will tell me if they do not like you."

He laughed uproariously at this last remark, but somehow Julia could not find it amusing. "I hope," she thought, "that I can last the week out."

But when the speedy boat had left the harbor and encountered the heavier weather outside she was not so certain that she would want to last the week out. The runabout seemed to leap from one wave crest to the next, and each wave slapped the bottom like a giant sledge.

"Does it get rougher than this?" she asked.

"Rough?" Tony Latta seemed surprised. "This is not rough. These boats will take more than you think—and sometimes it is pretty bad." He smiled at her. "I think sometimes you will change your mind about wanting to come back into town."

Julia's heart beat faster. Would this job, too, be virtual imprisonment—as she had suffered on the Wood Nymph? Certainly she had no desire to spend very many days and nights, friendless, on a lone ship moored out from shore. But perhaps Latta was having some mild fun with her.

Fortunately it was not very many more minutes before there loomed ahead of them the outlines of a ship. It was not now fully illuminated, except for its regulation lights, and to Julia it seemed a black and forbidding hulk bearing down upon them. But Latta's man maneuvered the small boat with the perfection of long experience, and Tony Latta helped Julia to the landing platform. In another moment she was on the deck of his gambling ship.

It was not the largest ship out of the harbor that night, but neither was it very small. Latta explained that he had purchased it from a transportation company which considered the boat out of date.

"But she's fine for my purposes," he said. "I got her for a song, and I sold the engines for a good price, too." He laughed, pleased at his own astuteness. "She don't need engines—we tow her when we want to change her position. But mostly she's just anchored tight, and I got plenty of weight in her hold and she don't roll much."

The interior was not at all what Julia had expected. It was more like the interior of a fine hotel than of a smaller passenger vessel. There were three large gambling rooms with cream-colored walls and furniture that just missed being in florid taste. Most of the chairs and settees were in bright red leather, which seemed to please Latta immensely—and the game tables were all covered with green felt, and marked for a dozen different games of chance.

"But here is where you will sing," Latta said, and pushed open a wide white swinging door.

Julia gasped. It was, in truth, a miniature night club. There were small tables, each with a blue cloth. At one end of the room was a space for a small orchestra, and along one wall was a cocktail bar, resplendent in gray wood and indirect lighting.

Latta smiled. "A nice setting for my—my new little jewel, eh?"

"It's so much nicer than I expected," she said, without thinking how her remark might sound.

"But Tony's boat gets the best people," he assured her. "Your singing will not be wasted . . . And now I will show you your room."

That, too, was lovely, but there were some evidences of the former occupant that Julia found a bit gaudy.

"Adjoining it," Latta explained, setting down her bag, "is a little room with a comfortable cot. Even if you decide not to stay aboard, you may want to rest." He looked at his watch. "I've asked the orchestra to come early tonight, in case you want to run over some of the songs with them."

"I'd like to," Julia said.

But as Latta closed the door she was trembling in every fiber of her slender young body. This was such a strange new world in which she had chosen to make her way. Yet there was no turning back now.

Glamorous Star

The last word in chic, indeed, was Marian Marsh, a Columbia star, in the dress pictured here, dashing across the lot to her work on "Come Closer Folks." One couldn't help but remark the details of her dress; the new outside darts on the shoulders and pockets, the original raglan sleeves, the flattering animation of the pleated skirt. The fabric was so smart, too, in the tremendously popular fallen leaf shade of soft angora finish wool, and trimmed with brown velvet belt ends and smart natural wood buttons. Miss Marsh was asked to pose in it so that Anne Adams, our pattern director, might note its simple yet newly smart lines. The pattern X4207 is now ready to send to you, and it may be ordered in sizes 14 to 42. Miss Marsh thought that the woman who sews is fortunate, indeed, to be able to get the material she wants in the color she likes at the price to fit her pocket book, and, she added, that smart women seem to realize today that simple lines and fit are so much more important than a lot of fussy detail. Send 15c today for pattern X4207 to News-Star—World, Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York, N. Y.

Farmerville

Jonesville

Three interesting contests were staged in the auditorium of Block High school, under the auspices of the Jonesville Parent-Teacher association.

The first contest, a Shirley Temple parade, in which the contestants were small girls from 1 to 3 years of age, was won by little Melwanda Campbell, who was adjudged the "cutest child" among the 18 entrants. She was awarded a dress for winning of first place.

The second contest, a personality parade, open to young girls and married women between the ages of 14 and 25, was won by Miss Madeline Fopay. Miss Fopay won the title of "Miss Jonesville" and will be given a chance to compete in a state-wide contest in Monroe for the title of "Miss Louisiana," who will be given a screen test with the possibility of winning a contract in the movies. Miss Lina Spencer was awarded second place.

The third contest, an amateur contest, which included entrants of various ages and talents, was won by little Miss Dorothy Ann White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. White, who delighted her audience with her tap dancing. Miss White will be given an opportunity to broadcast over the radio with the possibility of winning a contract. Mrs. W. L. Frisbie won second place with a piano solo.

The Methodist Missionary society met at the church for the weekly meeting. The program was in charge of Mrs. Julia Lum, Mrs. C. F. Farrar and Mrs. O. V. Hooker. Present were Mrs. L. Yancey, Mrs. C. F. Farrar, Mrs. O. R. Wurster, Mrs. Lee Arnaud, Mrs. Julia Lum, Mrs. H. M. Wheeler, Mrs. Conner, Mrs. O. V. Hooker, Mrs. W. C. Stroud, Mrs. Stanley Farmer. The society will meet each Monday afternoon at the church.

George Cotton and small son, of Winnsboro, spent the week end with Mr. Cotton's father, N. R. Cotton.

Miss Faye Foster, member of the faculty of Grant High school, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Foster.

Mrs. Ben Madison, Mrs. Walter Enete, Jr., Mrs. John A. Guss, Mrs. C. E. Foster, Mrs. Leon Kirby and Miss Carrie Taylor attended the Baptist Associational meeting in Urania.

Mrs. Frank Swayze and children have returned here after having spent several days in Natchitoches, where they visited Mr. Swayze, who is employed by the government.

Kelly

Mrs. J. P. Duke left Thursday evening for Moriarty, N. M., where she will spend a few months with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Glass.

Mrs. K. E. Humphries is now improving rapidly after undergoing an operation in the St. Francis sanitarium in Monroe.

Mrs. N. L. Pugh spent several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Humphries, while en route from Chicago, Ill., to Dallas, Tex., where she will make her home.

Miss Helen Franklin spent several days with her sister, Mrs. L. M. Mathews of Tullos.

C. J. Roberts of Jackson, Miss., and G. W. Roberts spent a week end with their brother, D. L. Roberts, of Kelly.

ON WOMEN'S GOVERNING COUNCIL

These twelve co-eds at the Louisiana State Normal college at Natchitoches have been elected to represent the women enrolled at the college in the student cooperative government association recently instituted. Functioning in both a judicial and an executive capacity, the new women students council is empowered with the responsibility of initiating and directing the program relating to student government at the institution. Members of the new council are, top row, left to right: Willie Lou Talbot, Houma; Harriet Hall, New Iberia; Margueritte Hanley, president, Alexandria; Velma Schexnayder, New Roads. Middle row: Patricia Burke, New Iberia; Miriam Himel, Port Allen; Dorothy Irion, Benton; Orelia Hendrix, Jena. Bottom row: Jean Johnson, Shreveport; Mabel Claire Lancaster, Waterproof; Georgia Pickett, Pineville; Dorothy LaCroix, Colfax.

WORLD WAR VET USES BONUS FOR LOW COST HOME

FHA Employe Bases Home On Plans Outlined In Department Bulletin

WASHINGTON—The chef who relishes his own food, like the man who laughs at his own jokes, can now move over and make room for the man who actually practices what he preaches.

Samuel E. Carpenter of Washington is a veteran of the World war and an employe of the federal housing administration. He participated in the effort to point out to veterans that a home is a good thing in which to invest their bonus payments, and also in the effort to prove that construction of a livable low-priced home is possible today.

Mr. Carpenter is one of the first individuals in the country to build a low-priced home based on the general plans in "Principles of Planning Small Houses," published by the federal housing administration. And he used his bonus money to purchase the site for his house.

$3,200 Valuation

The dwelling is at Silver Spring, Md., a suburb of Washington. It is a one-story frame structure, built at the contract price of $2,912, with $50 for the architect's fee, $100 for landscaping and other charges bringing the total cost to $3,200. The house and land, as improved, were appraised at $4,000, and he got an insured mortgage from a bank for $3,200, the 80 per cent maximum allowed under the insured mortgage system.

The mortgage runs for 20 years, and the payments amount to less than $30 a month, including a share of the year's taxes, interest, payment on the principal, hazard and mortgage insurance premiums and all other fixed charges. This, incidentally, is approximately what Carpenter formerly paid for the rent of a furnished room.

Two Bedrooms

The new dwelling consists of a living room, two bedrooms, bath and kitchen. A gas-burning heating plant is installed in the kitchen, as it has no basement.

When Carpenter received his bonus money he purchased his lot in Silver Spring and then consulted Schreier and Patterson, Washington architects. They made some minor adjustments in the plans set forth in the housing administration's booklet and advertised for bids.

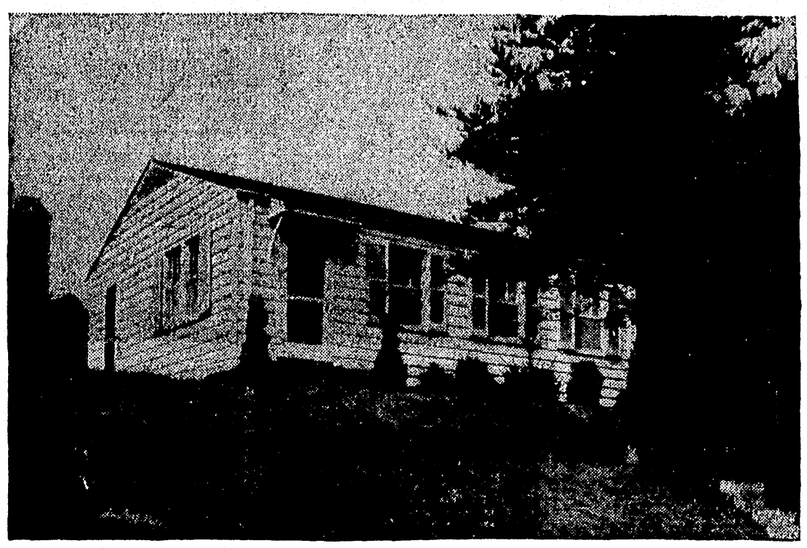

The bids received ranged up to $5,500. The contract was finally awarded to George Heckler of Clarendon, Va., whose figure approximated those given in the booklet by the housing administration's technical authorities, who believe the houses described in the booklet can be built in most sections of the country for less than $3,000.

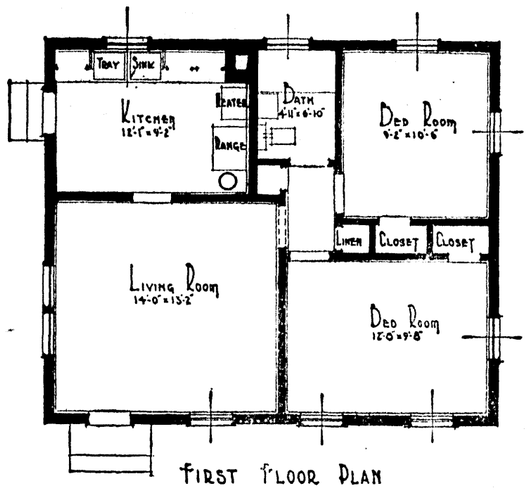

BUSY PHILADELPHIA

The Philadelphia Inquirer reports increased retail sales this summer and "unusual progress" in industrial activity with respect to production and employment. The seasonal advance in retail sales in Philadelphia amounts to 10 per cent, with the increase in new houses accounting for the vigor of August furniture and house furnishing sales. The Inquirer noted that the normal recession of industrial activity during the summer did not materialize.

Rat's milk, according to findings of scientists, is much richer in fats and proteins than is cow's milk.

Bonus-financed Low-cost Home

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

This house, built at Silver Spring, Md., a suburb of Washington, by an employee of the Federal Housing Administration, was one of the first in the country to be built for a low cost, following the general plans of the Housing Administration's booklet, "Principles of Planning Small Houses." Samuel E. Carpenter, the owner, a veteran of the World War, used his bonus money to purchase the site for the house. The entire cost of the house, including the architect's fee, landscaping, and other such attendant costs, was $3,200. The house and land was appraised by the Housing Administration at $4,000, and a bank issued an insured mortgage for $3,200 on the property.

AMORTIZED LOANS CUSTOMARY NOW

Bankers Are Told That Old-Time 'Flat Loan' Is Thing Of The Past

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — The American Bankers association, at its sixty-second annual convention here, was told by Russell G. Smith, cashier of the Bank of America, that "the flat loan has practically disappeared and amortization is the watchword of the day."

Mr. Smith stressed the necessity of adequate, easy credit for home building and said that the importance of amortizing real estate loans, as required under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration, cannot be over-emphasized.

Robert V. Fleming, retiring president of the association, told the meeting that insured mortgages constitute one form of safe investment for customers' funds.

JULY FIGURES

Dun & Bradstreet figures on July building show that in 215 cities the volume dipped 15.4 per cent from the abnormally high volume of June. This, however, was largely because New York city's building decreased from $40,011,404 in June to $20,745,393 in July, a drop of 48.2 per cent. Without the New York figures the country shows a gain of 2.6. The July dollar volume of building permits in 215 cities was $95,281,845, compared with $112,640,106 in June and $54,191,787 in July, 1935. Building permits issued during the first seven months this year aggregated $558,929,430, up 82 per cent from 1935, the report states.

Fresh Air And Sunlight Of Basic Importance In Child's Nursery

Mothers the world over desire cheerful, pleasant nurseries for their children.

In arranging for a room of this kind, an abundance of fresh air and sunlight is important. If possible to add a sleeping porch to the room, it means great benefit to the occupant.

It is necessary, too, that materials used in the room be of the varieties that are readily kept clean. This safeguards the health of the child and reduces the labor of the person caring for the room.

In a room modernized for a nursery with a small amount of money, the walls were covered with paper of a light pastel plaid. The woodwork was painted a deep cream, and a composition floor resembling planking was laid. Venetian blinds were hung at the windows, and there were no curtains to hold the dust.

No ceiling light was used, and wall brackets had shades which completely eliminated any possible glare. No wires were strung about the room to cause falls or other accidents. Cupboards were provided for toys. Suitable and attractive furniture was chosen, and a washable rug covered the floor. While the room had a clean, well-cared-for look, there was a sufficiency of color introduced to prevent a bare appearance.

Insured modernization credit for this type of work may be obtained through private financial institutions approved by the federal housing administration.

Questions And Answers

Q. There is a wide opening between our living room and dining room. Do you think it advisable to put on glass doors?

A. If you want to close the opening, doors are perfectly appropriate. Whether you should use glass doors or wood depends upon whether you want light to be transmitted through the doors. If this is not necessary and and the doors are intended to provide privacy, wood doors would be preferable.

Q. What is the best way to prepare a garden pool for winter?

A. Drain it and fill it either with straw or leaves or cover it with a wooden roof. If there are any pipes that carry water to the pool, they, too, should be drained.

Q. Is it necessary to leave the outside ventilators under the unexcavated portion of the cellar open all winter?

A. Not if there are sufficient openings to the cellar itself. If there are no such openings, the outside ventilating openings should be left open to prevent dry rot. The floor should be insulated to keep out the cold.

Q. How can I tell whether or not my furnace is capable of supplying some additional radiators that I want to put in?

A. You had better consult a heating engineer.

Q. I am putting a chair rail in my dining room, and I am in doubt whether it should line up with the window sills.

A. If the sills come at the proper height it is desirable, but it is not necessary. Decide where you want the rail and put it there.

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

A list of major modernization and expansion programs for industrial plants for September, involving an expenditure of about $100,000,000, was announced by Standard Statistics company, according to a published report in the New York American. Included in the list is a program for General Motors amounting to $14,500,000; E. I. du Pont, $2,000,000 at North Baton Rouge, La.; Industrial Rayon corporation, $3,000,000 at Cleveland; Packard Motor Car company, $5,000,000; Coca-Cola, $1,000,000 at Kearny, N. J.; and others.

PITTSBURGH'S ACTIVITY

More than $3,000,000 worth of real estate changed hands in Allegheny county during August, according to figures compiled by the Real Estate Survey, the Pittsburgh Press reports. The number of single-family residences sold (exclusive of residences recorded in multiple conveyances) was 356, their aggregate consideration amounting to $1,408,000. Half of these sold for $3,000 or less; two-thirds for $4,000 or less.

MUSKEGON SHORTAGE

According to the Detroit News, Muskegon, Mich., is contributing its share to the recovery of the building industry. Although it is striving to overcome an acute housing shortage, Muskegon already this year has erected 125 new homes, while a survey reveals at least 300 persons are planning additional new homes. During the current year more than $2,000,000 has been expended on the construction and rehabilitation of new business properties, the News reports.

RECORD WEEK

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—The southern California district office of the federal housing administration received an average of 49 applications for insured mortgages a day during the week ending August 22. This was a record week for the office.

MANUFACTURERS STRESS QUALITY

Council To Sponsor Home Shows And Displays Of Building Methods

NEW YORK — "Quality construction" will be emphasized in 30 displays and housing shows to be held in various parts of the country during the coming year by the Manufacturers Housing Promotion council. The group was organized by leading manufacturers of building materials to conduct a nation-wide campaign for better housing.

Russell G. Cheviston of the Crane company, chairman of the council, praised the work of the federal housing administration in setting up higher standards of land use and building construction. He said that he thought a large measure of responsibility rested with the manufacturers to see that these standards are understood by the public and applied by developers and builders.

The council has tentative plans for a series of model homes to be erected with the cooperation of the American Institute of Architects and builders' organizations. According to present plans, local builders and architects will participate in each exhibit.

Traveling displays will be used for the housing shows. Motor caravans are being considered for reaching the smaller communities.

FAMILY CAR NEEDS HOUSING IN WINTER

Modernization Program For Homes May Include Building Garage

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Modernizing for winter" might include the building of a garage for the family that bought a new car and parked it on the street or in a vacant lot during the summer. A winter spent by a car in the open will wreak a great deal of harm on the appearance of the car.

There is also the possibility of a cracked cylinder block from freezing of water in the cooling system, as well as the difficulties of starting a cold motor and other annoyances that beset the car owner who tried to do without proper housing for his automobile.

Construction of a garage on property already improved by a completed house may be financed under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

FIREPROOF THATCHED SHINGLES AVAILABLE

Those who have longed in vain for a thatched-roofed cottage may now take hope. A modernized thatched shingle is being produced that gives all the charm of Ann Hathaway's cottage. It is made of Indian reed, attached to an asbestos shingle. Gutters are unnecessary with this roof as the thatch absorbs the rain as it falls and dries out slowly afterward.

SUBURBAN BUILDING

Suburban building in Chicago has developed powerful momentum this year, according to Al Chase, real estate editor of the Chicago Tribune. In seven months of this year building permits totaled $15,219,000. This is more than twice the amount of the same seven months of 1935 and five times the amount of the comparable period in 1934. July is the new five-year record month now, Chase reports. Permits for this month amounted to $3,380,962.

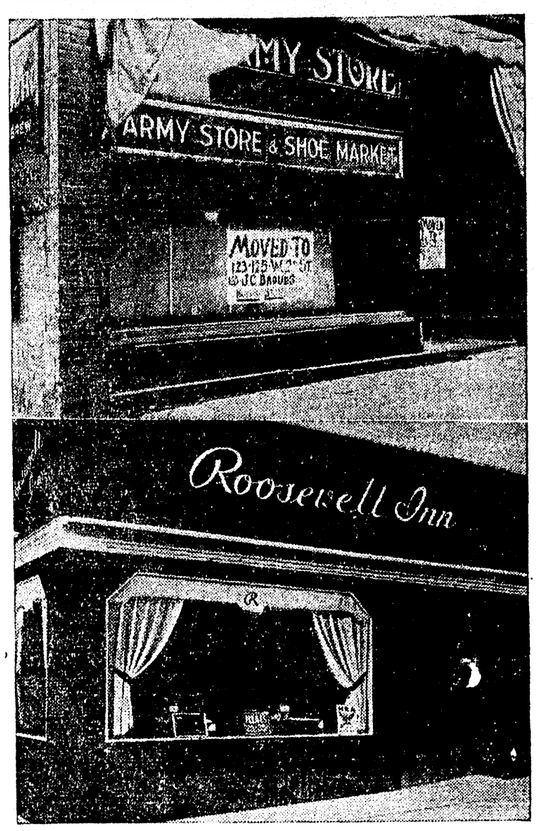

BRONX CHEER

Building in New York City's Bronx district is just 300 per cent ahead of last year for the first eight months, according to a report in the New York Herald Tribune. The cost volume of building plans filed since January, the report states, was $14,842,211, of which $40,254,345 is for new construction. A recent survey showed that 57 new concerns have located in the Bronx during the year.

PITTSBURGH'S STEEL

A Pittsburgh report in the Wall Street Journal establishes ingot operations at 71 per cent of capacity. The report states that 37 blast furnaces are in operation, which is a new high on the recovery. More important, however, is that some of the mills are asking their men to postpone their vacations until later due to the rush of present business.

Modernized Building

The owner of this building was getting little income from the shabby store shown in the "before" photograph. When other property owners repaired surrounding buildings, the shop stood as a disfigurement to the neighborhood. The owner completely renovated the building, inside and out. An ultra-modern front made the location ideal for a restaurant. Increased rentals resulted. Modernization of this type may be carried out with funds obtained from a private financial institution which holds a contract of insurance with the Federal Housing Administration.

Paneled Treatment Of Alcove Walls Gives Pleasant Contrast

In houses that have a dining alcove off the living room, nice effects can be obtained by treating the walls of the alcove in wood. The contrast is pleasant and marks the space as a separate unit and not as a part of the living room itself.

These wood walls may be paneled in many ways; the typical raised panel may be used where expense is not a primary consideration, or perpendicular boards of pine or cypress or chestnut or other appropriate wood may be used, with molded or beaded joints, or for an inexpensive wall simple plywood may be erected. The paneling may extend from floor to ceiling or may run three-fourths of the way up or may be divided about 30 inches from the floor by a chair rail. If this chair rail is used, the treatment above and below may be different.

In a small house built recently in the outskirts of Washington, D. C., plywood is used above the rail and horizontal planks of cypress are placed below, and an excellent effect is achieved. A wood cornice and simple cove moldings at each corner cover the joints of the plywood. Many other combinations can be used that will give equally good results.

Such structural improvements may be financed by private financial institutions under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

BROOKLYN BUILDING

An analysis of residential building in Brooklyn by the Mortgage Conference of New York reveals that housing for more than 11,000 families has been erected since September, 1934, according to a report in the New York Times. The survey reveals that almost 30 per cent of the dwellings erected cost between $5,500 and $5,999. All together there were 2,229 residences built. None cost less than $3,500.

AND PHILADELPHIA

Even in industrial Philadelphia a shortage of skilled building tradesmen is imperiling the residential building industry, Leo Mahoney, treasurer and member of the executive committee of the Delaware county real estate board, reports that a shortage of trained mechanics and apprentices presents a serious handicap to building recovery in the Quaker City. He is quoted in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

FHA DOES NOT LEND

The federal housing administration lends no money. It insures loans made by private financial institutions operating under provisions of the national housing act.

HOMES IN BOSTON DEVELOPMENT TO BE FHA INSURED

Houses Will Sell For About $6,000, Including Price Of The Land

BOSTON, Mass.—A residential development of about 425 homes to be built and financed under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration is under construction at Arlington Heights. The sponsor of the project is the Arlmont Housing Corporation, a private building organization.

Plans call for the construction of the homes, to sell for from $6,000 to $6,500, on a basis of monthly payments from $59 to $60, including interest, taxes, and water rent. The cost price will include the house, lot, garage, landscaping, finished roads, sidewalks, sewers, water, gas, electric and telephone services.

To Be Air-Conditioned

Each home will have a large living room, dining room, model kitchen, tile baths and two, three, or four bedrooms. The buildings will be equipped with air-conditioning systems and will have automatic oil heat. There will be full basements, with provisions for the building in of game rooms.

The Arlmont Housing Corporation is headed by W. Warren Rausch as president and general manager. Funds for the undertaking have been advanced by the General Home Financing Corporation of St. Paul, Minn., and Newark, N. J. The lending institution is protected by the federal housing administration commitment to insure the mortgages on the homes as they are completed.

The general type of architecture will be Colonial. The estimated total cost of the village will be $300,000.

SAGGING DOORS MAY BE EASILY REPAIRED

Sagging screen doors that drop away from the top of the frames and leave convenient cracks through which the flies and mosquitoes may enter can be brought back to their original contours by a wire fastened diagonally across the face with a small turnbuckle in the center.

DECADE RECORD

July building set a new monthly record for this decade on the Pacific coast, according to an Associated Press report in the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express. Permits issued for the 10 largest Pacific coast cities in July totaled roughly $12,398,000. This is more than double the volume of July, 1935, and more than quadruple the volume of July, 1934. Los Angeles headed the list of cities, its permits approximating six million dollars in July.

Paneled Treatment Of Alcove Walls Gives Pleasant Contrast

In houses that have a dining alcove off the living room, nice effects can be obtained by treating the walls of the alcove in wood. The contrast is pleasant and marks the space as a separate unit and not as a part of the living room itself.

These wood walls may be paneled in many ways; the typical raised panel may be used where expense is not a primary consideration, or perpendicular boards of pine or cypress or chestnut or other appropriate wood may be used, with molded or beaded joints, or for an inexpensive wall simple plywood may be erected. The paneling may extend from floor to ceiling or may run three-fourths of the way up or may be divided about 30 inches from the floor by a chair rail. If this chair rail is used, the treatment above and below may be different.

In a small house built recently in the outskirts of Washington, D. C., plywood is used above the rail and horizontal planks of cypress are placed below, and an excellent effect is achieved. A wood cornice and simple cove moldings at each corner cover the joints of the plywood. Many other combinations can be used that will give equally good results.

Such structural improvements may be financed by private financial institutions under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

BROOKLYN BUILDING

An analysis of residential building in Brooklyn by the Mortgage Conference of New York reveals that housing for more than 11,600 families has been erected since September, 1934, according to a report in the New York Times. The survey reveals that almost 30 per cent of the dwellings erected cost between $5,500 and $5,999. All together there were 2,239 residences built. None cost less than $3,500.

AND PHILADELPHIA

Even in industrial Philadelphia a shortage of skilled building tradesmen is imperiling the residential building industry. Leo Mahoney, treasurer and member of the executive committee of the Delaware county real estate board, reports that a shortage of trained mechanics and apprentices presents a serious handicap to building recovery in the Quaker City. He is quoted in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

FHA DOES NOT LEND

The federal housing administration lends no money. It insures loans made by private financial institutions operating under provisions of the national housing act.

HOMES IN BOSTON DEVELOPMENT TO BE FHA INSURED

Houses Will Sell For About $6,000, Including Price Of The Land

BOSTON, Mass.—A residential development of about 425 homes to be built and financed under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration is under construction at Arlington Heights. The sponsor of the project is the Arlmont Housing Corporation, a private building organization.

Plans call for the construction of the homes, to sell for from $6,000 to $6,500, on a basis of monthly payments from $50 to $60, including interest, taxes, and water rent. The cost price will include the house, lot, garage, landscaping, finished roads, sidewalks, sewers, water, gas, electric and telephone services.

To Be Air-Conditioned

Each home will have a large living room, dining room, model kitchen, tile baths and two, three, or four bedrooms. The buildings will be equipped with air-conditioning systems and will have automatic oil heat. There will be full basements, with provisions for the building in of game rooms.

The Arlmont Housing Corporation is headed by W. Warren Rausch as president and general manager. Funds for the undertaking have been advanced by the General Home Financing Corporation of St. Paul, Minn., and Newark, N. J. The lending institution is protected by the federal housing administration commitment to insure the mortgages on the homes as they are completed.

The general type of architecture will be Colonial. The estimated total cost of the village will be $300,000.

SAGGING DOORS MAY BE EASILY REPAIRED

Sagging screen doors that drop away from the top of the frames and leave convenient cracks through which the flies and mosquitoes may enter can be brought back to their original contours by a wire fastened diagonally across the face with a small turnbuckle in the center.

DECADE RECORD

July building set a new monthly record for this decade on the Pacific coast, according to an Associated Press report in the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express. Permits issued for the 10 largest Pacific coast cities in July totaled roughly $12,398,000. This is more than double the volume of July, 1935, and more than quadruple the volume of July, 1934. Los Angeles headed the list of cities, its permits approximating six million dollars in July.

Cooper Stars In 'General Died At Dawn' At Paramount

Film's Ace Adventurer In New Hit

Madeleine Carroll Heads Supporting Cast In Story Of War-Torn China

GARY Cooper, the screen's most famous soldier-of-fortune, will be seen again in his favorite role when "The General Died at Dawn," a Paramount picture of adventure, romance and intrigue in modern war-torn China, plays today at the Paramount theater.

Having already established himself as filmdom's outstanding portrayer of romantic adventure roles in the French Foreign Legion, the Bengal Lancers and the Italian and American armies, Cooper now comes to the screen as a roving soldier-of-fortune in modern war-torn China.

Appearing opposite him is beautiful blonde Madeleine Carroll in the role of the lure put out by a scheming war-lord to trap Cooper. This is an entirely new role for Miss Carroll who has already captivated America despite her few appearances before the camera. Akim Tamiroff, famed for his portrayals of sinister roles, is cast in the role of the ruthless warlord.

The producers of "The General Died at Dawn" were determined to recapture the magnitude and significance of modern China, a popular uprising against oppression without parallel in history. To accomplish this Clifford Odets, brilliant young playwright whose works have caused a sensation for their startling reality and rigid adherence to fact, was assigned to write the screenplay. Lewis Milestone directed the picture.

In order to produce a picture of outstanding merit, it was necessary to recruit over 700 Chinese residents of Los Angeles and the San Joaquin valley to serve as soldiers and civilians in the scenes. An entire Chinese village had to be built of bamboo and paper, and a Chinese "junk," which was pronounced as seaworthy as a cupdefender, had to be built. After this vessel was completed a crew of experienced Yangtze river sailors had to be imported from China to navigate it in the huge tank on the Paramount lot in which marine shots are taken and which is large enough to float a sea-going tug.

"The General Died at Dawn" is a story built around the romance between a soldier-of-fortune to whom danger is the breath of life, and a beautiful woman adventuress who is given the task of destroying him. Their fortunes are closely involved with the fate of China's teeming millions and their lot is decided for them as it only could be in the mysterious Orient.

Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, Joseph Calleia in a scene from "His Brother's Wife," playing the Capitol next Wednesday and Thursday.

Walter Abel and Gertrude Michael are co-starred in the drama, "Second Wife," supported by Erik Rhodes. It plays the Capitol next Friday only.

Paramount today, "The General Died at Dawn," best-selling novel by Charles G. Booth, has been transferred to the screen by Paramount with Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll in the stellar roles.

Playing the Paramount theater next Friday, "And So They Were Married."

—With Edith Fellows, Mary Astor, Melvyn Douglas and Jackie Moran.

WOODMEN OF WORLD PROGRAM COMPLETED

All was in readiness Saturday night for the holding of the first log rolling of the Northeast Louisiana association which will be held at the Woodmen of the World building this afternoon at 1 p.m.

State Manager W. A. Tidwell, of Shreveport, will be in attendance taking active part in the exercises which will include initiation of fully 75 candidates.

While attendance will be largely regulated by weather conditions, if Sunday should prove a good day, there will be possibly as many as 400 to 500 Woodmen present according to estimates made Saturday.

Camps are maintained and delegations are expected from cities and towns throughout the fifth congressional district, as follows: Jonesboro, Winnsboro, Winnfield, Bastrop, Farmerville, Marion, Chatham, Tallulah, Lake Providence, Clarks and Urania.

The local team will act as host and will stage the initiatory work, putting on the protection degree.

The first practical typewriter was placed on the market in 1874.

'Ambassador Bill' Back At Capitol

One Of Will Rogers' Greatest Pictures Returns By Popular Demand

THE WILL ROGERS you loved, in his wisest, wittiest role as the homespun diplomat driving stuffed shirts silly with his shirt-sleeve etiquette and his hilarious horse sense, is starred in the return engagement of "Ambassador Bill," the Fox picture opening today at the Capitol theater.

Brought back by popular demand, "Ambassador Bill" presents America's own humorist in a role closely resembling that which he played often off screen. Dressed in unfamiliar "soup and fish," as the American ambassador to an etiquette-ridden mythical European court, Rogers cuts capers that laugh all troubles away.

The hilarious Rogers wise-cracks combined with his common-sense homespun philosophy result in a humorous one-man revolution, with Will Rogers leading the way back to happiness for Sylvania and two romantic lovers.

Also featured with Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill" are Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill and Gustav von Seffertitz who provide a tender romance as the king and queen torn apart by the wily machinations of the would-be dictator, von Seffertitz. As a consequence of the separation, the throne is assumed by their eight-year-old son, played by Tad Alexander, who has a grand time with the new American ambassador.

The youthful king learns how to play baseball and starts the first Sylvanian Boy Scout troop. Will Rogers sees to it that the cares of kingship do not weigh too heavily on his young shoulders, and even teaches him how to twirl a rope in the famous Rogers manner.

Cast as the siren who gets Rogers into a peck of trouble in a side-splitting interlude is blonde Greta Nissen.

WOODMEN OF WORLD PROGRAM COMPLETED

All was in readiness Saturday night for the holding of the first log rolling of the Northeast Louisiana association which will be held at the Woodmen of the World building this afternoon at 1 p.m.

State Manager W. A. Tidwell, of Shreveport, will be in attendance taking active part in the exercises which will include initiation of fully 75 candidates.

While attendance will be largely regulated by weather conditions, if Sunday should prove a good day, there will be possibly as many as 400 to 500 Woodmen present according to estimates made Saturday.

Camps are maintained and delegations are expecte' from cities and towns throughout the fifth congressional district, as follows: Jonesboro, Winnsboro, Winnfield, Bastrop, Farmerville, Marion, Chatham, Tallulah, Lake Providence, Clarks and Urania.

The local team will act as host and will stage the initiatory work, putting on the protection degree.

The first practical typewriter was placed on the market in 1874.

'Ambassador Bill' Back At Capitol

One Of Will Rogers' Greatest Pictures Returns By Popular Demand

THE WILL ROGERS you loved, in his wisest, wittiest role as the homespun diplomat driving stuffed shirts silly with his shirt-sleeve etiquette and his hilarious horse sense, is starred in the return engagement of "Ambassador Bill," the Fox picture opening today at the Capitol theater.

Brought back by popular demand, "Ambassador Bill" presents America's own humorist in a role closely resembling that which he played often off screen. Dressed in unfamiliar "soup and fish," as the American ambassador to an etiquette-ridden mythical European court, Rogers cuts capers that laugh all troubles away.

The hilarious Rogers wise-cracks combined with his common-sense homespun philosophy result in a humorous one-man revolution, with Will Rogers leading the way back to happiness for Sylvania and two romantic lovers.

Also featured with Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill" are Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill and Gustav von Seffertitz who provide a tender romance as the king and queen torn apart by the wily machinations of the would-be dictator, von Seffertitz. As a consequence of the separation, the throne is assumed by their eight-year-old son, played by Tad Alexander, who has a grand time with the new American ambassador.

The youthful king learns how to play baseball and starts the first Sylvanian Boy Scout troop. Will Rogers sees to it that the cares of kingship do not weigh too heavily on his young shoulders, and even teaches him how to twirl a rope in the famous Rogers manner.

Cast as the siren who gets Rogers into a peck of trouble in a side-splitting interlude is blonde Greta Nissen.

A DESPERATE CHANCE

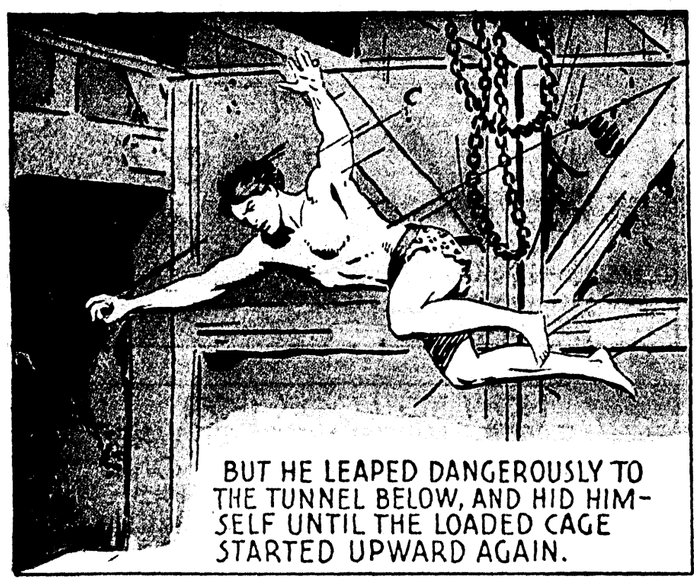

"STAY DOWN THERE AND STARVE!" FLINT SHOUTED TO THE TRAPPED TARZAN AND HIS FRIENDS.

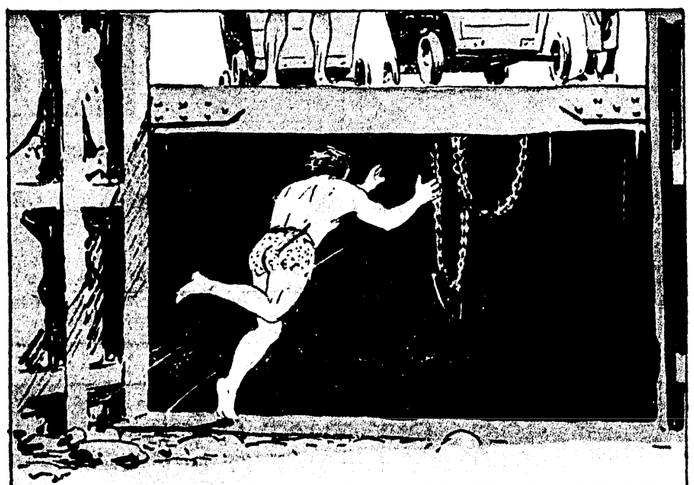

BUT THE APE-MAN DID NOT MEAN TO WAIT IDLY FOR DEATH. THAT NIGHT HE STARTED UP THE TALL, PERILOUS SHAFT.

HE HAD BARELY PASSED AN UPPER GALLERY WHEN THE BUSY CAGE DROPPED DOWN. IN ANOTHER MOMENT IT WOULD STRIKE HIM!

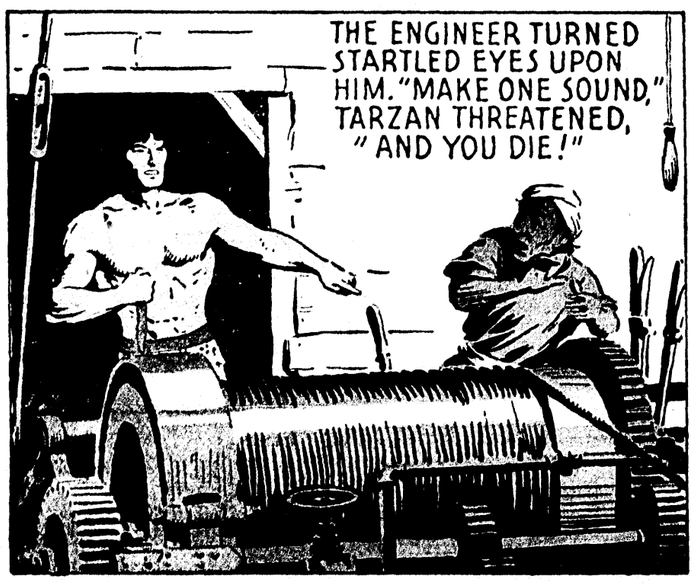

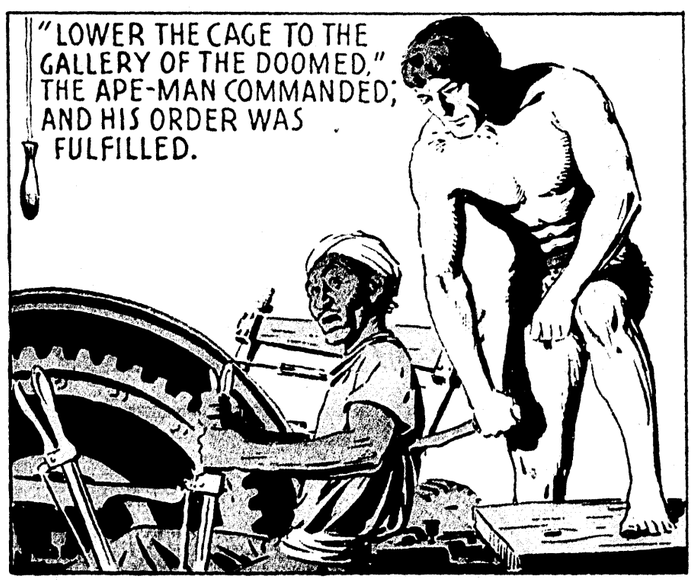

BUT HE LEAPED DANGEROUSLY TO THE TUNNEL BELOW, AND HID HIMSELF UNTIL THE LOADED CAGE STARTED UPWARD AGAIN.

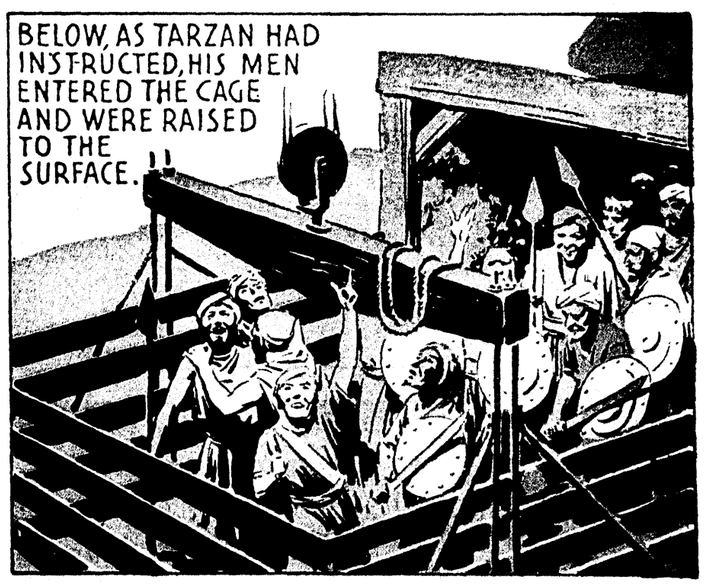

THEN HE SPRANG TO THE UNDERSTRUCTURE OF THE LIFT AND HUNG THERE UNTIL IT REACHED THE SURFACE.

RESOLVED TO TAKE A DESPERATE CHANCE, HE JUMPED FOR THE LEVER, TO DROP THE PRISONERS BACK INTO THE EARTH.

TARZAN SPRANG UPON HIM, BUT THE ENGINEER'S ARM SHOT OUT AND JERKED THE WHISTLE TO SCREECH AN ALARM!

DICK TRACY

BUT, DICK, THIS TIME I'VE GOT A FEELING YOU WON'T BE SO LUCKY! WHY RISK YOUR LIFE AGAIN?

THAT NOTE SAID THEY'D KILL YOU, DICK!

NOW, QUIT WORRYING, YOU TWO. YOU'RE JUST IMAGINING THINGS. WELL, I MUST BE MOVING— HAVE A DATE WITH PAT.

YOU SEE, THAT FIRST FELLOW THAT WE CAPTURED - WHO TRIED TO COMMIT SUICIDE BY CHEWING POISON GUM IN HIS CELL - HAS TALKED!

HE TOLD US WHERE HE MEETS THE GANG MEMBER WHO GIVES HIM HIS ORDERS! WE'VE ANNOUNCED OVER THE POLICE RADIO FLING HAS BEEN RELEASED FOR LACK OF EVIDENCE.

MEANWHILE, PAT IS DISGUISED AS FLING AND IS GOING TO MEET THE PURPLE CROSS GANGSTER.

NOW LET US LOOK IN ON PAT PATTON AT A CERTAIN UNDERWORLD DIVE KNOWN AS THE "CAVE"

NICE WORK, FLING! THEY DIDN'T GET A THING OUT OF YOU, EH? OH! OH! LOOK WHO'S COMING!

LISTEN, FLING! I THOUGHT I TOLD YOU TO GET OUT OF TOWN- UNDERSTAND! NOW SCRAM!

GOSH- I HATED TO SOCK PAT THAT HARD- BUT AT LEAST IT LOOKED CONVINCING TO THE GANGSTER.

NOW TO LOOK FOR PAT'S MESSAGE! IT WAS AGREED HE'D LEAVE ONE IN A DISH - HA! THIS SUGAR BOWL---- THE LID!

I MUST TAKE IT TO HEADQUARTERS

TEN MINUTES LATER

QUICK, CHIEF! LOOK AT THE INSIDE OF THIS SUGAR BOWL LID WHEN I SHINE THE VIOLET RAY LIGHT ON IT!

going to meet high commander - plotting your death

PAT WROTE THAT MESSAGE WITH A TOOTH-PICK DIPPED IN BUTTER. IT'S ABSOLUTELY INVISIBLE AGAINST THE WHITE PORCELAIN EXCEPT UNDER THE VIOLET RAY.

The SIEGE of the "33"

10-25

© 1936 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

IMMORTAL in the history of Uruguay is the number "33." A province, a town, many plazas and streets, even a brand of cigarets favor it, for it represents the number of exiles who, inspired by the victories of other South American countries against the Spanish rulers, in 1824, ventured to free their own land from Paraguay.

Commanded by Juan Antonio Lavelleja, with almost as many officers as men, these 33 "immortals" took boat at Buenos Aires, sailed up the Uruguay river and captured by surprise a garrison of 60 Portuguese soldiers. Flushed with victory, the patriots trudged on to Montivideo, the capital. As they advanced, they added a few eager volunteers who had bided the time of their liberation.

Lavalleja now had a small force of only 100 men. Opposing him was a well-trained and fully equipped garrison of 2000. But so terrific was the onslaught of the invading patriots that the defenders withdrew into the town. This enabled the army of the "33" to enlarge itself with more volunteers. The news of the promised liberation spread fast, and soon almost all Uruguay was in revolt.

YOU BET YOU WILL.

ADDRESS IT TO YOUR DAUGHTER, SEE. TELL HER THAT, UNLESS SHE CALLS OFF THE POLICE, WE'LL BLOW YOUR BLANKETY BLANKED HEAD OFF.

WATCH HIM, BOYS. DON'T LET HIM PUT NOTHIN' UNDER TH' STAMP.

SAM, YOU'RE A GENIUS.

MORNING:

SPECIAL DELIVERY, MISS BELFRY.

Dearest:

Alas, I have lost all my courage!

For heaven's sake, tell Easy and the police not to try to find me. Stop search immediately! All my property, even my life at stake, and possibly, too, your own life.

Ate nothing yesterday due to worry. Please tell son to sell both flour mills if Wall Street needs cash. Love.

Daddy.

WAIT. MAYBE THERE'S A CLUE.

I'M SURE THERE'S ONE! YOU SEE, DADDY WAS AFRAID SOMETHING LIKE THIS MIGHT HAPPEN. HE TOLD ME THAT, IF HE EVER HAD TO WRITE SUCH A LETTER, I WAS TO READ EACH FOURTH WORD, TO SEE IF IT CONTAINED A HIDDEN MESSAGE.

The SIEGE of the "33"

IMMORTAL in the history of Uruguay is the number "33." A province, a town, many plazas and streets, even a brand of cigarets favor it, for it represents the number of exiles who, inspired by the victories of other South American countries against the Spanish rulers, in 1824, ventured to free their own land from Paraguay.

Commanded by Juan Antonio Lavelleja, with almost as many officers as men, these 33 "immortals" took boat at Buenos Aires, sailed up the Uruguay river and captured by surprise a garrison of 60 Portuguese soldiers. Flushed with victory, the patriots trudged on to Montivideo, the capital. As they advanced, they added a few eager volunteers who had bided the time of their liberation.

Lavalleja now had a small force of only 100 men. Opposing him was a well-trained and fully equipped garrison of 2000. But so terrific was the onslaught of the invading patriots that the defenders withdrew into the town. This enabled the army of the "33" to enlarge itself with more volunteers. The news of the promised liberation spread fast, and soon almost all Uruguay was in revolt.
